Judges were Mrs. Bernard Collins of Clarion, Jim Carroll of Alexander and Russell Tokheim of Forest City. They scored the girls on poise and personality as demonstrated at a luncheon at the Blue Bell tea room; on beauty of face and form in the swim suit competition at Luick Memorial Pool Monday afternoon; on beauty and grace in the contestants' appearance in formals; and on talent as displayed in the pageant finals that preceded the fireworks exhibition at the BHS athletic field.

It was the opinion of most of the Jaycees who have worked on all three Miss Belmond pageants to date that this year's talent contest was the finest of the lot. After this portion of the program, each of the three girls picked as finalists was required to answer a question drawn by lot; and her poise and quick-wittedness in making her answer also entered into the judges' final decision.

Trafford acts as em-cee

Besides the four girls mentioned, other contestants were Cathy Bonte and Kathryn McLaughlin. Mayor L. T. "Bud" Trafford served as the master-of-ceremonies.

An estimated crowd of 600 witnessed the talent contest. Afterward, more than 1,000 saw the fireworks display from in or around the bleachers at the athletic field and many more enjoyed the exhibition from other vantage points.

A crowd estimated at 3,500 to 4,000 was on hand Saturday morning to see the kiddies' parade, which consisted of 31 entries; and the adult parade that was made up of approximatey 75 units and included many ornate floats. Kanawha's high school band, as well as the BHS band, provided music along the parade route.

Kiddies' parade winners

Prizes of $3, $2 and $1 were awarded in each of three divisions in the kiddies' parade. The winners were: costume division — 1st, Lynn Henn; 2nd, Kirkendall (addition) neighbors; 3rd, Vicki Broshar and Julie Followwill.

Pet division — 1st, Dudley Thompson; 2nd, Kathy and Jimmy Mason; 3rd, Sharon Bamford. Vehicle division—1st Sherry and Patrick Dorr; 2nd, Phyllis Mosiman; 3rd, Greg Nelson.

In the adult parade, prizes of $15 and $10 went to the first two place winners among the business floats and among those entered by organizations and churches. Followwill Implement and Feed company with its "Freedom Train" entry was the business division winner, while second went to Joe's Skelly Service for its portrayal of the flag-raising at Iwo Jima.

Alexander church wins

Winner of the other division was the Reformed church of Alexander, whose three-unit entry showed replicas of the three edifices that have been the church's home since its founding. The same float had won first in Alexander's Diamond Jubilee parade last week. Second prize went to the St. Francis Rosary society, for its float which followed a patriotic-religious motif.

Slightly more that 1,000 persons enjoyed the hospitality of the Chamber of Commerce, which at noon served an at-cost barbecue lunch from the school bus barn. Good attendance was also attracted by the amateur talent show that was presented Sunday night from the stage in front of the bleachers at the athletic field.

Hagie delivers keynote address—

County Republicans select state delegates

If a straw vote taken at the Wright county Republican convention last Friday forecasts closeness of the state convention scrap for the U. S. Senator nomination, it's going to be quite a battle a week from next Wednesday at Des Moines.

About half of the delegates at the county convention at Clarion had already left for home when the ballot of candidate preference was taken, but those still on hand voted in this fashion: 30 for Dayton Countryman, Nevada; 29 for Jack Miller, Sioux City; six for Rollo Bergeson, Des Moines; and one each for Ken Stringer of Davenport and Oliver Reeves, Waverly, One courtesy vote was cast for Robert D. Blue of Eagle Grove, former governor.

Russell Schaal of Belmond served as chairman of the convention. He named committees for the occasion as follows:

Credentials — Newt Draheim, Clarion, chairman; Don McGrath of Eagle Grove and Harlan Larson of Goldfield.

Resolutions: Ben Birdsall, Clarion, chairman; M. B. Crabbe, Eagle Grove; J. R. Gallagher, Belmond; Duane Sandage, Clarion; W. P. Tyrrell, Belmond.

Nominating committee, to name delegates to state convention: R. L. Davison, Clarion, chairman; Mrs. O. J. Cambier, Clarion; C. C. Christie, Belmond; Don Knudsen, Eagle Grove; Mrs. Kenneth Firkins, Dows; Mrs. Dean Myers, Eagle Grove; Robert Whyte, Goldfield.

The convention moved to have delegates caucus according to supervisor districts, rather than just as precincts, to the end of making a more equitable selection of state convention delegates.

Delegates were named as follows to attend the state convention at Des Moines on July 20: District 1 — W. P. Tyrrell, Mrs. Dorothy McNeal, C. C. Christie, Russell Schaal, Floyd Whitten, J. R. Gallagher; District 2 — Harlan Larson, Robert S. Whyte, Wiert Brower.

Named as delegates to the state judicial convention were: District 1 — Roy Henderson, Cecil Carstens, Don Faris, Rita Schaal, John Davids, Walt Hotvet; District 2 — Lewis Tesdahl, Pearl Martin, Edith Echipull.

District 3 — Don McGrath, Russell Blue, John Henneberry, Ben Wille, Everett McGrath, Gaylord Jones, John Rowen, J. F. Abbott, I. H. Schroeder; District 4 — John Burt, A. M. Butler; District 5 — Robert Maddocks, Joan Maddocks, Ollie Buchan, Grace Buchan, Joe Larson, Ruth Larson, Lucille Sankey.

Ray Hagie, Republican candidate for state representative, was keynote speaker for the convention. He emphasized the achievements of the Eisenhower administration in which the GOP can take pride. He also stressed the necessity for widespread effort among loyal Republicans to sell the virtues of their party to undecided voters.

Otto Knudsen of Eagle Grove, chairman of the central committee, introduced Dorothy McNeal as his appointee as county publicity chairman and W. P. Tyrrell as holder of the dual office of treasurer and finance chairman. He also recognized Mrs. Alre (Mary) Watts of Clarion as his vice chairman and Mrs. Dale (Mary Louise) Smith of Eagle Grove as central committee secretary.

Resolutions adopted were largely the same as those approved at the county presidential convention in April. They offered an enthusiastic endorsement of the Eisenhower administration in general and deplored the necessity of his having been handicapped by a Congress possessed of unfavorable majorities in each house. The contrary circumstances in the state legislature was similarly deplored.

Again the replacement of Ezra Taft Benson was urged as a major step in gaining confidence of the American farmer in Republican efforts to reach a satisfactory solution to U. S. agriculture's problems. An expanded conservation reserve program was recommended and a phrase was added that "we favor the principal of placing a reasonable ceiling on agricultural subsidy payments."

The resolutions favored reapportionment of the Iowa legislature by the legislature itself; favored increased state aid for public schools; and urged legislation enabling the reorganization of county governments to the end of greater economy and efficiency.

It was also resolved that the state should appropriate sufficient funds that the Iowa State Library will be protected against threatened loss of matching federal aid — and that the legislature should consider equivalent legislation for other public services in similar situations.

The resolutions concluded with the recommendation that Iowa's laws relating to its senior citizens be studied and modernized.

No one claimed a CGD cent

Perhaps most of the usual Tuesday afternoon crowd of shoppers were all used up by their strenuous holiday activities of the past weekend. Whatever the explanation, there were not enough number-holders on Main street to budge any of the $400 in Cash Gift Day prizes that were available for the claiming. This dismayed the CGD committee, who like to see this money get out and circulate. The same amount of cash will be posted again this week; and it will be divided into the same number of prizes — eight of $25 each at 2:00 p. m. and four of $50 apiece at 3:00 o'clock.

Final rites today for Martin Thoe

Funeral services will be held at 1:00 o'clock this (Thursday) afternoon at the Methodist church for Martin J. Thoe, 85, a long-time resident of this community. Rev. M. L. Jones will officiate over the rites and Johnston Funeral Home is in charge. Burial will be at Lake Mills.

Mr Thoe died Monday evening at Belmond Community hospital. He had been in failing health for a period of months. For the past three years he had lived only periodically in Belmond, spending the rest of his time with a sister, Mrs. Evelyn Hylback of Lake Mills, or with other relatives.

He came to Belmond in 1903 and for many years operated a photographic studio. Early-day pictures he had taken here contributed much interest to the historical book on Belmond published at the time of the Belmond centennial in 1956. He later was in the automobile business here.

Besides his sister at Lake Mills he is survived by two other sisters, Mrs. Martha Nordschow of San Franc[illegible] and Mrs. Emma Forrester [illegible] City.

[illegible]ceded in death by [illegible] Lewis, Nels and [illegible] two sisters, Mrs. [illegible] Ellen Thoe.

Tragedy averted in mishap—

Baby flung from car; barely hurt

Tragedy was narrowly averted about 11:00 a. m. Monday as an accident occured while units of the 4th of July parade were dispersing and spectators headed for the carnival grounds.

Near victim of the crash between a station wagon and auto was month-old Alan Joel Copper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Copper, who farm north of Belmond. He was being held by his mother in the front seat of the Coppers' car and went flying out the door when it sprung open from impact of the collision.

Taken to Belmond Community hospital for examination, the infant was found to have apparently escaped injury except for minor bruises.

Officer Marvin Miller, who with Patrolmen Jerry Kramer and Donald Sturges investigated the accident, reports it is still under investigation and that no charges have been filed as yet.

Drivers involved were Mr. Copper, who was proceeding east on Second street NE, and Dave Kennedy, who was driving his station wagon south on Fourth avenue NE. The station wagon struck the left rear end of Copper's car, impact of the collision forcing the right rear fender against a street lamp post at the corner. It was the latter jolt that forced open the right door out of which the baby tumbled.

The station wagon was decorated as a parade float and Mr. Kennedy had just dropped off near the high school two girls who had been riding on the front bumper. Bonita Whipple, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Whipple, was riding atop the station wagon and suffered an ankle bruise when she was flung to the street.

Mr. Copper's hired man, Kenneth Fleming, 22, came out of the mishap with a cut on his jaw and on his left knee. Mrs. Copper was also taken to the hospital for examination but was unhurt except for bruises on her back and neck. The two drivers escaped unscathed.

The Coppers' '52 DeSoto sedan was regarded too badly damaged to justify repair. An estimated $300 damage was done to the Kennedy station wagon.

Lapse of memory brings car crash

A lapse of memory on the part of a departing Belmond visitor Monday evening resulted in a two-car crash on Highway 69 a mile north of town that dealt considerable damage to both vehicles.

Raymond Hill of Coon Rapids had been here for a holiday visit with his mother, Mrs. Edith Hill, and brother, Duran Hill. He left about 8:30 to continue on an intended trip north when he remembered something he'd left behind and at the first intersection went into a U-turn to return to Belmond.

Before he could complete the maneuver, William Burgess of Moline, Ill., approaching from the south smashed into the rear right door of Hill's car and sent the Coon Rapids auto into the ditch at the northwest corner of the intersection.

Car leaves track; race driver hurt

Doug Dean, Clarion, driver competing at the Wright County Raceways, suffered serious injuries Monday night during the July 4th program of races. He was speeding around the north turn of the dirt track when his car went out of control and bounded over the bank to the northwest.

Brought in to Belmond Community hospital, he was found on examination to have suffered a fracture of the breastbone and several broken ribs. He was reported Tuesday to be recovering satisfactorily, but facing several more days of hospitalization before he would be sufficently recuperated for release.

OPEN HOUSE WILL BE HELD FOR NEW CITY FIRE TRUCK (ABOVE) BEFORE LONG

New fire truck arrives, passes tests

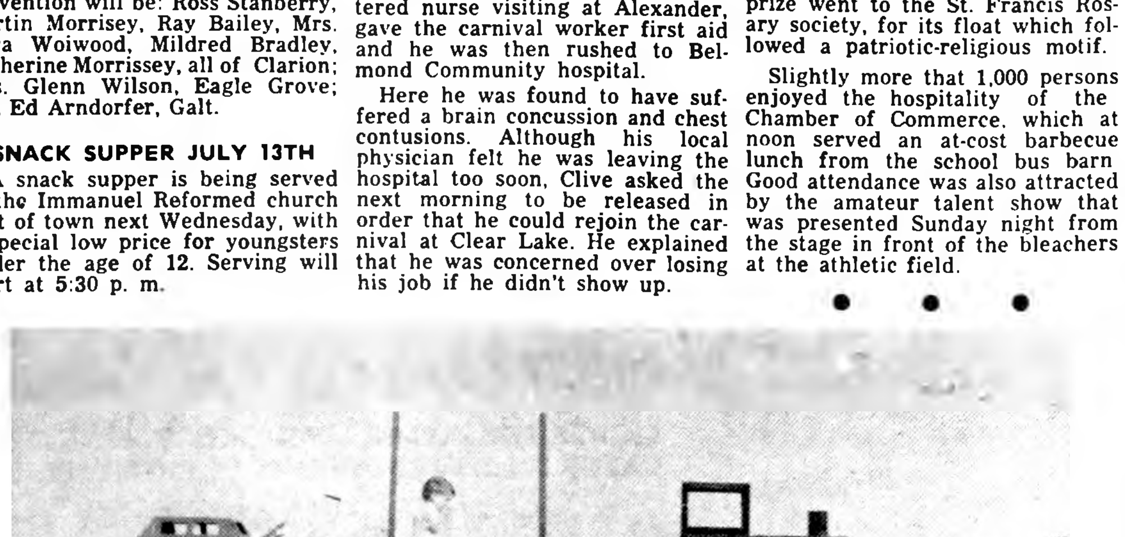
Tests conducted at Nelson's gravel pit last Friday proved the Belmond Fire department's new truck all ready for service. It was delivered that day by the American Fire Apparatus company of Marshalltown, which built and equipped the truck body on an IHC chassis purchased of Helland and Long Implement.

Cost of the chassis was about $3,300 and of the body and related equipment, $8,300. By the time hose, nozzles and other essential apparatus has been added the final cost will approximate $13,000.

Tests Friday were overseen by Harry Corcoran of Des Moines, inspector for the Iowa Inspection Bureau of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Chief A. W. "Doc" Johnson says the department plans to hold open house at the time the truck is officially commissioned and at that time the public will be given an opportunity to inspect it and have its equipment explained.

That is Chief Johnson pictured with the truck. Just as the shutter snapped he changed position to check on whether he was covering up any of the legend printed in gold on the truck door. He HADN'T been — until he moved.



THAT "FREEDOM TRAIN" of song inspired this clever float that won first prize for Followwill Implement and Feed company in the business division of Monday morning's 4th of July parade. It was entirely home-made, being the handiwork of Mrs. Pete (Jeannette) Followwill and Mrs. Floyd (Carol) Broshar. That's the Followwills' three-year-old daughter Julie riding on the float. The interested spectators are Kathy Stockseth, five, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Art Stockseth, and Kathryn Swenson, six, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Swenson.

Funds available under ACP, still

Rainy weather during the spring of 1960 has slowed the use of conservation practices throughout the state. Cost-sharing funds are available to assist farmers in carrying out practices under the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP).

Now is a good time to make plans to carry out approved soil and water conservation practices on your farm, administrators of the ACP suggest. On permanent type practices, technical assistance is available through the county Soil Conservation Service office (SCS).

Farmers planning on spreading limestone are advised it must be applied to meet requirements of a soil test. Limestone may be applied to farmland that is seeded to legumes or legume-grass mixtures in 1960 or to farmland that is going to be seeded to legumes or legume-grass mixtures in 1961.

Soil should be tested now by farmers planning on applying limestone some time later. Field assistants are available to obtain soil samples.

Persons interested are asked to contact the county ASC office for more detailed information in regard to the conservation practices available under ACP.

MR. AND MRS. LOU WAAGE

Juda Stahl, Lew Waage spoke vows at Klemme Reformed church June 19

Baskets of white roses and blue carnations adorned the altar of the Immanuel Evangelical Reformed church of Klemme for the Sunday afternoon ceremony on June 19 in which Miss Juda Stahl became the bride of Lew Waage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stahl of Klemme and the groom's parents are Mr and Mrs. Nico Waage of Goodell.

The Rev. Ernest Lauer officiated at the double-ring ceremony and Merrie June Reinhart of Klemme was organist. She played traditional nuptial music and accompanied Eugene Zwald of Klemme as he sang "Because" and "Wedding Prayer."

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a ballerina-length gown of white acetate-nylon lace mister over taffeta. The fitted bodice was styled with a scoop neckline, lavishly beaded, with below-elbow sleeves. Her fingertip veil was made of nylon illusion veiling secured to a coronet of pearls. She carried a bouquet of a dozen white roses and lily of the valley surrounded by blue tulle.

Linda Stahl of Klemme served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a blue street-length dress with a full taffeta skirt and chiffon over top styled with short puff sleeves. She wore white accessories and carried a colonial-type bouquet of blue carnations.

Myron Waage, brother of the groom, was best man and groomsmen-ushers were Virgil Stahl of Klemme and Eugene Waage of Belmond. Larry Schlawin of Garner and Jim Stahl of Klemme were candlelighters.

For the ceremony and reception which followed, Mrs. Stahl wore a beige sheath dress and white accessories. Mrs. Waage selected a blue straight dress with white accessories. Both mothers and the bride's grandmother were given corsages of white roses.

The four-tier wedding cake, topped with bridal figurines, was frosted white with blue roses at each corner of the layers, flanked by glass candle holders holding one white rose and lily of the valley. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Virgil Stahl of Klemme and Mrs Frank Halverson of Garner. Luann Waage, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Orlando Peterson of Forest City poured Marlene Waage, sister of the groom, presided at the punch bowl Gifts were assembled by Mrs. Myron Waage and Dorothy Roul, the latter of Garner, and were displayed by Mrs. Virgil Stahl, Joyce Lassohn and Janice Stokesbary, all of Klemme

As Mr. and Mrs. Waage left the reception for the wedding trip, she wore a white full-skirted nylon dress with a green satin midriff.

After the wedding trip to Denver, Colo., and the Black Hills, they will live in Goodell, where Mr Waage is employed at the Goodell Grocery. Mrs. Waage is employed at Hattel's Super Valu in Belmond

COLORED AREAS on map above show land in Wright county that has been soil tested in the past several years. Farmers are reminded that the county ASC office will have Bob Toft of Belmond take samples free of charge, to be sent to Iowa State university for analysis, on request. A charge of $1.50 per sample is made to cover cost of analysis at ISU. Another soil sampler, Gary Fisher of Eagle Grove, has been employed by several co-op elevators in the county to accommodate farmers by taking samples. The offer of free sampling service is good for the balance of the summer.

CCC still offers loans for storage

Commodity Credit Corporation storage facility loans are available again this year to farmers who need additional storage capacity on their farms, according to the Wright county ASC committee.

The four per cent loans are available to provide new farm storage facilities for most storable crops. County ASC committees are authorized to approve applications for loans up to 80 per cent of a maximum cost of 64 cents per bushel for the storage structure.

Loans are payable in four annual installments, beginning one year after the loan is made. Applications may be filed at the county ASC office.

Since the inauguration of the storage facility loan in 1949, more than 126,000 loans had been made to farmers as of April 30, 1960. The loans helped finance storage structures with an aggregate capacity of about 498.5 million bushels.

Corn borer risk small this year

As much as 68 per cent European corn borer leaf feeding has been observed in taller corn in Wright county, according to Aaron R. Bowman, Wright county extension director.

Counts made by extension personnel and hybrid seed corn producers show that the percentage of leaf feeding on the average is about 30 per cent. It has varied from eight per cent to 68 per cent in the taller corn in various sections of the county.

Treatment with an insecticide is recommended when corn borer leaf feeding is detected in the whorl in the leaf of the corn in 75 per cent of the stalks.

It is not expected that much corn in Wright county will need to be treated with an insecticide for corn borer control. However, some fields, especially of early corn, may need treatment. Checks should be made in several portions of the field to determine the percentage of leaf feeding by the corn borer.

Either DDT, endrin, or toxaphene can be used as an insecticide for corn borer control.

Farmers can call or write to the Wright county extension office at Clarion for pamphlet 176, revised, "The European Corn Borer and It's Control," for more detailed infor-

Chico can make like sick cow

Residents of the east part of Belmond have, since open-window weather arrived, wondered one by one what strange noise periodically beset their ears that sounded "just like a donkey."

This will serve to inform them that their ears have not been mistaken. It IS a donkey.

Chico is the animal's name and he is the pet of seven-year-old Mike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim McMurray. The McMurrays live just cater-corner across Luick's Lane to the southeast of the Methodist church.

The McMurray's are neighbors to Ira Studebaker, Jr. Not long after Chico had come to make his home with the McMurrays, Ira said one day to a member of the family "Sounds like you must have an awful sick cow."

This misapprehension was cleared up in a hurry with the explanation that what Ira had been hearing wasn't a sick cow but a perfectly well donkey.

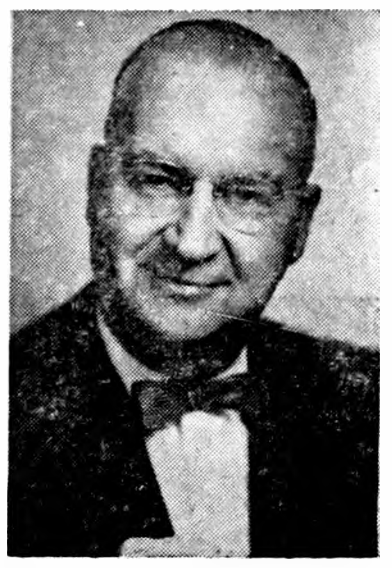
Originally, Chico was to have been a gift to Mike on his 7th birthday, last September. Jim McMurray had instructed that veteran horse and mule trader, Ralph Thayer, to keep an eye peeled for a donkey he could buy as a pet for the youngest McMurray son.

It wasn't until December that Ralph finally ran into the critter he was looking for, so Chico became a Christmas present instead of a birthday gift. He came from Minnesota and will be a two-year-old before long.

He's broken both to the bridle and for riding (he was in the 4th of July parade, Kent Gabrielson astride) and doesn't just tolerate children — he seems to love 'em.

When a doleful bray eminates from the McMurrays' vicinity during the daytime it indicates that Chico has been forsaken by some of his little chums and is feeling lonesome.

What it means in the wee sma' hours of the morning (when Ye Ed most often hears Chico serenading) we don't know. . . . Maybe a dog who howls at the moon could explain it.



APPOINTED LEADER of the revamped Fort Dodge District of the Methodist church, with which Wright county is now affiliated, is Rev. Charles R. Buckwalter of Storm Lake (above). He succeeds Dr. Herbert D. Temple, who retired. Belmond was in the Algona district before the recent reorganization of Northern Iowa Methodist districts that reduced their number from eight to seven.

Referendum soon on wheat quotas

An explantion of just who is eligible to vote in the July 21 referendum on 1961 wheat marketing quotas is offered by the Wright county ASC committeemen

They said any grower in one of the commercial wheat states, which includes Iowa, who will produce more than 15 acres of wheat as grain in 1961 will be eligible to cast a ballot in the quota vote.

Growers who will have smaller wheat acreages in 1961 and those who are taking part in the feed wheat program are not eligible to vote, since the wheat from such farms would not be subject to marketing penalties under a quota program.

The county committee reminded farmers that those who vote in the July 21 referendum will be the ones who decide what kind of program will be in effect for the next wheat crop. The committee urges that every eigible voter cast his ballot, so that the result may truly reflect the desires of growers themselves.

At least two-thirds of the total votes cast must be favorable if the wheat marketing quota is to remain in effect in 1961.

"Friendly suit" filed to clarify trust provisions

No "squabble" has developed over the administration of funds in the Fred and Alice Luick Memorial Building Trust, as the public might be misled into believing on the strength of a legal notice which last week was ordered in three issues of The Independent.

The notice finds trustees of Luick Memorial Building Trust — Luin Cox, A C. Hanson and Roy Henderson — as plaintiffs naming Belmond Community School district and the members of its board of directors, the city of Belmond and its administrative officials, and R. E. Lee Aldrich, Jr., as defendants.

Sole purpose of the legal action, Mr. Cox explains, is to make clear beyond dispute the rights of the trustees under provisions of the trust. Areas referred to in the trust as its beneficiaries are the city of Belmond, the Belmond Community School district, and the territory adjoining. Mr. Aldrich agreed to appear in the petition as representative of those persons residing in the "territory adjoining."

As a result of the petition, a judge of Wright county district court will be called upon to decree specifically what the trustees' responsibilities are under the provisions of the trust. A court decree is also sought in the matter of who shall possess ownership of the Luick Memorial Building upon its completion and who shall bear responsibility for maintenance and operation of the building.

While terms of the trust carefully set forth that responsibility of building the proposed Luick Memorial community center with the trust funds should fall to the school district — and that ownership and the responsibility of maintaining the building should reside in the school district after the community center's completion — the trustees desired confirmation of these arrangements by court decree obtained via the suit.

PLANS FOR PRINTING a brochure setting forth Belmond's attractions as a community in which to live and as an industrial site were being discussed as the above picture was taken at the First State bank. Engaged in the discussion were (left to right): Luin Cox and Jack Granzow, members of the Chamber of Commerce industrial development committee; and Gordon Aasgaard of the Graphic Publishing company, Lake Mills, who would do the multi-color print job. Also sitting in on the conversation was Editor J. R. Gallagher of The Independent. Members of the C-of-C committee who were not able to attend the meeting are Neil Flanagan and Roy Carwell. As presently contemplated, the pamphlet may adhere to the theme "Mr. Luick's Home Town," recalling and justifying the philanthropies of the late Chester Luick. Emphasis will be placed on Belmond's major industries and their top executives asked to enumerate what they regard as the community's major assets as an industrial site.

Humboldt golfer retains crown—

Clarmond title to Lee in play-off

George Lee of Humboldt in a play-off Sunday with young Paul Rost of Hampton twice sank clutch putts to successfully defend his Clarmond Amateur golf title and become the first champion of the tournament series to make it two in a row. The two links stars had shot even-par 108's for the regulation 27 holes to finish a stroke ahead of Milt Marschall of Hampton.

On the first play-off hole, Lee had to one-putt the No 1 green to salvage a par and a tie. On the second hole, Rost hit his first two shots poorly but then pitched nicely to within two feet of the cup. Lee had had a tremendous drive but his second was too long and left him half way up the bunker behind the green.

Pressure beats Rost

His chip left him four feet from the cup — but he holed out from there and Rost buckled under the pressure, coming nowhere near the hole on his shorter try.

In spite of the field being limited to 140 golfers this year, the tournament ran about the longest it has yet. A stiff northwest breeze put many drives on No. 1 behind No. 2 tee, slowing up play while those on the first hole had to wait for the second tee to be vacated before they could approach to the green. It was nevertheless deemed a highly successful tournament and some excellent rounds were posted in spite of the wind.

Best nine of the day was turned in by young Rost on his second round. His four-under-par 32 tied the competitive course record set last year by Lee.

Three turn in 34's

Two-under-par 34's were shot by Lee, Gary Lowman of Clear Lake and Tom Chapman of Fort Dodge. Rounds of 35 were achieved by Marschall and George Turner of Spencer.

This year, for the first time, qualifying was done on the basis of 18 holes instead of nine. This resulted in a multitude of ties for the pay-off places; but it prevented intentional shooting of high scores on the opening round by some entries in order to improve their chance of a prize by getting in a high fight.

Following are the top 10 finishers in the championship flight and the prize-winners in the other flights.

Championship Flight

George Lee, Humboldt 37-34-37—108
Paul Rost, Hampton 36-32-40—108
Milt Marschall, Hampton 38-36-35—109

Gary Loman, Clear Lake 34-38-41—113
George Turner, Spencer 40-35-39—114
Don Spratt, Clear Lake 40-38-36—114
Jack Polmatar, Clear Lake 38-38-40—116
Roger Horn, Mason City 39-38-39—116
Al Hoy, Jefferson 37-41-39—117

BOTH COULD SMILE when this picture was taken of Paul Rost (left) of Hampton and George Lee of Humboldt before their play-off for the Clarmond Amateur Golf championship Sunday doomed the Hampton linksman's hopes to disappointment. Rost had a three-stroke lead on Lee going into the final round but had bogeys on three straight holes beginning with No. 2 to enable the defending champion to take up the slack.

Soma hurls well in Yankees' win

Games in the summer recreation midget league last week saw Jerry Soma's Yankees tie a 9-1 defeat on Bob Misner's Orioles and Neal Waddington's Tigers nose out Keith Sheller's Braves, 9 to 7.

In peewee action, Fred Whipple's Giants outlasted Kenny Eygabroad's Red Sox 17 to 14.

Soma turned in one of the young season's best pitching performances in holding the Orioles to only four hits and walked only one batter.

A big first inning that saw the Tigers tally six runs on the offerings of Sheller gave Waddington's team an advantage that the Braves were never able to overcome. Five walks, two hits and an error caused the damage for the Braves.

In the Giant-Red Sox battle, Whipple smashed out a home run for the winners. Terry Nelson and Neal Rabe each connected for a four-bagger in the Red Sox' losing cause.

Wool incentive pay rate 43.2c

Growers will receive wool payments of $43.20 for every $100 they received from the sale of shorn wool during the 1959 marketing year, according to the Wright county ASC committee.

The rate of 43.2 per cent, just announced by the U. S department of agriculture, represents the amount needed to bring average wool prices up to the previously announced incentive level of 62 cents per pound under the National Wool Act.

The committee said that county ASC offices will begin making payments soon. Applications for the payments had to be filed by April 30, and covered marketings from April 1, 1959, through March 31, 1960.

To determine the wool incentive payment for an individual producer, the committee explained, the rate of 43.2 per cent is applied to the dollar return the producer received for wool after paying marketing charges.

This method of payment is designed to encourage producers to do a good job of marketing their wool, for the producer who gets the best possible price for his wool also gets a higher incentive payment.

As approved by producers in a referendum last September, deductions of one cent per pound from shorn wool payments and five cents per 100 pounds of liveweight from lamb payments will continue to be made for advertising, promotion and related market development activities on wool and lambs

Shift of location for Federal 35 meets opposition

Forty-one men representing 10 communities in this vicinity that are interested in U. S. 35 following its originally intended route met recently at Ames with W. H. Hansen, resident engineer for the Automotive Safety Foundation.

The ASF was employed by an interim investigating committee of the Iowa legislature to look into matters pertaining to highway funds. Mr. Hansen's report included a recommendation for re-routing the north-south federal freeway that is to pass through this territory and as of the present is tentatively intended to pass about 2½ miles ast of Belmond.

Mr. Hansen has suggested it might more practically bear northeast from just east of the junction of Highways 69 and 30 near Blairsburg, to pass between Mason City and Clear Lake. Numerous charts were exhibited by the engineer to demonstrate the thinking that went into this recommendation, but the reasons given did not satisfy members of the visiting delegation.

Because Mr. Hansen said he would rather confer with a smaller group, it was agreed that a body limited to 10 men would consult with him at a later date to go more specifically into the advantages and disadvantages of altering the proposed route of the superhighway.

While at Ames, the visitors learned that the Automotive Safety Foundation's proposal to change the course of U. S. 35 has up to this time been submitted neither to the committee who ordered the study nor to the highway commission. It has, nevertheless, been quite widely aired in the state press.

In Belmond's delegation to the meeting with Mr. Hansen, held at the state highway commission headquarters, were Luin Cox, Clarence Hildebrand, George Heginger, Ed Kennedy, Don Bunnell and Neil Flanagan.

Besides Belmond, the following communities were represented: Eagle Grove, Clarion, Goldfield, Rowan, Kanawha Klemme, Garner and Forest City. To form the smaller committee for later consultation with Mr. Hansen, each town chose one committeeman.

Mr. Cox was chosen from Belmond, and also was elected as secretary of the group. Herbert Ollenberg, Garner banker, served as chairman of the delegation.

Meet Newcomers Gaylord Martins

This week was to see completed a rejuvenation job on the exterior of Hotel Belmond that was ordered by its new owners, Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Martin, lately of Des Moines. Few improvements made on elderly buildings in Belmond's business district in the past 10 years or longer have caused more favorable comment along Main street that that for which the hotel's new owners have been responsible.

A special permanent-resurfacing material that rehabilitates brick walls was applied to both the east and south fronts of the hotel and the gleaming white sheath that now brightens the building is a welcome exchange for the time-worn brick surface that it covers up.

In the picture above are shown Mr. and Mrs. Martin and and their son Kenneth Ray, age five, with the re-surfacing job partially completed in the background. Mr. Martin has in mind similar treatment for the west wall of the hotel next year.

Mr. Martin says he has two daughters (one married) and a married son living elsewhere.

It was the life of a law enforcement and security officer that Gaylord intended to put behind him when he resigned from the Urbandale (Des Moines suburb) police force in May and bought the hotel from Mr. and Mrs. William Grimes.

But aware that he has an experienced officer available now as a relief policeman, Chief of Police Ray Thompson has been calling on the newcomer to substitute on the force here when an extra man is needed. And Gaylord admits that it seems "kinda nice" to get back in uniform.

He'll be pinch-hitting for Night Officer Marvin Miller while the latter and his family enjoy a two-week vacation trip to California.

Nuptial vows spoken on June 25th by Eloise Kirkendall, Aage Carlsen

Miss Eloise Ann Kirkendall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Clarence Kirkendall, and Aage Sven Carlsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ejnar Carlsen of Capron, Ill., exchanged wedding vows Saturday evening, June 25, at 7:30 o'clock with Rev Oscar Laaveg performing the double-ring ceremony.

The beauty of the chancel was enhanced with two large floral arrangements of white gladioli, and white satin bows and greenery marked the aisle through which the wedding party approached the altar.

As the guests assembed, Juanita Wee of Huxley gave a prelude of appropriate wedding music.

Ushering the guests were: Kurt Seberg of Marshalltown, cousin of the bride, Gary Peterson of Portland, Ore., Art Hoium of Blooming Prairie, Minn., seminary friends of the groom, and Chandler Vorhees of Chicago, a college friend of the groom.

The candelabra were decorated with white satin bows and greenery. The candles were lighted by David Seberg, cousin of the bride, and Stanley Boelman.

Soloist was Rolfe Johnstad of Pigeon Falls, Wis., who sang "Wedding Prayer" by Dunlap as the ceremony began.

The bridesmaids were Linda Stevens of Belmond, Glennyce Neve of Walters, Minn., a college friend of the bride, and Joan Schneider of Park idge, Ill., the bride's roommate at St. Olaf. The maid of honor was Elizabeth Larson of Osage, a college friend of the bride.

They were attired in identical orchid nylon organza gowns, the fitted bodices styled with portrait necklines outlined in white medallions and full gathered ballerina-length skirts worn over crinoline. They wore matching bows with blushers, and mitts; and carried cascade carnation floral bouquets. Their accessories were pearl earrings and necklaces.

Julie Bue of Capron, Ill., served as flower girl, scattering rose petals from a basket trimmed with orchid. She wore a white dress with an orchid sash and flower headpiece. The ring bearer was Lee Laaveg of Belmond.

Richard Day, seminary friend of the groom from Madison, Wis., served as best man. Groomsmen were: Kurt Seberg, Bill Fowell of Viroqua, Wis., and Art Hoium, seminary friends of the groom. All the men in the party were ettired in white dinner jackets and black trousers. Their boutonnieres were orchid carnations and the groom's was lilies-of-the-valley.

The bride, escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported Alencon lace and pure silk organza. The molded bodice, embroidered in seed pearls and sequins, was styled with bateau neckline and featured short shirred sleeves and mitts extending over the wrists in a deep bridal point. The full bouffant skirt, worn over hoops, extended into a chapel train.

The veil of imported silk illusion was designed and made by the bride's great aunt, Mrs. Frances Benson of Marshalltown. The bride carried and orchid with lilies-of-the-valley streamers on a white Bible, a gift of the groom. Her only jewelry was cultured pearl earrings, also a gift of the groom.

After the vows were spoken, Mr Johnstad sang, "O Perfect Love" by Barnaby and "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte, while the bride and groom knelt at the altar.

The bride's mother chose a beige pure silk eyelet dress with bone colored accessories. The groom's mother wore a green shadow lace dress with bone colored accessories. Their corsages were cymbidium orchids and white roses.

Mr and Mrs Kirkendall entertained 250 guests at a reception in the church dining room. Mrs John Ubben and Mrs Herbert Hill served as dining room hostesses. Mrs Wilbur Benson of Lamoni, cousin of the bride, and Mrs Paul Dieger cut and served the four-tiered wedding cake which was all white, topped with lilies of the valley and surrounded with greenery and orchid flowers. A double silver service and tall, white, lighted tapers in silver candelabra completed the table decorations.

Mrs Louis Peters of Capron and Mrs Ed Seberg of Marshalltown, cousin of the bride, poured. Punch was served from a smaller table by Mrs Glen Thompson.

The bride's table was served by Sandra Soma, Charlotte Rokke and Karen Jensen, the latter a college friend from Janesville, Wis. Other waitresses assisting with the serving were Yvonne Atkinson, of Luverne, Minn., Sara Simerson, college friends, and Ruth Bryant of Marshalltown.

The gifts were opened, recorded and displayed by Donna Nolan and Delores Rajala, the latter a college friend from Big Fork, Minn.

There were guests from Clemons, Sioux City, Eagle Grove, Cherokee, Bondurant and several from Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota.

The bride graduated from Belmond High school in 1958. She attended Waldorf college, Forest City, for one year and St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn., one year.

Mr Carlsen graduated from Capron High school and from Luther college in 1959 and is attending Luther Theological seminary in St Paul. Mr and Mrs. Carlsen are making their home in St. Paul after a short honeymoon trip.

For traveling, Mrs. Carlsen chose a white brocaded sheath dress, white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

Mr and Mrs Enjar Carlsen and Mr and Mrs. Clarence Kirkendall gave a bridal dinner at the Blue Bell tea room after the rehearsal Friday night.

Pre-nuptial courtesies honoring Mrs Carlsen included: a miscellaneous shower given by her roommate, Joan Schneider, and Karen Jenson in the lounge of Hilliboe Hall, St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn.; a miscellaneous shower given her by the Ladies Aid of the Capron (Ill.) Lutheran church; and a kitchen shower for her at the Belmond library basement, given by Mrs. Glen Thompson, Mrs. Paul Dieger, Mrs. Ed Hopkey, Mrs. Duane Thompson and Mrs. Donald Thompson.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM R. JOHNSON

Mary Louise Carlson, Wm. R. Johnson Married at Stanhope church June 4th

Flower decked pedestal candelabra, banked by stands of palm leaves decorated the chancel and an all white arrangement of gladioli adorned the altar of Our Savior's Lutheran church at Stanhope for the wedding of Miss Mary Louise Carlson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs Walter E Carlson of Stanhope, and William R Johnson, son of Mr and Mrs. Oscar E Johnson of Kanawha.

The double-ring ceremony was solemnized Saturday evening, June 4, by the bride's father, assisted by Rev Arvild Jacobson of St Paul, Minn., cousin of the groom.

Emmett Olson of Stanhope as organist played the nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Richard Anderson of Stanhope as she sang "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden," "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Walter E Carlson, Jr., of Chicago, Ill., wore a floor-length gown of white imported Chantilly lace over nylon tulle and taffeta, styled with a full train. The fitted bodice was accented by a scalloped neckline of iridescent sequin-edged flowers and had long sleeves that ended in bridal points over the wrists. Her finger-tip veil of imported silk illusion fell from a lace and iridescent sequin crown. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, a gift of the groom. She carried her mother's wedding handkerchief. The bride's bouquet was an orchid with white stephanotis and white satin streamers on a white Bible, the latter a gift from her parents.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Donald Schroeder of Clarion. Bridesmaids were Shirley Stark of Stanhope and Carol Simonson of Rolfe. They were attired in identical bouffant dresses of French blue over taffeta with matching headbands and chapel veils. Their gloves and pearl earrings were gifts of the bride. They carried cascade bouquets of white majestic daisies.

Deborah Johnson of Cedar Rapids, niece of the groom, was fower girl. She was dressed in white and carried a basket containing an arrangement of white daisies.

James Johnson of Cedar Rapids served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Jeffrey Yeakel of Kanawha and Oliver Burton of Wichita, Kan. Ushers were Kenneth Nelson, Britt, and Richard Johnson, Kanawha, who also acted as candle-lighters, and Donald Schroeder, Clarion, brother-in-law of the bride.

All the men of the wedding party wore tuxedoes with white carnation boutonnieres. The groom's boutonniere was of white stephaotis.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Carlson was attired in a beige sheath dress of embroidered silk organza over taffeta with matching accessories. The groom's mother wore a blue silk dress with white accessories. Their corsages were of cymbidium orchids and white sweetheart roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors for 200 guests. Among those assisting were Mrs. Leland Jenison, cousin of the groom, and Mrs. L. V. Franke of Mason City, aunt of the groom, who served punch; also Mrs H. E. Evans of Rockwell and Arlotte Carlson of Clear Lake, aunts of the bride, who cut and served the cake.

The bride is a graduate of Waldorf college, Forest City, and for the past two years has taught in the Algona public schools. The groom is also a graduate of Waldorf college and is a representative of Lutheran Brotherhood Insurance Society of Minneapolis, Minn.

Mr and Mrs Johnson are now at home at 320½ E Main street in Belmond. Mrs. Johnson has signed a contract to teach in the Belmond Community school system during the coming school year.

IT PAYS TO FEED PURINA

A Group of Heifers in Demonstration

How the demonstration was run...

This is the third cattle feeding demonstration held by the Purina dealers of Wright and Hamilton counties. 52 head of Hereford Heifers were purchased Feb. 29th. These cattle were purchased at the Humboldt Sale Barn. They were acclimated cattle having been silage fed by Boyt farms at Dows. They were purchased by Clarion Farm Supply and Charles Simmons, local cattle feeder. The cattle were filled with hay and started on 2 lbs. of spec. steer fatena per day, and corn bunk fed. After 10 days the cattle were put on a self feeder. No hay was fed after the 1st two weeks. This controlled the roughage intake to 20% level to give faster and cheaper gains on these cattle.

All cattle were weighed by the Clarion Farm Supply and Charles Simmons every 28 days. The gain, feed cost and cost per pound of gain was published after each weighing. All Chows and other feed as well as Blackstrap molasses and grinding and mixing were figured at actual retail prices.

HERE ARE THE FINAL RESULTS FOR THE 104 DAY FEEDING PERIOD:

Beginning weight 2-29-60 657
Ending weight 6-13-60 939.17

Total Gain 14,594 lbs.—Ave. Daily Gain 2.70

If Loveless should get "Veep" nomination . . .

Political Writer George Mills of the Des Moines Register in an article last week broached an interesting line of conjecture based on the slight chance that Gov. Herschel Loveless might fall heir to the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

It's a possibility that Republicans are bound to regard with mixed emotions. First, it's hard to imagine offhand how a man so poorly qualified could warrant serious consideration for so important an office as that of Vice President of the United States. And because this is so, it is difficult for his home-staters of opposite political stripe to understand how an individual of Loveless' very modest calibre could POSSIBLY constitute an asset to the Democrats on their national slate.

All of this suggests that it might be to the advantage of the Republican party in Iowa, in particular, and the United States in general if the Ottumwa politico WERE "kicked upstairs," so to speak, if this should carry with it the likelihood that he would help defeat the national Democratic ticket rather than enhance its chances of success. He figures to be a tough man to beat for the vacated U. S. Senate post; so maybe the GOP should concentrate its hopes on having lightning strike Loveless with the "veep" nomination at Los Angeles this month.

That would leave it up to the state Democratic convention on July 23 to nominate a successor to Loveless as candidate for the U. S. Senate. Reporter Mills conjectures that the top prospects for the nomination would be Lt. Gov. E. J. McManus — present nominee for governor; or, perhaps even more likely, Rep. Merwin Coad, who is believed to have long-range senatorial aspirations anyway.

Pastor Coad has mastered the knack of avoiding logic when it stands in the way of political opportunity and consequently has deceived a good many of his constituents into believing that he's a shining knight for them in Washington. We suspect that if Loveless ever gets to Congress he will prove an opportunist of similar character; so that makes the horns of our theoretical dilemma all the more piercing.

It's REALLY enough to make a good Republican remember his religion to contemplate the forces of a cruel fate advancing Loveless from the vice presidency to the White House, with Coad readily available in the senate to offer dubious advice to the under-sized man in the over-sized job.

All of these horrifying prospects hinge on Sen. John Kennedy obtaining the Democratic presidential nomination and seeking a mid-western running mate to bolster the ticket. Mills quotes some of the Governor's Iowa henchmen as believing that he would do the Iowa Democrats' cause the most good on the state slate. This would seem to hint quite plainly that the midwest would NOT support Kennedy at the polls, even with a midwestern "native son" in the No. 2 spot.

Add it all up and it appears that the GOP's best chances in the fall might entail having a Kennedy-Loveless ticket to run against. But the situation would be a little too much like playing Russian roulette to suit serious-thinking Republicans. If the Kennedy-Loveless combination surprisingly turned out to be "loaded," what a hole-in-the-head it would represent to John Q. Public to have the likes of Herschel Loveless sitting one seat away from the president's chair!

Belmond's losing good servant in "Stu" Kutz

Recognizing that "you can't smell the posies when you're gone," we'd like to speak our respect of a man who has meant a good deal more to Belmond than most people realize. He will be leaving at the end of this month to take a new job at a very appreciable increase in salary — a step he could have taken several years ago, but decided against in his determination to see to completion an undertaking he had launched on here.

Stuart Kutz, as administrator of Belmond Community hospital for the past six years, has made a very solid contribution toward winning our hospital the enviable reputation it possesses as one of the best of its size you'll find ANYWHERE.

As administrator, "Stu" has proved himself a Jack-of-all-trades — and the MASTER of a good many of them. His skill as a personnel director has been demonstrated by the quality of the hospital staff he has acquired AND kept, despite the inability of the hospital to pay in many instances the amount of salary warranted by training and experience. He has exacted unusual loyalty from those working under him, by understanding the problems of each and helping to meet them, by unfailing cooperation — and by a sense of humor that often helped rocky times seem a little less rough than they were.

An emergency (other than one strictly medical) always found his personal attention available, regardless of the hour of day or night. At the same time, he trained his staff to possess a degree of self-sufficiency that could be envied by a large majority of small community hospitals.

"Stu" had periodic troubles with the city council, due to the perennial problem of a hospital the size of ours making ends meet. In his determination to see the hospital provide maximum service for the lowest practical cost, he was reluctant to see room rates raised. But at the council's urging this WAS done several times; and you would find "Stu" today ready to admit that the council's ceaseless prodding on finances sometimes had honest merit, when they did not impose upon technical areas of administration where lay misunderstanding is easy.

It had been "Stu's" hope to stick with his job here until the hospital was as nearly on a permanent even keel financially as the variable circumstances involved would allow. He honestly believed this desirable state of affairs was about to be reached last year, on the basis of the steadily rising patronage the hospital had been enjoying year by year. Then, for an unexplainable reason, not only did the rise in room occupancy level off but for a period it actually dropped — and "Stu's" hopes were dashed.

He has now decided that he can afford to wait out the situation no longer, with a growing family to whom he owes the benefits to be derived from a higher salary than it apparently seems feasible for the hospital here to pay. When he departs for Cedar Rapids three weeks hence, "Stu" will take with him the sincere good wishes of a great many friends, who realize all that he's done for Belmond and wish we had a lot more like him.

Wage bill just a political move

The Democratic majority on the House labor committee Thursday moved to provide more ammunition for stump speakers in the coming election campaign by approving a bill to raise the minimum wage and extend the coverage of the wage-hour law to retail and service businesses. All but two of the 19 votes favoring the bill were Democrats; all but one of the nine votes opposing it were by Republicans.

There is no disputing that legislation of this kind has strong election-year appeal in some quarters. Nor is there any disputing that it is the kind of legislation which, because of its far-reaching economic effects, should NOT be passed in an election year, when the desire of many Congressmen to snag additional votes tends to submerge their long-range judgment.

WHEN THE WAGE-HOUR LAW was passed originally, some 22 years ago, retail and service establishments were exempted from its provisions, on the sound reasoning that they are essentially local in nature and could not be regulated fairly from Washington. What would be reasonable wages and hours in Cedar Rapids or Belle Plaine would not necessarily be reasonable in New York or Los Angeles.

We know of nothing that has happened since 1938 that makes the reason for that exemption any less sound now than it was then. Nor, we suspect, do the members of congress who now favor eliminating it. Their misgivings about the extension of coverage now being proposed is evident in their limiting it at this time to retail and service establishments doing an annual business of a million dollars.

THIS, OF COURSE, IS SHEER subterfuge. Operators of smaller businesses know well enough that if their large competitors are required to pay a specified minimum wage it is only a matter of time until they will have to meet the same standard.

The proponents of this wage-hour extension include many whose hearts bleed for the small business man, to hear them tell it. Yet the legislation they propose would confront small businesses with another burden to add to the ample accumulation which already makes it hard for them to keep going.

The proposed higher wage floor would not increase the income of most workers, but it coud well eliminate the jobs of some in the low and high age groups who are now able to pick up a little income from work that wouldn't be done at all if it cost much more. — Cedar Rapids Gazette

Economic aggression? Castro hooey!

For months the United States has taken verbal abuse from Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba. Its consumers have continued paying nearly twice the world price for over 3,000,00 tons of Cuban sugar under a quota established to help the neighbor republic. Meanwhile Castro boasts of a trade deal in which Cuba sells sugar to the Soviet Union at less than the United States price and to be paid for partly in barter.

FURTHER, HE INVITES PREmier Khrushchev from Moscow to visit his capital just off the Florida coast; he sends emissaries to tell other Latin countries how Cuba is throwing off "Yankee imperialism"; and his lieutenants notify sugar companies owned in the United States that their land is being or will be taken over.

Now Secretary of State Herter meets with the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture to recommend, not that the Cuban sugar quota be ended or reduced, but that the President be given authority to modify it if that should prove desireable.

THIS, PROTESTS PREMIER Castro, is "economic aggression." He threatens to carry out the land takings that were already on the cards.

So if you have been buying vegetables from a neighbor who seemed to need the money, and have loaned him your cultivator which is still in his pea-patch, but now would prefer to take some of your onions from a neighbor who at least does not point you out to the neighborhood chidren as a person to throw rocks at—better go slowly; you may be committing "economic aggression." — Christian Science Monitor

VISIT TO THE SPRING—

A week ago Saturday, Ye Ed and his family set forth to track down the "boiling spring" on the former M. D. Sullivan (now H. F. Graeppler) property that has been referred to in this column the past couple of weeks.

We'd had assurances from Mary Rankins that she'd revisited the spring the day before and found it "boiling away" as has been its wont for many generations — perhaps for centuries.

Parking the car at the south end of the long cow pasture adjoining the river, we endeavored to follow Mary's skimpy directions to the site of the spring. She'd told us it lay "about due west of a red barn, some distance away." This direction proved accurate; but the walk must have covered more than half a mile — perhaps closer to three-quarters of a mile — before the spring's location was finally spotted at the head of a shallow rill that fed into the river.

The description of the spring that had been given us by Mrs. Rankins and by George Jenison, who had boyhood memories of visiting the spot, proved highy accurate.

Below a depth of perhaps eight or 10 inches of crystal clear, ice cold water the spring endlessly churns a mass of gray sand in a fashion that for some reason made us think of a witch's cauldron. It is a rather eerie sight; especially when one contemplates that a person sucked into that never-resting sand might sink hundreds of feet from sight before reaching the spring's deep source.

As the Belmond Herald of 50 years ago had mentioned, and as George Jenison had confirmed to yet be the case in his boyhood, the coarse, swirling sand (we dipped out a bucketful) was laden with tiny shells of a wide variety of types. Most were smaller than the head of a match (book kind); the largest, not much bigger.

Some of the shells were brightly metal-plated with a substance that had the appearance of chromium and obviously was a mineral of some natere. Others of the shells were completely uncoated and displayed their natural colors.

It is our plan to send a sample of the sand and the shells to the state geologist in hope of learning from what prehistoric era the contents of the spring may date. It would be our guess that the shells pre-date the dawn of human life on earth by many centuries, originating from the time when this area of the earth lay beneath a sea.

Beside that spring is a good place to get proper perspective on yourself and your troubles — and even on our world of today and the mess it's got itself into. We're all pretty small potatoes and few to the hill in the universal scheme of things, those turbulent waters so little changed by the years seem to suggest.

The world got along without man once before; and it could undoubtedy get along again, if man in his foolishness should bring such a state of affairs about.

BUFFALO DID ROAM—

Pursuing the matter introduced a couple of weeks ago in this column as to whether buffalo did or did not prevail in this area within the memory of early settlers, the Belmond Herald of July 6, 1910, had the following to say:

"Quite a number have dropped in to see the buffalo horn found last week by M. D. Sullivan. Mayor Cameron informs us that some buffalo were killed this side of Cedar Rapids in 1853 and that he ate some of the meat."

"M. S. Paige says that a buffalo was killed near Iowa Falls in 1863 and quite a herd went through there 10 years previous and seven or eight were killed by the Townsend boys. Let us hear from others."

THAT PARKING PROBLEM —

"Downtown parking" is a problem that is a continual hangnail on the hand of community progress . . . and we're just about convinced that it ALWAYS has been. Witness this observation from the Belmond Herald of 50 years ago:

"Roads leading to Belmond have been put in excellent condition by Supervisor Sulivan and Street Comm. Rankins and this is one good point in our favor. We notice, however, that on busy days the farmer often has to drive out into the suburbs to find a place to hitch his team. This matter should be looked after and enough convenient hitching posts should be put in to accommodate all who may wish to trade here."

The perennial bugaboo of store hours was viewed a bit differently five decades ago. One might gather that the stores were a bit more independent toward their competitors than they are today; for the Herald commented:

"We also believe that one or more general stores should be kept open during the evening, especially at this time of year for the convenience of those farmers who have to work during the day and can get to town only in the evening to buy their necessary suppies."

Know your businessmen—

Geo. Jenison has had P.O. job for 13 years

Last Friday marked the 13th anniversary of a Belmond "businessman" who conducts a $40,000 to $50,000 per year enterprise for the U. S. government. In 1959 it was rated as a First Class business. Because its income dropped last year by a slim $300, our subject's anniversary date (July 1) saw the rating of his business slip to Second Class.

As the accompanying picture makes clear (to say nothing of our story's heading), our "businessman" this week is Postmaster George Jenison. He was named to his present position Jan. 1, 1955, and was officially commissioned — after serving 15 months as "acting" postmaster — on April 6, 1956.

It was during his period of administration that the Belmond P. O. for the first time in its history achieved receipts in one year (1958) sufficiently high to acquire First Class rating. Because postage rates had gone up, an "adjusted" figure that was the equivalent of $40,000 at the old rates had to be reached in 1959 for First Class rating. This adjusted total was missed by the aforementioned measly $300.

Actually, the post office's return to Second Class hurt very little other than community pride. No salaries were affected or privileges withdrawn. In fact, one good customer—the General Mills plant —has benefited because the change in class permits the mailing of bigger and heavier parcel post packages than were acceptable before. But that's just because of a rather senseless quirk in the mail regulations, and nearly everybody concerned would — as a matter of pride — like to see that "First Class" attained once more.

In telling something about his "business," George advised The Independent that the P. O. has a lot more responsibilities than just handling mail. These adhere to it largely because it is the only federal agency in town. As a consequence, it is required to:

Accept postal saving accounts (at the existing 2% interest, these have almost become extinct, he admits); sell savings stamps, and documentary stamps (for paying federal tax on deeds, property transfers, securities, etc.), and migratory waterfowl stamps, and boating stamps (required on boats that have motors in excess of 10 hp and operate on navigable waters; some 15 or 20 stamps have thus far been sold).

Also, the post office makes registration forms available to aliens the early part of each year and receives them for forwarding to immigration authorities when they've been filled out; and the P. O. carries a supply of blanks for registering civilians and federal employees in event of atomic attack (to make possible a count of "who's left").

It's been three or four years since the post office had U. S. Savings Bonds among their "merchandise;" and they're happy enough to be rid of that added responsibility.

Describing how his "business" runs, George says the post office day starts when the mail messenger goes to the CGW depot for mail pick-up at 6:30 a. m. The first mail clerk shows up at 6:45 and a second at 7:00, when the local and rural carriers also check in. George makes his appearance about 7:30 o'clock.

Between the time sorting of incoming mail is started and it is either at last in the P. O. boxes or in carriers' pouches for delivery, an average morning will see some 5,000 to 7,000 pieces of first class mail worked, plus 500 daily papers, 7,000 pieces of third class mail and 150 parcels.

Clerks separate the incoming mail according to route and box section; then the carriers "rack" their own routes to get the mail in proper order for delivery. This procedure must get the local carriers started on their routes by 8:30 a. m. and the rural carriers out on their routes about 15 minutes later.

Postmaster Jenison says mail volume will vary from around the above average to as high as 12,000 outgoing letters (plus parcels) on a busy Yule season day along with 20,000 incoming letters, plus parcels. Those days keep EVERYBODY hopping.

George says, incidentally, that he's detected a very perceptible increase in the use of greeting cards during his 13 years as a postal employee. Christmas remains the No. 1 holiday from the standpoint of card mailings; but he reports that special days — especially Valentine Day and Mother's Day — see extraordinarily large mailings of cards.

One thing George wishes the public more widely realized regarding P. O. service. The post office receives AND dispatches mail 365 days per year. SOME employee works every day, regardless of holidays. Most businesses learn this and take advantage of it. But George believes it's one aspect of P. O. operation that many other persons aren't aware of — and which it would be to their benefit to know.

RENOVATED ALEXANDER REFORMED CHURCH AS IT APPEARS TODAY

Special services next Tuesday—

Dedication of Reformed church set

Tuesday of next week the Alexander Reformed church will dedicate its lately renovated building with a day of worship that will find services held morning, afternoon and evening.

At the 10:00 o'clock morning service of dedication, greetings from the Classis of Pleasant Prairie will be brought by Rev. Esdert Smidt, classis president and pastor of the Reformed church of Dumont.

Rev. B. T. Vander Woude, Jr., minister of Greenleafton Reformed church of Preston, Minn., will deliver the dedicatory sermon, "A Great Church Which Has Solid Foundations." It was during his term as pastor of the Alexander church that the need for renovating the church was examined and the decision reached to undertake the project.

Rev. Arend Roskamp, pastor of the Reformed church at Stout, Ia., and like Mr. Vander Woude a former pastor, will preach at the 2:30 p. m. service. He will take as his topic, "A Spiritual Superstructure."

Preacher for the evening service, starting at 7:30 o'clock, will be Rev. Neelo Boomgaarden, pastor of the Alexander church 1937-45, who is now minister of the Presbyterian church at Fullerton, Neb.

Since the time of its founding, the Alexander Reformed church has been served by nine ministers, including the present pastor, Rev. John H. Hoekstra, who was called in 1956. His predecessors were:

Rev. Fred Reeverts, 1902-08; Rev. J. H. Schoon, 1909-11; Rev. J. Schaeffer, 1911-18; Rev. W. G. Heyenga, 1920-26; Rev. J. B. Frerichs, 1927-36; Rev. Neelo J. Boomgaarden, 1937-45; Rev Arend Roskamp, 1946-48; Rev. B. T Vander Woude, Jr., 1948-55.

Following is a brief history of the Alexander church as prepared by Rev. John Hoekstra:

The burden of a Reformed congregation in Alexander was upon the hearts of a small group with Reformed background and Oostfriseche origin as early as the late 'nineties.

An May 8, 1896, this group met with two ministers of the classis, G. Veenher and D. Schaefer, for the purpose of the formation of a new church. On Jan. 12, 1900, this small church body was incorporated.

On February 20, 1900, a decision was made to build a small church structure, 28 by 42 feet. This building was dedicated on Dec. 23, 1900. It served until 1941, when a completely new 34x64-foot building was erected. The structure was constructed with buff-colored brick veneer exterior and with Nu-wood interior.

The congregation of the church initially was just 16 members. It now numbers 177 communicant members from 84 families.

The first Consistory consisted of four men. At present, six men serve that capacity and in addition three men are named as trustees.

The church now functions with Sunday school classes for every age, catechism, young people's choir as well as children's choirs, Young People's League, Women's Guild, and a Young Married Couples' club.

The first parsonage was purchased in 1902 and served that purpose unti it was destroyed by a tornado in 1925 Undaunted, the congregation quickly replaced the old parsonage with a modern dwelling at a cost of $5,000, together with a barn and garage. This parsonage is still in use.

From the church, one young man has been called to enter the ministry, Rev. J. Bonte.

Alexander jubilee proves Success from every angle

Last week's Diamond Jubilee celebration sponsored by Alexander Community club to observe the town's 75th anniversary was not only a success from the standpoint of attendance, but was also a financial success. Even after paying all prizes and other expenses of the event, the Community club enjoyed a good profit on the venture.

An estimated crowd of 4,000 witnessed the parade on Wednesday morning. Judges were Ed Gabrielson of Belmond, Mrs. Doris Nelson and Richard Schmidt of Latimer. First prize of $10 in the adult division went to the Reformed church; second, $5.00 to the Methodist church; and a tie was declared for third, $3.00 each being awarded to the Orville Arends family and the joint entry of Ellen Pals and Grace Richards.

There were four children's divisions, with prizes of $5.00, $3.00 and $2.00 given the first three place winners in each. Those winners were:

Historical entry — C. C. Schulte and grandchildren; Tom Hensel as Davey Crockett; Richard and Gary Blau.

Funniest entry — Jeffrie Jaacks and Christin Bryan, Mickey Mouse in stroller; Arnie and Jackie Dorenkamp; Arlyn and Daryl Pals.

Most original entry — Tom Latham, as country doctor of 1885; Barbara Card, Linda Schmidt, Brenda Bewett, Betty Vanness, Carla Pletsch, as old-time band; Annette Olson, lady with doll buggy.

Clown — Bob Avery of Rowan; Jimmy Eckhoff; Steven Smith.

At the old settlers' reception in the afternoon, Mrs. Jessie Latham of Hampton, former Alexander resident, served as toastmistress. Invocation was offered by Rev. John Hoekstra.

Music for the occasion was provided by the Harmony Four, a male quartet consisting of Calvin Schulte, Merlin Braun, Marlo Westaby and Leonard Schmidt. The Virginia Reel was danced by Mr. and Mrs. Hilko Pals, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Bruns, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Westaby, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jaacks, Grace Richards and Keith Myers.

Mrs. Lena Dusseldorf read a poem inspired by the Diamond Anniversary and Ray Green of Hampton, a native of Alexander, reminisced on earlier days of the community.

A skit representing a pioneer family on a Sunday afternoon was presented by the following: Mr and Mrs. Chris Larsen, Alexander's oldest married couple; Mrs. Fred Trager, organist; and as singers — Mrs. Henry Koenen, Joyce Karstens, Jerene Andrews, Darlene Myers, Anita Boelman, Vernon Modderman and Bill Latham.

Keen interest centered in the host of prizes given away on Wednesday evening. They went to the following: bushel of Pioneer seed corn, Clarence Stadtlander of Meservey and Bob Erickson (each); gallon of house paint, Roger Fekkers, Meservey; charcoal grill, Louise Johnson, Belmond; set of wrenches, Kevin Bohman, Alexander.

Electric peeler, Lucille Kramer, Belmond; bushel of Tomco seed corn, Howard Hanson of Rowan and Ernie Boelkes of Alexander (each); floor polisher, David Richards, Alexander; four bottles of hair oil, John Rodecap, Clarion; electric peeler, Paul Borcherding, Latimer; electric lamp, Richard Goeman, Belmond.

Transistor radio, Douglas Dorr, Belmond; 10 gallons Phillips gasoline, Ed Gabrielson, Belmond; steam iron, Harry Lucas, Cedar Falls; gallon thermos jug, Emil Polmateer, Hampton, power lawnmower, Bud Fisher, Latimer; Go-Cart Special, Alice Suntken, Alexander.

Several members of the Community club assembled down town early Thursday morning and set about cleaning up the streets. By 9:00 a.m. everything was so spick and span that no indication was left that the town had just been through a three-day celebration.

The planning committee had a special word of appreciation for the carnival troupe, declaring "a finer bunch of people couldn't be found." They did an excellent job of taking care of their own trash and conducted themselves in commendable fashion throughout their stay in Alexander.

HOW Republicanism WAS BORN

July 4, 1860 — "The newly organized Republican Party has nominated Abraham Lincoln of Illinois as its candidate for president. This unlettered son of the west is given little chance in the race against his distinguished opponent, Stephen A. Douglas."

History has shown that the people made the right choice.

Lincoln, homespun and self-educated, directed the course of our country through its most critical years.

He believed in government "of the people, by the people, for the people."

Let each of us seek his responsibility as a citizen in this critical year of 1960 and work FOR and IN his party for that same, high ideal.

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

It'll be all right, hereafter, if you young people along Main street whom the middle Mainstreeter calls on hold the door open for him . . . see that he has a place to sit, during his stop . . . and otherwise show him the respect and consideration due the elderly. Dick's a grandpa, you'll note in this week's "Hello World," and thus acquires the prerogatives attaching to this dignified estate. The Mainstreeters fore and aft wish in this public manner to acknowledge the attainment of grandparenthood by Dick and Mrs. G. and to offer their heartiest congratulations to them, and to daughter Margo and her husband, Roger Brockmeyer.

An adimrer of the Belmond High school band and its director, Maurice Fahrney, suggests that the musicians and their leader are not given the credit that is their just due for faithful participation in civic events. That is undoubtedly true. This fine musical group is too much taken for granted.

Whenever the band is called on to march in a parade, provide music for a community function, or provide individuals and groups of instrumentalists for entertainments, a refusal is unheard of.

Typical was the band's ready willingness to march in the 4th of July parade; and an ensemble of band members also appeared in the preceding night's amateur show. Don't forget the Wednesday night concerts at the park (8:00 to 8:45 o'clock) that will continue through next week and that following.

Rev. R. A. Ormsby was to be leaving Monday from New York City on the European tour his parishoners are financing for him. As matters turned out, however, he was unable to leave as scheduled due to inability to obtain substitutes to fill the pulpit at St. Francis and St. Mary's churches for all of the eight weeks he would have been gone. His tour has only been delayed, though; not cancelled. He intends now to leave sometime this fall — probably late September or early October. And he adds philosophically, "I hear Europe is much pleasanter then, anyway."

A distinct honor came to Ronnie Heykants on the basis of the grade he received in music theory, which musicians at the All-State Music Camp studied in addition to participation in band, orchestra or chorus. Ronnie has learned that his score of 248 was the second-highest awarded during the two week session at Iowa City. Median score for all the young people graded was 136.

Bear in mind that $2 bills are just the opposite of bad luck in Belmond stores this weekend. Hundreds of the traditionally unlucky bills have been given out in change and serial numbers from 250 of them will be good for trade credit in the stores where the lucky numbers are posted. No purchases necessary to play THIS game of "deuces wild."

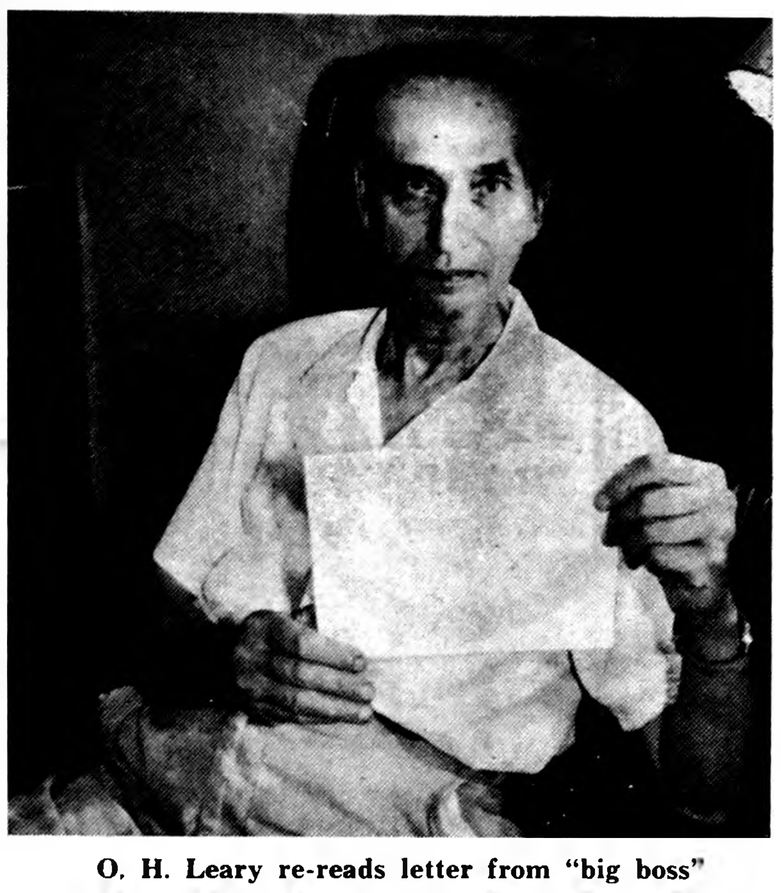
Future Farmers plan safety drive

Belmond High school's Friendly Service chapter of the Future Farmers of America is taking part in a nationwide program to prevent accidents to farm people resulting for carelessness with power units on the farm.

During the Safe Farm Power Use program, members of the Belmond FFA Chapter will try to visit every farm family in the community. They will review the various safety precautions necessary for safe operation of tractors, machinery and other power equipment, and point to the fact that safety is a family responsibility.

A cartoon type quiz will be left for the family to try and find all of the farm power hazards in the cartoon. Following the first visit, chapter members will return with the right answers for the cartoon and will leave a safety centerpiece printed with safety messages for the entire farm family.

"Farm equipment is designed for safe operation, but the operator must follow safe operating rules," says Allan Payne president of the Belmond FFA chapter.



O. H. Leary re-reads letter from "big boss"

• • • • • •

Leary's telegraph key silent—

55-yr. railroad career concluded

O. H. Leary, Minneapolis & St. Louis station agent here for nearly 26 years, is taking his ease these days. Last month he retired after 55 years as an employee of the M. & St. L. and its predecessor, the Iowa Central.

His retirement was recognized by a long and cordial letter from the M. & St. L. general superintendent, F. B Clark of Minneapolis, who commended Mr. Leary for "the many years of fine service you have given us."

Mr. Leary was only 14 years old when he was first employed by the railroad he gave loyalty to for more than half a century. It was in June of 1905 that he got his first M. & St. L. job as a section hand at Newton.

When he was but 19 years old he was promoted to section foreman at Sully. Early the next year he moved "inside the depot" when he was assigned to the roadmaster's office at Oskaloosa as a clerk.

Practically from the time he first started drawing railroad pay, the young railroader had been preparing himself for a station agent's assignment by practicing telegraphy. Consequently, he was a master of the dots and dashes when the opportunity to become a telegrapher opened up at New Sharon in the fall of 1910. It was four years later that he took the step up to station agent — at Taintor.

Mr. Leary's next assignment was as agent at Ollie, a job he held for 19 years before moving to Belmond on Aug. 6, 1934. Up to his retirement, he had served as agent here for almost 26 years without a break — except for three months at Newton in 1940.

Mrs. Leary "just plain didn't like Newton," which led to the couple's prompt return to Belmond.

During his more than 50 years of railroading, Mr. Leary saw passenger service decline to the point where today the M. & St. L. has become exclusively a freight line. He says that it was only in the past week or so that the Interstate Commerce Commission gave the M. & St. L. permission to end passenger operation on its Minneapolis to Watertown (S. D.) line, the last to convert completely to freight.

The veteran railroadman remembers vividly when General Mills moved to town, taking over the old sugar plant. In its first month of operation, in the fall of '44, one carload of soybeans was freighted in for GMI's use. In May, the last full month before his retirement, the three rail lines that serve Belmond (M. & St. L. switches cars to the soybean processing plant for all of them) brought in 666 carloads of beans — in spite of the fact that a good share of General Mills' grain now comes in via truck.

Thanks to "the General," the M. & St. L. depot here does a good, steady million dollars worth of business a year, which makes it somewhat of a jewel in the crown of existing small-town stations that the railroad continues to maintain.

One change, above all others, that Mr. Leary has regretted in railroading is the substitution of raucous diesels for the old steam engine. Like many another old-timer, he thinks the blat of the diesel horn is a mighty poor exchange for the lonely, romantic and melodious whistle of the "iron horse."

In "the old days," Mr. Leary recalls, the small-town station agent was almost inevitably a "big wheel" in the community. He served as mayor or on the council, on the school board, and in numerous other responsible capacities. He was also a much depended upon source of general information and could always be depended upon for hand tools and the muscle to help operate them.

Now that he's abandoned his telegraph key, Mr. Leary has no definite plans for the future. For the time being, at least, he says he intends simply to catch up on his fishing and to take things easy.

Faithful seeker finds "gold"

One of Cash Gift Day's most faithful participants finally had her loyalty rewarded Tuesday afternoon of this week with a $25 prize. The award went to Mrs. Park E. Miller of Goodell, who had "come close" on several earlier occasions but for the first time had the exact combination of numbers good for a pay-off. She was the only winner this week, however; the remaining $375 went unclaimed when holders of the other winning numbers failed to present them. Next week's prize total will continue at the $400 level, divided into eight $25 awards at 2:00 p. m. and four $50's at 3:00 o'clock.

Californian dies at local motel

Richard Krause, 69, of Lakewood, Calif., suffered a fatal heart attack about 4:00 a.m. Tuesday while staying overnight at the Hill Motel. His wife and son were traveling with him.

Mrs. Krause had asked that a doctor be called when her husband was stricken, but he died before medical aid could arrive. Johnston Funeral Home was summoned to prepare the body for shipment to California.

All-Vet fun fest Friday, Saturday

Annual All-Vets Celebration sponsored jointly by the local posts of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars will be held tomorrow and Saturday, featuring the Royal United Shows. People of this vicinity will be familiar with the major carnival through its appearances at the North Iowa Fair, Mason City.

Twelve rides and 20 concessions will be offered by Royal United, whose midway will be set up on the school grounds near the shop building and bus barn where the July 4th carnival was held.

Four free shows are included in the entertainment that will be offered, each of one-hour length and featuring five acts that have been viewed at one time or another on television. These showings will be at 2:00 and 8:00 p.m. on both Friday and Saturday.

Another feature of the All-Vets Celebration will be the traditional races for the kiddies Saturday at 10:00 a.m. at the school athletic field, with cash prizes for the winners.

Saturday evening will find the customary dance at Veterans' Memorial hall. Duane Berley's band will provide the music.

Elliott will spend year in california as pastorial intern

Dick Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Elliott, the first of this month launched on his junior year of ministerial training which will take the form of a pastoral internship served at Sacramento, Calif. There he will serve on the staff of the Church of the Good Shepherd, of the Lutheran denomination.

He and his wife and 20-month-old daughter, Kathryn Leslie, are living for two months in the lovely home of a parishoner absent on vacation. They were cordially welcomed by the Good Shepherd congregation and women of the church completely stocked the kitchen with groceries and other essentials upon the Elliotts' arrival.

A 1951 graduate of BHS and 1955 graduate of St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn., Dick entered ministerial training after two years of military service. He is enrolled for his clerical studies at Luther Theological Seminary at St. Paul, Minn.

After this year of internship he will return for his senior year at the seminary and will be qualified for ordination as a Lutheran minister in the summer of 1962.

Honors presented by Kutz—

Five hospital veterans given pins

Five employees of Belmond Community hospital who have completed five years on the hospital staff were honored this week with service pins presented by Administrator Stuart Kutz.

Mr. Kutz established the practice of awarding pins for service when the hospital attained its fifth anniversary three years ago. Seventeen persons currently attached to the hospital staff can now boast five or more years of service.

Guests at a dinner party Monday evening at the Kutz home, at which time they received their five-year pins, were: Marilyn Johnson, office manager, who several weeks ago was elected president of the Iowa Association of Hospital Accountants.

Mrs. Dick (Eva) Roberts, registered nurse; Mrs. Paul (Marian) Lee and Mrs. Leslie (Carol) Tripp, nurse's aides. Each of the latter three was accompanied by her husband.

Unable to be present at the dinner were Mrs. Lawrence (Corrine) Kelley, kitchen helper, and her husband.

Non-hospital guests at the courtesy extended the hospital veterans were Editor and Mrs. J. R. Gallagher.

At the end of this month, Mr. Kutz is to report at Cedar Rapids' St. Luke's hospital to take up the duties of controller. He says he took special satisfaction in recognizing this year's five-year veterans because all were either originally hired by him or taken on as full-time employees under his administration.

Mr. Kutz added that the hospital staff takes great pride in the average, long tenure of its members, knowing that few comparable hospital's can point to similar loyalty among their employees as indicated by average length of service.

• • • • • •

BRINGING TO 17 the number of Belmond Community hospital employees who have been on the hospital staff for five or more years, the four shown below (and another unable to be present) this week received five-year pins from Administrator Stuart Kutz. Pictured are Carol Tripp, Marian Lee, Marilyn Johnson, Eva Roberts and Mr. Kutz. Missing when the photo was taken was Corrine Kelley.

Kirkendall Sunset Drive neighbors request inclusion in paving plans

Evidences of determined plans on the part of the city council to undertake a major, hard-surfacing street program next year were climaxed last weekend by property-owners on Sunset Drive, who submitted a petition to the city council asking that the street in Kirkendall Addition be included in such plans as are being laid.

First hint that the council intends to preserve its place in Belmond history by actually doing something to improve permanently some of the city's most heavily traveled streets appeared in April 6 minutes of the governing body, this past spring.

Those minutes stated, "With a view toward a major hard-surfacing program for next spring, it was agreed to hold street work (during 1960) to that of patching and oiling to that extent that we use the oiler truck to bring oil as needed instead of stocking in the rental tank."

Surveying work done

This was a tip-off that street work during the current summer months would be restricted to the barest minimum of basic maintenance in order to build up the street fund for bigger things.

Further evidence that the council is making specific plans for a surfacing program next year was offered by surveying work that has been done in recent weeks on Belmond's most heavily traveled thoroughfares.

These indications that next year will be a "paving year" in Belmond were not lost on the Kirkendall Addition residents along Sunset Drive, who this spring had shown a lively interest in obtaining curb-and-gutter along their properties.

21 sign petition

R. H. Gowdy, who spearheaded the Kirkendall move, reports that every propertyowner who has a lot abutting on Sunset Drive — 21 in all — signed the petition asking the councilmen "that you include all of Sunset Drive in the proposed curb and gutter and paving program for the city streets" of Belmond.

Questioned by The Independent as to what the city administration might be willing to divulge at this time regarding the proposed surfacing program, Mayor L. T. Trafford said this week:

"It appears to be the council's resolute intention to pave next summer those streets that are the greatest maintenance problem due to the large volume of traffic they regularly carry."

Two priority classes

He explained that the city fathers have set up priority classes into which these most heavily traveled streets are being placed. In the A-1 category will be put those blocks that the administration is determined to see paved, even if some objections are registered.

Mayor Trafford notes in this regard, that it is the councilmen's belief that complaints should be relatively few in number because the need for hard-surfacing these particular streets is so very apparent.

Into the second category will be put streets next in line of priority, from the standpoint of use; and petitions from property-owners on these blocks will be cordially received for their inclusion in the 1961 paving program.

Other petitions invited

Such additional streets as Sunset Drive, not included in the high priority groups, will be worked into the program, according to Mayor Trafford, if a high percentage of the property-owners involved petition for their inclusion.

"One thing should be kept in mind by neighborhood groups discussing the possibility of petitioning for paving," the mayor emphasized. "Assessments for the paving cost may be amortized over a period of 10 years, if convenieently low payments are desired. Payments amortized on this basis should work a hardship on hardly any propertyowners."

Discussion encouraged

While the paving plans are for obvious reasons necessarily tentative at this time, the council's preliminary study of the proposed project suggested that possibly two and a half dozen blocks might be placed in the A-1 priority class. They would comprise the nucleus of the project.

"Because money to meet the city's share of the cost of this program will be definitely limited," Mayor Trafford observed, "it is not too soon for interested groups to be doing some talking in regard to their own blocks. For beyond the basic streets, early petitioning by such groups as the Kirkendall neighbors will earn first consideration for inclusion in the project."

City Clerk Lois Hammond receives petition from R. H. Gowdy

Sportsman's club will hold annual Kids' Fish Derby Friday afternoon

Plans for the Sportsman's club annual Kids' Fish Derby ran into a temporary obstacle this weeek when it was discovered that the pond at Oscar Nelson's gravel pit used for thee past several year's would not suffice as a site this time because of excessive moss and weeds.

With this coming Friday scheduled as the date for the fish day, some hurry-up investigating had to be done to find a satisfactory spot for the derby. Chuck Walrod, Sportsman's president, finally succeeded in obtaining the pool in the pasture of George Eckhoff's farm or the event.

This pool lies between two dams that the Sportsman's club built a couple of years or so ago and is located two miles north and a half mile west of town. Glenn Musselman and Bill Walrod, who have been supervising preparations for the derby, say the club is deeply appreciative of Mr. Eckhoff's willingness to offer this site for the fish day fun.

This year no arrangements have been made for stocking the derby site with state-supplied bullheads. But the Fish Day chairmen say the Eckhoff pool is amply supplied with bass, carp, suckers and other varieties which should supply the derby participants with some lively sport.

Youngsters are asked to be on hand Friday at 1:30 p.m. to register. The one hour of contest fishing will start at 2:00 o'clock. There will be prizes for the most fish, smallest fish and largest fish reported in three age groups — six through eight, nine through 12 and 13 through 16. There will be separate divisions for boys and girls in each group.

A number of other prizes will also be awarded, including awards for the best Huck Finn costumes; and there will be free refreshments for all children registered for the Fish Derby.

Contestants will be expected to do their own fishing and to be equipped with a cane pole and the bait of their choice. No rods-and-reels are allowed. Parents will be welcome to observe, and there will be plenty of parking space near the fishing site for spectators' cars.

President Walrod expresses the Sportsman members' sincere appreciation for the very willing cooperation given the Fish Derby by Belmond business firms. A total of 85 gave either merchandise or cash donations — largely the latter — to provide prizes for the derby winners and finance the refreshments.

New Spahn-Rose manager takes over his duties

Active managment of Spahn and Rose lumberyard here was assumed Tuesday of last week by Claude Smith, who cames to Belmond from Shell Rock. This is his first employment with Spahn and Rose, but he has had 4½ year's experience in lumberyard management.

Mr. Smith was proprietor of a drug store at Plainfield when he accepted a part-time job doing bookkeeping for the Eclipse Lumber company. In due time he left operation of the store to his wife and accepted full-time employment with the lumber firm, advancing to assistant manager.

After three years at Plainfield an Eclipse managership opened up at Shell Rock and Claude was chosen to fill the opening. He resigned that position to accept the job with Spahn and Rose here.

The Smith's are living in the Spahn and Rose home at 215 Luick's Lane that Russell Wood, the former manager, occupied before departing from Belmond. They have three children — Joy, 11; Linda, eight; and Kenneth, four. The Smiths are members of the Methodist church.

Coronary attack fatal to farmer after accident

Lawrence Retleff, 59, Rowan farmer died Wednesday afternoon of last week at Belmond Community hospital about five hours after he had been injured in a tractor accident.

Although he had suffered a fractured pelvis when the tractor had tipped over while he was mowing a roadside ditch, his death was attributed to a coronary attack.

He had suffered another such attack some time ago. He appeared to be making satisfactory recovery from his injury when his death occurred very suddenly.

Services for Mr. Retleff were held Saturday at Eyler Funeral Home, Clarion, with Rev. R. H. Jackson of the Rowan Methodist church officiating. Burial was in Graceland cemetery at Rowan.

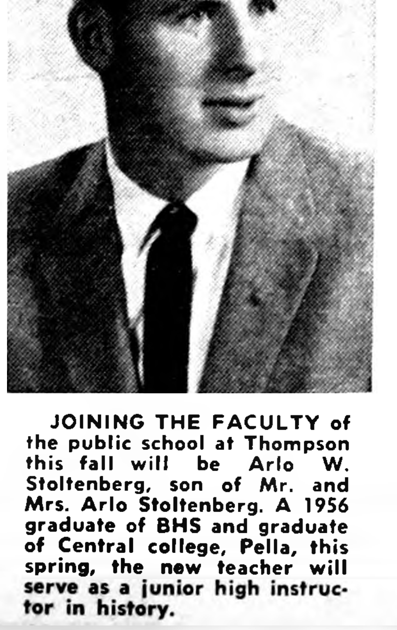
Third place went to Regina Sheffield of Clarion, fourth to Marie Johnson of Kanawha — and another Belmondite, Mary Lou Eckhoff, had fifth low net score.

Winners of golf prizes on a straight medal play basis included Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Eckhoff from among the handicap winners, and Mary Bonnstetter of Kanawha.

Evelyn Firkins of Dows was the winner of high score based on the afternoon's bridge play, and second high score was turned in by Louise Linebarger of Clarion.



JOINING THE FACULTY of the public school at Thompson this fall will be Arlo W. Stoltenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arlo Stoltenberg. A 1956 graduate of BHS and graduate of Central college, Pella, this spring, the new teacher will serve as a junior high instructor in history.

JACOBSONS LEAVE MONDAY FOR MADAGASCAR MISSION

Rev. and Mrs. Arvild Jacobson and family of St. Paul, Minn., spent the weekend with her mother, Mrs. G. O. Mona, and other relatives. They leave by plane July 18 for a new mission post in Madagascar for a five year term, their second.

The Jacobsons will be going back with four children, having adopted two children, Rolfe and Lisa, on their trip to the United States for their year's leave which is now up. Their two older children, Neoma and Daniel, were adopted also in Germany on their parents' first trip to the mission in Madagascar.

Clear Lake man fatally injured east of Goodell

One man was fatally injured and two youths were hospitalized as a result of a collision Tuesday about 5:00 p.m. at a county road intersection five miles east and one north of Goodell.

Dead of his injuries before he could be taken by ambulance to Belmond Community hospital was Robert Garlock, 31, of Clear Lake. Patrolman Elmer Angle of Garner, investigating officer, understood Garlock was a filling station proprietor at Clear Lake.

Delbert Pals, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Pals of Meservey, was driver of the car with which Garlock's collided. Young Pals was brought to the Belmond hospital, where he was reported Wednesday morning to be recovering satisfactorily.

More seriously hurt was Pals' 15-year-old campanion, Ronald Graves of rural route No. 3, Mason City. He was taken to Mercy hospital, Mason City, where preliminary examination disclosed a fractured arm, possible skull fracture and possible broken ribs.

Garlock, who was traveling alone, was driving west at the time of the accident. Young Pals was driving south. Patrolman Angle informed The Independent on Tuesday evening that he didn't plan filing any charges against the surviving driver, who had the right-of-way at the time the cars collided.

ARKANSAS GUESTS LEAVE

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Welsch and boys left Friday for their home at Blytheville, Ark., after spending several days in the parental Helge Eide and Mrs. Ruth Welsh homes, the latter at Mason City.

CALIFORNIA VISITORS

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Brooks and Harold of Torrance, Calif., left Monday morning after a week's visit with his mother, Mrs. Amanda Brooks.

EIDES BACK HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Helge Eide returned July 1st from Norway after visiting there for several months. While there, they celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on May 30th with relatives and friends. They report they received many telegrams, cards and gifts.

How good is your memory?

Going through some old engravings in The Independent's files recently, it occurred to Ye Ed that some mighty interesting tests of memory lie in those cabinet drawers. Even pictures printed only 10 years ago differ greatly from the subject today, if said subject were a child of school age at the time.

Here, we thought, is the makin's of a regular feature that would possess exceptionally high readership.

While considering whose picture we should start with, a snapshot was submitted to us which — because its subjects were since the start of the current month prominently featured in front page news — we regarded would make a perfect No. 1 to inaugurate this proposed feature.

It should be obvious that the two young ladies pictured herewith have been close friends since their earliest days (they were between seven and eight months old when "snapped" above).

Their friendship has continued on an intimate plane through the years and when they recently "made news" together it easily stood a test that might have strained affection less long-standing and whole-souled than they hold for each other.

Subsequent pictures in this series will be taken from The Independent's engraving files.

If you give up on the identity of the pair shown here — or wish to confirm your guess as to who they are — you will find their names on page seven.

"STEADY AS YOU GO, and watch out for the toes" was the word as eight new alleys went into position last Thursday at Bowl-Mor Lanes. As 22 friends of Proprietor Gene Pearson settled the big wood slabs into position, one young chap DID let the first one recline on his toe and had to be rescued. The alleys are built on edge (see one standing at right) and have to be in just the right position, for when they're lowered there's no moving them about thereafter.

Bowl-Mor remodeling progresses—

New alleys in; pin machines next

Remodeling and modernization of Bowl-Mor Lanes reached a major milestone last Thursday when the eight new alleys that will serve Bowl-Mor customers next season were lowered into place.

"Mitch" DeMars, foreman for the Modern Bowling Supply company of St. Paul which has the contract for equipping the local pin emporium, was overseeer of the building of the alleys.

It takes 65 pounds of nails to hammer together the large 76-foot by 42-inch slabs of wood that comprise the new alleys. These slabs are built on edge — and it requires some expert carpentry to put them together.

From the back edge of the alley approach to the point of the "spot" arrow is 36 feet of hard maple. This dovetails into 36 feet of pine; then the last four feet,serving as the pin deck, is of hard maple.

When construction of the alleys is completed, around Aug. 1, American Machine Foundry automatic pin setters will be installed Wider by the width o ftwo alleys, the entire Bowl-Mor building is being revamped and facilities will be new virtually throughout the establishment.

A new entrance has been built, opening at the north end of the west side A new and larger lunch counter will extend from north to south at the west end.

Progress in the rebuilding of Bowl-Mor Lanes was interrupted last weekend when a combination of a severe cold and leg infection put Foreman DeMars in the hospital.

On Tuesday, a sanding gang from St Paul was to move in to smooth off the alleys; but DeMars' sickness made it necessary to postpone this operation until Monday of next week.

Otherwise, the remodeling has been progressing on schedule and Gene and Dorothy Pearson promise that the start of the 1960-61 bowling season will see league members at the Bowl-Mor equipped with as fine a set of alleys as can be found in this part of the state.

20-16 midget tilt not finished yet at 10:30 o'clock

After 36 runs had been scored in just four innings, the count standing at Yankees 20 and Braves 16, last Friday night's midget ball game was called at 10:30 o'clock for continuation this week. It was something less than a pitchers' duel as Jerry Soma's Yankees overcame an early lead held by Keith Sheller's Braves. Young Soma helped his team's rally with a grand slam homer.

Wayne Smith's Pirates broke away from a 6-6 first inning tie in the peewee fray the same evening to win in the third frame, 20 to 8, on the 12-run rule. Captain Kenny Eygabroad went the route for the Red Sox, allowing eight hits — including three home runs — and walking 11.

Lee Barkema relieved Steve Courson for the Pirates in the second inning and allowed only two hits, one of them a homer by Terry Nelson.

Craig Boller's Indians won Tuesday night's midget game last week from Soma's Yankees on the 12-run rule, 17 to 5, in 3½ innings. Ed Olsen wound things up by slamming a four-bagger that brought in the final four runs.

In the Tuesday night peewee game, Jim Dickson's Cardinals won a 12-9 decision from Keith Boller's Cubs after the Cubs had held a 7-4 lead at the end of the first inning. Pitcher Rick Hawley tallied four of the victors' runs, hit a homer, and picked off three runners at 1st base. Donny Havens, the Cubs' hurler, gave up only six hits but allowed nine walks

The preceding Friday's peewee game, not previously reported, found the Cubs trimming the Pirates 15-9, as neither Lee Barkema nor Jerry Smith were able to contain the Cub batters.

C. Norrises buy Minnesota resort

When Mr. and Mrs. Charles Norris, former Belmond residents, recently went vacationing on Echo Lake a short distance from the U. They were accompanied by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Sharp, who like the Norrisies live in Clear Lake.

It was lunkers like the 6½-lb. walleye that Mrs. (Bonnie) Sharp caught and displays above that convinced Mr. and Mrs. Norris that they were on the right track in their search for a resort property.

They looked over Trail's End resort on Echo Lake (they were unable to get a cottage there), which they knew to be for sale, and decided they need hunt no further.

Before they returned home, the deal for its purchase had been completed and an agreement reached that they would take possession next Monday, July 18 The Norrises hope their Belmond friends will remember them when they're looking for some good fishing.

Wright county ASC reports—

ACP aided 166 farms last year

Many Wright county farmers are now using or have used the federal government's cost-sharing agricultural conservation program (ACP) to help them to control or solve their soil and water conservation problems, according to the county ASC committee.

Cost-sharing practices were established in 1959 on 166 farms or eight per cent of all farms in the county. A total of 96 farmers of the county have already filed applications to participate in the program this year.

Pointing out that more applications can be handled, the committee emphasized that all farmers are eligible to apply and urged any who have conservation problems to obtain complete information at the county ASC office in Clarion.

"Unfavorable weather conditions have slowed up some of the farm conservation work planned for this spring," ASC chairman H. B. Vanderlip notes, "but there is plenty of time to carry out many needed practices before the end of the year."

"We hope farmers will check up on their conservation problems and file applications for needed practices at the earliest possible time so that they will be ready to start work as soon as weather conditions are favorable."

Under the ASC plan, the government pays about 50 per cent of the cost of establishing most practices. A higher percentage is paid for certain practices which have a comparatively high initial cost or provide benefits which are spread over a period of years.

One requirement to qualify for cost-sharing is that an application must be filed at the county ASC office before work on the needed practice is started.

Following is a summary of farm conservation work carried out in Wright county in 1959 under the cost-sharing program:

Tile drainage aggregating 21,932 feet and serving 484 acres was installed by 102 farms; 28 farms distributed 1,630 tons of liming materials; 24 farms drilled livestock wells; 17 farms constructed 20 outlet pipes; seven farms contoured a total of 308 acres; four farms created 15,900 square feet of sod waterways; four farms created two acres of standard terrace.

Two farms initiated the establishment of trees on area aggregating one acre; two farms built erosion dams; and the following practices completed by one farm, each — established permanent cover on 35 acres; added 40 acres of permanent cover; built livestock pond; built open drainage accommodating six acres; installed surface drainage on five acres; raised green manure on 10 acres.

Defendants

TO: THE AFORESAID DEFENDANTS:

You are hereby notified that Plaintiffs' Petition in the above entitled cause is now on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court, claiming in substance that Plaintiffs are Trustees of the Fred Luick and Alice Luick Memorial Building Trust; the City of Belmond is a municipal corporation located in Wright County, Iowa; Belmond Community School District is a municipal corporation operating public schools in Wright and Hancock Counties, Iowa; R. E. Lee Aldrich, Jr., resides in Wright County, Iowa, and represents a class of persons who will benefit from the construction and use of a memorial building in the City of Belmond, Iowa. The electors of the Belmond Community School District voted November 4, 1959, to authorize the issuance of bonds for the construction of a new high school building, and subsequently the Board of Education of Belmond Community School District took legal steps to proceed with the construction of said high school building. Plaintiffs desire to carry out the terms of the Fred Luick and Alice Luick Memorial Building Trust with respect to the construction and equipping of a memorial building, but are uncertain as to the proper manner of so doing and request a declaratory judgment with respect to the rights of the Plaintiffs and the Defendants. You are also notified to appear before said Court at Clarion in Wright County, Iowa, on or before August 4, 1960; and that unless you so appear, your default will be entered and judgment or decree rendered against you for the relief demanded in said petition.

FAMILY PUTS 2,000 MILES A MONTH ON CORVAIR THINKS IT'S MARVELOUS

GAS MILEAGE "OUT OF THIS WORLD"

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kahelin of Plant City, Florida, couldn't be happier with the way their new Corvair has worked out as a combination family and business car. On their newspaper distribution route alone they travel more than 400 miles a week over all kinds of roads. Little wonder they're so pleased with the gas mileage they've been getting —"at least twenty-three miles to the gallon with an automatic transmission . . . and we've had no trouble with our Corvair." The Kahelins have equally good things to say about Corvair's easy-going comfort and unique convenience features. They especially like the way the fold-down seat doubles as a built-in baby sitter.

Film Highlights

—from—

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Something distinctly new in western action thrillers is "Heller in Pink Tights," which tells the story of a traveling theater troupe touring the frontier during the '80s. Sophia Loren plays the eye-popping, show-stopping glamor gal who had those frontiersmen sitting on the edges of their seats.

This comedy-drama brings Margaret O'Brien back to the screen after an absence of four years (she's now the ripe old age of 21).

"Heller in Pink Tights" authentically recreates the nineteenth century stage in flaring gaslight, bold costumes, moving scenery and grinding treadmills that only grandma and grandpa will possibly remember. A fine cast including Anthony Quinn, Steve Forrest and Eileen Heckart presents "Heller" Thursday through Saturday.

"Visit to a Small Planet" had 'em rolling in the aisles when it appeared on Broadway as a play. With Jerry Lewis as the visitor from space, the film is just as completely a flying saucerful of fun. Even movie goers who don't generally regard Lewis as their cup of tea will find this one hilarious, the New Belmond's management sincerely believes. It's showing Sunday through Wednesday.

Rev. John Hoekstra officiated over the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Keith Madsen of Belmond served her cousin as matron of honor and best man was Ronald Vanness, brother of the groom. Attending summer school—

Dorothy Barkema in Mexico City

• • • • • •

MEXICO CITY (Special) Many new experiences — both academic and cultural — are being enjoyed by Dorothy Barkema of Alexander, Ia, who is a student this summer at Mexico City college. Mexico, justly famous as a great tourist center, also attracts many forgien students to its capital through Mexico City college, the liberal arts American-type college just outside Mexico City.

The college was chartered only 20 years ago and has grown from one room with five students to a scenic campus with an enrollment of around 1,000 students.

MCC, a unique institution in Latin America with full accreditation as a member of the Southern Association of U.S. Colleges, offers all classes in English requisite for the B.A. and M.A. degrees.

The faculty is composed of scholars from 10 different countries. Departments include foreign trade, anthropology, art, Spanish and creative writing.

Miss Barkema, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Barkema of Alexander, graduated from Alexander Consolidated High school. Since then she has been a student at Central college, Pella. She is a member of a group of students from Central who are studying Spanish at Mexico City College this summer.

In Mexico City, as well as throughout the Republic, there are diversions to suit any taste. Museums, art galleries and concerts abound in the city. For the sports-minded, Mexico offers horse-racing jai Alai and bullfighting.

Many unusual and picturesque resorts are located nearby and on both coasts. MCC students will take a number of college-sponsored trips this summer to downtown Mexico City museums, and visit Cuernavaca and Tepoztlan, Patzcuaro, Morelia and Janitzio, Acapulco, Oaxaca and Mitla, and the pyramids of San Juan Teotihuacan.

MRS. H. B. JANSSEN

NEW AT ALEXANDER

It was inadvertantly mentioned in the story last week on Rev. R. H. Jackson that he had been assigned as pastor of the Rowan Methodist church only a month earlier. The statement was intended, of course, to be that he had just been assigned to the Alexander church — which he now serves along with the one at Rowan.

Peil family reunion honors Donovan Peil

The Peil families held a family gathering Sunday at Harriman park near Hampton in honor of Donovan Peil of Chicago, Ill., who was home on furlough.

Those attending were Nancy Barbkneckt of Union Mills, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Koenen and family of Meservey, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Walsh of Hampton, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Jessen and Gary, Mrs. Herman Pals, Glenn and Robert, Casper Peil, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Peil and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pals and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Peil, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Schear and family, all of Alexander, and Mr. and Mrs. Karl Kerch and Bill of Eagle Grove.

ALEXANDER BLUEBIRDS

June meeting of the Alexander Bluebirds 4-H club was held at the home of LuRay Price. The members voted to have a float in the Diamond Jubilee parade and to conduct a refreshment stand during the celebration.

A gift of shorts and matching blouse was purchased for Delorus Hopkey, the club's vice president who was a patient at Mercy hospital in Mason City after undergoing a kidney operation. Each member wrote a note on the gift card.

Demonstrations were given as follows: junior — "Spots, Spots Away," by Jerilyn Bier and Denise Myers; intermediate — "Your Hands and You," by Diana Myers. Also a demonstration on shoes was given by Mary Jo Parks and Gloria Winwood.

Veterinary Medicine

Hidden Killers which live on for years in the soils of pastures and barnyards, are now costing farmers over $20,000,000 a year in livestock losses.

Preventive vaccination can be done against some of these infections in areas where they are a special problem. Although deaths often occur soon after symptoms develop, a veterinarian can save the animals from certain of the infections; if he can be called in soon enough.

These disease organisms of the "clostridial" group cause their greatest losses during summer months.

These killer organisms are the cause of such livestock diseases as lockjaw, blackleg, malignant edema and enteroroxemia. The organisms generally enter the animals while grazing or through wounds.

Timely Health Hints . . .

Farms that have a yearly bloat problem should have soil samples taken to determine soil deficiencies. For example, a phosphorous deficiency often produces a bloat problem.

All horses and ponies should be vaccinated against sleeping sickness.

Cattle out on pasture, particulary those on river or creek pastures, should be vaccinated against blackleg and malignant edema.

IMPORTANT: Farmers who vaccinate their own livestock would do well to check into quality and potency of various products, instead of just price. A nonpotent or badly administered vaccination or medicine is never cheap!

Randall Klemme speaker for Scout camp dedication

Dr. Randall Klemme, who was a member of Belmond's earliest Boy Scout troop and advanced to Eagle Scout rank, will deliver the address of the occasion when Winnebago Council's Scout Reservation at Marble Rock is dedicated on Sunday, July 24.

At present, Dr. Klemme is vice president of Northern Natural Gas company, in charge of industrial development, and lives at Omaha.

Morning religious services for both Protestant and Catholic faiths will be held at 11:00 a. m. and Scouts and their families attending the dedication are encouraged to picnic together at 12:30 p.m.

At 2:00 p.m. a concert will be presented by the Rudd summer band and the official dedication ceremony will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Ted H. Leaver, who as Winnebago Council president will be master-of-ceremonies, says, "Our council's Scout reservation is one of the very finest camps in the entire midwest, and this is everyone's opportunity to pay it a visit.

According to Mr. Leaver, "Even before the Indian, as we know him, set his camps along the banks of the Shell Rock River, his ancestors, the Mound Builders, were camping here. The record of their camps remains to this day in the more than 40 Indian Mounds which dot the area. In later years the pioneers found this same area a good stopping place on their Westwark trek.

"Now, hundreds of years later, the spirit of these early campers is carried on as boys of the Winnebago Council pitch their tents in those same woodlands. Deer and other wild animals still abound, making the Winnebago Scout Reservation a boy's paradise

"But this magnificant camp ground was not selected by accident," the council president observes. "Many sites were thoroughly investigated before the decision to purchase this site was made on August 11, 1956. From that moment there has been an all-out effort to make this the finest camp in Scouting.

RANDALL KLEMME

"Men and boys, Scouters and friends of the movement, have given freely of their time and money to make this dream a reality.

"There is no doubt that thousands of Scouts and Explorers of today, and the future, will benefit from this forward step taken by the Winnebago Council. In the passing years this Reservation will become further steeped in a rich tradition, and live forever in memory of those who camp here."

Legion Auxiliary reports on activities of 1959-60

The American Legion Auxiliary year 1959-1960 will close with the installation of the new officers which will take place Tuesday of next week. New officers for the 1960-61 year will be: president, Alice Svendsen; vice president, Hattie Allison; secretary, Agnes Rikansrud; treasurer, Cecelia Holtzbauer; sergeant-at-arms, Marie Zook; chaplain, Carrie Gillett; historian, Lillian Thompson.

In a report given at the last meeting the resume of the yast year was given and included the following:

In order to carry on the work of the organization, funds were raised by serving dinners, food sales, other work and via donations.

Sympathy cards, flowers and gifts were sent to the sick members, and on anniversaries. The junior members of the auxiliary sent gifts to Woodward state hospital at Christmas time. Cookies and cigarets were sent to the Old Soldiers' Home, Marshalltown, and a visit was made to the Home and entertainment was furnished the veterans and their wives.

Among the donations made were those sent to the Community Chest, polio fund, Sandy Johnson Fund, Glenwood state school, CARE, Heart Fund, Welfare Canteen books. Also, coffee strips were sent in to provide Christmas gifts at various children's homes.

The group also sold poppies, set up a miniature memorial cemetery on the library lawn and set up a display in the window of Thompson-Keleher Clothing store. They cleaned the storage and loan closet and loaned sickroom supplies to a number who needed them.

In May, a guest tea was held and a plant presented to each guest. Gold Star Mothers were especially honored at this event. They made a float for the July 4th celebration. They sewed carpet rags to go to a veterans' hospital. Clothing was sent to the state hospital at Mt. Pleasant.

An event scheduled for this fall is the sponsorship of a Red Cross home nursing project.

Programs were presented each month. Those presenting the programs and their topics were as follows: KiRin Kim on Korea; Americanism by Carrie Gillett; Civil Defense by Hattie Allison; the Constitution and By-Laws by Thera Fitts; Mental Health, Marie Zook; Child Welfare, Veronica Barry; and Pan America, Elizabeth Lieuwen.

Jane Svendsen reported on the trip made by the junior auxiliary and herself to Woodward state hospital. The county president and the county secretary visited the unit and gave talks.

Anna Helgeland, retiring president, and other officers attended the conventions of the auxiliary. A committee was appointed to purchase a piano for the Veterans' Memorial hall. A gift exchange and party was held during the Christmas holidays.

The scholarship loan fund was announced and it was further stated that it had been used by local juniors.

The treasurer reported a balance on hand at the close of the year to be $180.

All in all, an interesting and rewarding year had been closed by the American Legion Auxiliary, Historian Lillian Thompson reports.

Iowa Egg Producers Were Docked More Than $8,000,000 In 1959 Because Millions of Eggs They Sold That Year Were NOT TOP QUALITY

AS THE HOT SUMMER SUN AGAIN BEARS DOWN ON US . . .
We Urge
OUR EGG SUPPLIERS TO TAKE CARE OF YOUR EGGS
It's Money In Your Pocket If You Do!
UP TO 3c PER DOZEN

IT'S THE TEMPERATURE NOT the Time That AGES AN EGG

5 Ways to get more money for your eggs

Most eggs are of good quality when laid but, unless handled properly lose freshness fast in hot weather.

Humidity should be kept high in the storage room. Eggs are highly liquid and tend to become dried out when moisture is lacking. Wet the eggroom floor to keep up humidity.

Cool overnight in a wire basket.

Gather eggs frequently. 50% of the day's eggs are laid by mid-morning.

Provide plenty of nests (one for every five hens) to keep eggs clean.

Some 100-day-old eggs are as good as some 3-day-old eggs. Eggs left in 90 degree temperature lose as much freshness in 3 days as eggs held at 37 degrees lose in 100 days.

It's the Temperature that makes the difference

BETTER EGG QUALITY MEANS BETTER PRICES

Dear Egg Customer....
IT IS BETTER TO DRY CLEAN YOUR EGGS BUT . . .

Bliss tells how oldsters REALLY can be helped

While the politicians blithely angle for the votes of our elderly citizens with socialistic schemes whose benefits would be materially dissipated by the inflation they would cause, a sage word on the subject of security for these citizens is offered by Belmond's own Ralph K. Bliss. He KNOWS what their problems are, for he is one of them.

Consequently, the following article by Mr. Bliss that appears in the July-August issue of the American Farm Bureau Federation's "Nation's Agriculture" has much merit. . . .

I have been interested in the ardent discussion that is going on at present about furnishing free hospitalization and medical care through social security for those over 65.

I am interested I suppose because for quite some time I have been a member of that age group of which Iowa has a large percentage. I suspect that one of the principal reasons there is so much political interest in taking good care of oldsters at the present time is because there are some 15 million of them, all with a vote in the national election.

I would like to suggest another but less spectacular way that Congress might help to make life more pleasant for oldsters.

The way I suggest would be to stabilize the value of the dollar or in other words to prevent inflation, so that the money oldsters have laid away for old age would retain its purchasing power.

Congress could make a good beginning on this plan by balancing the federal budget. That would set a good example to state and local spending agencies and would go a long ways toward stabilizing the value of the dollar.

What would stabilizing the value or the purchasing power of the dollar mean to people over 65 in this country? Let us make an estimate. It is generally believed that there are about 15 million people in this country who are 65 years of age or older.

According to the latest information available, it appears that each of 10 million oldsters has to live on about $1,000 a year. Some will have more and some less but for the sake of the illustration let us say that 10 million people have an average of $1,000 a year each for food, housing, clothing, church, travel, entertainment, medical and hospital expenses. If so, the total amount the 10 million low income oldsters would have to spend a year would be $10 billion.

Most of these low income older people have their income in the form of savings that can be quickly drawn on as needed or that can be used in case of emergency such as illness. It will generally be about the same as cash in the bank. How does inflation affect this group? Let us see.

Suppose, for example, that we have a 2% inflation this coming year. I am using 2% because there is a general impression that a little inflation or an occasional "shot in the arm" is good for business. How would it affect these oldsters who have 10 billion dollars to spend?

A 2% inflation would reduce the purchasing power of 10 billion dollars by 200 million dollars. Or if the inflation mounted to 5%, it would take a half billion dollars out of the pockets of these 10 million oldsters, each of whom lives on an average of $1,000 a year.

Most of the people over 65 years of age began saving for old age several years before they retired. Money saved in the early 1940's — and many of the oldsters now living saved money then — will buy only about half as much of the things oldsters need as it would buy at the time is was saved. Thus inflation defrauded them out of half of their savings.

I have a life insurance savings policy that was paid up years ago. It is now only worth about half as much as what I paid for it. If Congress would balance the federal budget, thus helping to stop inflation, it would be a real boost to millions of oldsters.

People who think inflation is a good thing should take a look at what has happened in some other countries. An officer in one of our federal reserve banks had this to say about the fantastic inflation in Germany, following World War I.

"I had the privilege in 1929 of studying at a German university. While there I made the acquaintance of an old professor. He had planned on retiring and had been saving throughout most of his working life to buy an endowment insurance policy in the amount of about 100,000 marks.

"Unfortunately, the policy fell due at the height of the inflation. By that time the mark had so deteriorated in value that the insurance company could not afford to use a stamp to mail the 100,000 marks to the old man."

I might also add that this situation due to inflation caused great distress and helped create a condition that enabled Hitler to take over.

People who have saved money for old age are defrauded, cheated and short changed by inflation. Stopping inflation would be a good place to begin in helping older people and what is also quite important, it would be fair and just.

. . . So concludes Mr. Bliss's article. For the other side of the coin, we recommend reading of the reprinted editorial from Rotary Magazine which appears under the Clipped Comment heading below.

GORDON RECORD SAFE—

With the Iowa Amateur Golf tournament for men being converted from a match play to medal, a record held by Fred Gordon figures to stand until such time as the links nabobs decide to go back to match play. Fred had the lowest qualifying score for this golf fixture (best for the past decade at least — and probably the all-time best) of 67, posted at Mason City in 1953.

He was the only one of Iowa's links veterans to crack 70 in an Amateur qualifying test in the past 10 years, according to Bert McGrane in the D. M. Register. All the others with this achievement to their credit were high-schoolers at the time they accomplished it: Jack Rule of Waterloo, 68 in '54; John Marschall of Hampton, 69 in '55; and Frank James of Grinnell, 69 in '58.

AGED IN THE METAL—

Last week the Lake Mills Graphic had a clipped item from the Independent on its editorial page that had obviously stood in type around the back shop for a bit too long to be timely. It dated clear back to the time of icy streets last winter, when in Main Street column we urged approaching motorists to give a break to cars trying to back up from the curb, because it was a manuver that couldn't be successfully interrupted. Editor Gordie Aasgaard must have been hard up for something to fill the space this cob-webby item occupied.

SMALL WORLD DEPT.—

A note from Pfc. Herbert L. Pals (he's son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. L. Pals), who's stationed at Frankfort, Germany, with the 317th Army Engineers, tells us he had the pleasure on July 3rd of visiting Ernest Hahner and his wife at Fulda. Ernest will be remembered as the exchange student who lived with the L. B. Oberhausers and graduated from BHS in 1952. Herb writes that Ernest owns and operates a 21-unit motel with cafe in conjunction. Sounds as if Mr. Hahner is doing a bit of all right for himself.

YOU LIKE PICTURES?—

While we couldn't say for sure, we suspect that last week's issue broke a record for The Independent in regard to number of pictures and amount of space devoted to them, insofar as an ordinary issue is concerned.

There were 14 pictures (plus a couple of maps). Altogether, the illustrative material run with stories occupied almost one full page of the 12 published.

It's the recent purchase of our Land Polaroid camera that makes the more numerous pictures possible. By not having to have negatives processed and printed, we save a couple of days' time in getting a picture turned into an engraving.

We're tickled to death to be able to provide our readers this improved picture coverage, for we feel pictures lend a lot of zip to the paper.

FINE PROMOTING!—

What a dumkopf! In hurriedly writing the story on the Jaycees' 4th of July celebration (we hurried at everything in order to get out on time, thanks to the Monday holiday), we plumb forgot to make our brags of being sponsor of the young lady chosen as "Miss Belmond."

So we'd like to correct that omission here and now by proudly noting that Lavonne Hansen's sash bore the proud inscription "Miss Belmond Publishing Co." before it was exchanged for the "Miss Belmond" ribbon.

Rarely have we seen more genuine surprise on a face than flooded Lavonne's as her friend Lynne Arends was called forward to receive the 1st Runner-up's trophy — leaving Lavonne as "Miss Belmond" by process of elimination. As the glorious truth dawned, Lavonne all but gobbled her fist in excited disbelief.

CONNIE DID SWELL JOB—

We should make up for one other omission, also. Connie Gabrielson, as the retiring "Miss Belmond," did a fine job of coaching the 1960 candidates and generally making herself helpful to the Jaycees in conduct of this year's pageant. . . . Others we overlooked will just have to hate us. There were just too many playing important roles in one phase or another of the celebration for us to remember 'em all.

RIGHT KINDA PEOPLE—

Belmond is certainly attracting the right type of families to get that 2,499 population count fixed.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Staley (he's the new voc. ag. tacher at the high schoo) have become parents of a baby girl since he was hired for his job here less than a month ago.

And when we had Max Hanson, The Independent's summer aide, taking newcomer pictures last week he brought in two of couples that will become threesomes before many more days have passed.

Give us enough young immigrants of this kind and the year's end will find that silly 2,499 figure put to complete shame.

Privately, we bear in mind that 2,499 WAS the UNOFFICIAL count — and keep hoping that maybe we'll gain a few as the official figure is being compiled. We refuse to give up until that final total is announced.

Story of a "rugged individualist"

It seems a young man lived with his parents in a public housing development. He attended public school, rode the free school bus, and participated in the free lunch program. He entered the Army and upon discharge kept his national life insurance. He then enrolled in the State University, working part time in the State capital to supplement his GI check.

Upon graduation, he married a public health nurse and bought a farm with an FHA loan and then obtained a Small Business Administration loan to go into business. A baby was born in the county hospital. He bought a ranch with the aid of a GI loan and obtained emergency feed from the Government.

LATER HE PUT PART OF HIS land in the soil bank and the payments helped pay off his debt. His parents lived comfortably on the ranch with their social security and old-age assistance checks. REA lines supplied electricity. The Government helped clear the land. The county agent showed him how to terrace it, then the Government paid part of the cost of a pond and stocked it with fish. The Government guaranteed him a sale for his farm products.

Books from the public library were delivered to his door. He banked money which a Government agency insured. His children grew up, entered public schools, ate low-cost lunches, rode free busses, played in public parks and swam in public pools. The man owned an automobile so he favored the Federal-aid highway program.

HE SIGNED A PETITION SEEKing Federal assistance in developing an industrial project to help the economy of his area. He was a leader in obtaining the new Federal building and a new post office and went to Washington with a group to ask Congress to build a great dam costing millions so that the area could get "cheap electricity."

Then, one day, he wrote his Congressman:

"I wish to protest excessive Government spending and high taxes. I believe in rugged individualism. I think people should stand on their own two feet without expecting Government handouts. I am opposed to all socialistic trends and I demand a return to the principles of our Constitution." — Rotary Magazine

So he says: "Let's you'n him fight"

"Almost every day somebody walks into our newspaper office and says to the editor, 'Let's you and him fight.'

"The object is to get the editor to exert the vaunted power of the press against a third party who has slighted, mistreated, ignored, cheated, or in some other fashion done the dirty to the complainant.

"THE COMPLAINANT, THE man who rushes in and volunteers to hold the editor's coat had rather not get involved, pubicly. All he wants, he states, is for the paper to expose the miscreant as a doer of evil deeds, a charlatan, a wife-beater, a ticket fixer and one not be trusted around maiden ladies.

"But does the complainant offer to sign a letter? Is he willing to be quoted? Not him. Just tell the world in your own words what a stinker he is — say the information came from a highly-placed source — something like that. Don't use my name — I'd get a reputation of being loose-tongued.

"THE EDITOR CLUCKS SYMpathetically over man's inhumanity to man. He insists, however, that authority for statements must be

"Complainant thereupon assumes an attitude of outraged dignity, implying the newsman isn't interested in the best local news story in a decade, and should not be questioning an informant of complainant's reputation. Beyond that, complainant sayeth not." — Exchange

High cost of hiring

Speaking on coming legislative problems, and especially on the need for tax overhaul in this state, Senator Donald Wright points out that in former years the tools and equipment that an employer needed to keep his men working used to cost about a thousand dollars an employee.

Now the figures show that it is necessary for an employer to invest ten to fifteen thousand dollars for tools and equipment for each man or woman that he hires.

STOPPING TO DO A LITTLE figuring we are surprised to note that a country newspaper such as our own, in this modern age, has to make an investment of close to ten thousand dollars for each employee if that employee is to have available the things that will enable him to produce at his best.

And yet out outmoded tax system instead of encouraging the investment in tools and equipment to keep more laborers busy, heavily penalizes such investment through the outmoded and unjust property taxes that carry the bulk of the tax burden in this state — Windom (Minn.) Reporter

It's your money

The head of a taxpayer research organization has warned that all the election year government spending plans and programs now being hatched in Washington will have to be financed from a single source — you the taxpayer.

It is a wonder that such a warning is needed. But it is, for apparently great numbers of people still labor under the delusion that government funds come magically out of the blue, not out of their pockets.

IN THE SHORT SPAN OF THREE decades, the government's tax take has jumped from one dollar out of ten to the national income to one dollar out of three.

If the big spenders have their way, the ratio could soon become one in two, or even more.

And you, along with the other 180 million or so people in this country, will have to pay the bill. No one else can. — Grinnell Herald-Register

Know your businessmen—

When cars get the bends, Lloyd's the doctor

If you want to find a man completely happy in his work, you need look no further than Lloyd Cunningham of Lloyd's Body Shop. He's been at the job of straightening out car bodies, painting autos and doing glass work for 22½ years and he can't recall a moment's regret over his choice of occupations.

Lloyd has been his own boss since he purchased Belmond Auto company's body shop subsequent to the death of Louie Tokman. He'll be marking his third anniversary on the 27th of this month.

Before acquiring the business, he worked for 18½ years for Louie and his partner, George Heginger. Lloyd got his start in body work when he hired out to the late Harvey Johnson, who operated a shop here in 1938. When Johnson moved his business to Clarion, Lloyd went along; but he didn't care for the county seat and after a year quit his job to join the Belmond Auto force.

Although he still does a good deal of straightening on doors, tops and trunk lids, he says that today's "unitized" construction makes repair of some sorts impossible. When one of those fancy fishtails or fins that pass as rear fenders get bashed up, there's nothing to do but cut the entire panel off the car and weld on a new one.

Lloyd recalls that when he was starting in at the business, an entire fender could be replaced for $7 or $8. Another $4 to $6 would cover cost of painting and installation and $12 or $15 would see your car "good as new." A fender panel today costs $100 to $150 — and even more on some of the high priced cars.

Unfortunately (for the car owner, if not for the repairman), these ornate fenders are much more susceptible to damage than the less eye-pleasing but more practical fenders of yesteryear.

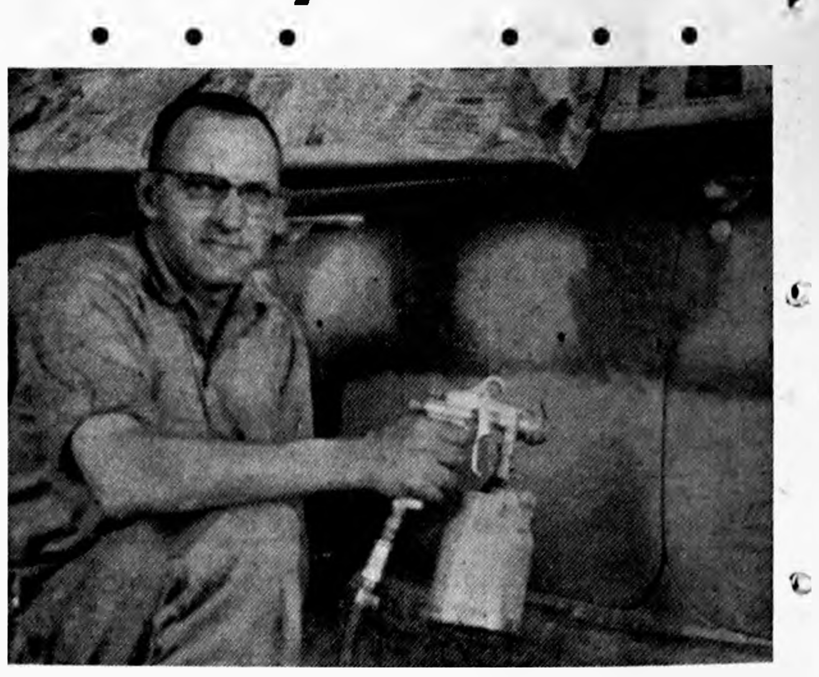
Another automotive improvement has had a similar effect on the car-owner's pocketbook but at least has the saving grace of being a definite contribution to the safety of the car's occupants. That is the construction that permits wide vision through the windshield and rear window.

Those curved windshields cost from $100 to $200 and, in some models, even more. They must be specially purchased in their moulded form. On the other hand, Lloyd not only can, but does, do all of his own flat-glass cutting and can quickly replace door and wing glass at an economical price.

He admits that working with glass is one of the phases of his work he gets the most pleasure out of. With the broken glass as a pattern, he cuts first on one side and then the other of a piece of safety glass — then has to slice through the bonded safety film in the middle with a razor blade.

Lloyd predicts that one of the biggest improvements to bless the auto body business in some time will turn out to be the new Dupont paint, Lucite, successor to the long-familiar Duco finish. This paint is impervious to weather-fading, the bugaboo of all auto painters in their efforts to match paints. It has an added attraction to the car owner in that it keeps its sheen without polishing. All General Motors cars are now coming out with Lucite paint.

While accidents take a terrific toll of autos every year, Lloyd says that he believes rust is probably more costly to car-owners by and large than the results of accidents. And even though it is responsible for extensive body damage here in the midwest, the dollar toll of rust runs much higher on the coasts where salty ocean air REALLY raises hob.



LLOYD CUNNINGHAM DOES HIS PAINTING WITH AIR-BRUSH

Because so much body work today consists of simply cutting whole panels away and welding new ones on, Lloyd has found a new type of electric spot welder just lately on the market to be an extremely handy addition to his collection of tools.

Some implements of his trade have passed completely out of use with the changes in automobile styles. For example, Lloyd says the striper kit with which he used to paint those fancy stripes on wheel spokes, hood louvers and elsewhere on car bodies of a generation back he never uses now.

Lloyd has two boys assisting him in his work — his own son, Kirk, who'll be a BHS senior this fall; and Lee Stroud of Clarion. Mrs. Cunningham (Erma), does the inside work — upholstery cleaning and the like — and the bookkeeping. Lloyd adds that he had an A-1 body man in Gordon Morris, who's been in Uncle Sam's employ the past year and a half but is due for his Army discharge in February.

"Business has never been better," Lloyd says, adding he's had just one day off in two years. "It'll help aplenty when Gordon gets back on the job."

VOL. 41 NO. 42 | OFFICIAL CITY PAPER | WRIGHT COUNTY, IOWA—THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1960 | OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER | 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

A note from ex-Belmondites Lester (Bill) and Bonnie Peters asks a change in their subscription address from Chula Vista (clear down on the Mexican border) back to Hawthorne, Calif. — where their address is 554 Eucalyptus, Apt. 20. They asked us to "say hello to all our friends."

We're kinda glad that we're in the type of business we are. For example, we don't have to be thinking in terms of Christmas promotions for a good while yet. On the other hand, Ellis Elliott and his wife are attending this week at Minneapolis the winter-buying convention of OUR OWN Hardware dealers (owners of 620 stores from over a nine-state area are in on the deal.

Maybe this dallying with Christmas wares is a welcome distraction from the summer weather; we don't know.

Anyway, Ellis and Madeline will return well versed in what's going to be the very latest in everything from back-to-school to Yuletide items in the hardware line. We hope they ordered plenty — knowing that Independent ads at the proper time will SELL plenty for 'em. (Incidentally, we've got a special price on Christmas cards right now; but they are moving very fast.)

Well, finally! . . . Year after year Ye Ed has been asked to cover beauty contests as a reporter — but never to give of his own expert judgment as to who the winner should be. And frankly, the so-called judges who were responsible for the placings were sometimes so obviously WRONG that it made Ye Ed shudder.

Now, the scribe of this august journal has been asked to serve as a judge in determining this year's Wright county district winners in the "Conservation Queen" contest (used to be "Queen of the Furrow").

We've been baiting Soil Planner Bob Locke and the soil commissioners for not letting the press take over the judging of this competition, pointing out that you'd go a long way finding superior connoisseurs of feminine pulchritude. We're happy the assignment has at last fallen our lot, even if long overdue.

From Mary Polmateer, who's been at Good Samaritan Home in Mason City for about the past half year, comes a check to renew her subscription to The Independent for another six months. An accompanying note says, "I think sometimes I could get along without it . . . but apparently she finds out she can't, for she adds:

"But how I love my home there, friends and loved ones.

"And how I love to gaze over the names for a glimpse of them all that I have known so long. God bless all the workers on the good old Belmond paper." We'd say we detect definite symptoms of homesickness in Mary's comments. How about some of you old friends of hers dropping her a note. . . . It's sad to be lonely!

Because of its proximity — but not because it is necessarily their responsibility — the swimming pool staff gives the shelter house and its tables and benches a thorough scrubbing once a week. The rest of the time, it is deemed the public's job to leave the accomodations cleaned up, washed down, and ready for the next party's use.

Sad to say, a majority of the groups availing themselves of the shelter house and its facilities have NOT been showing this courtesy to those following them.

One person deliberately soused up a table with ketchup. It seems a common practice to let the kids race over the tables and benches, leaving them covered with dirty foot tracks. Isn't it little enough to ask, when no charge is made for the shelter house, that it should be used with respect — and the next users shown some consideration?

Friends who have been concerned about the Don Collinsons in view of recent developments in the Congo are reminded that the former BHS voc. ag. teacher and his family are currently home on furlough. They've been back in the States since last August and were not due to return to the Congo until this coming December.

It appears at this time highly unlikely that this missionary family will be returned to their previous African post.

Don has for some time been studying at Garrett Bible Institute, Northwestern university's school of religion at Evanston, Ill., while Mary and their daughters — Virginia and Susan — have been living at Clinton. Don has expressed an interest in entering the ministry if circumstances don't allow his return to Africa.

THIS week:
not LAST week!

The "headline" above will serve as confession that we boo-booed on a story in last issue about the All-Vets Carnival — which is, of course, THIS Friday and Saturday instead of last weekend. Dick told Ye Ed an ad on the carnival was appearing in the paper, last week, and suggested, "Better have a story on it." Without giving the matter further thought we glanced at the ad, wrote our story — and goofed beautifully. . . . Anyway, the big deal is tomorrow and Saturday. Details will be found in ANOTHER ad in THIS issue.

LERDAL OUT OF ARMY

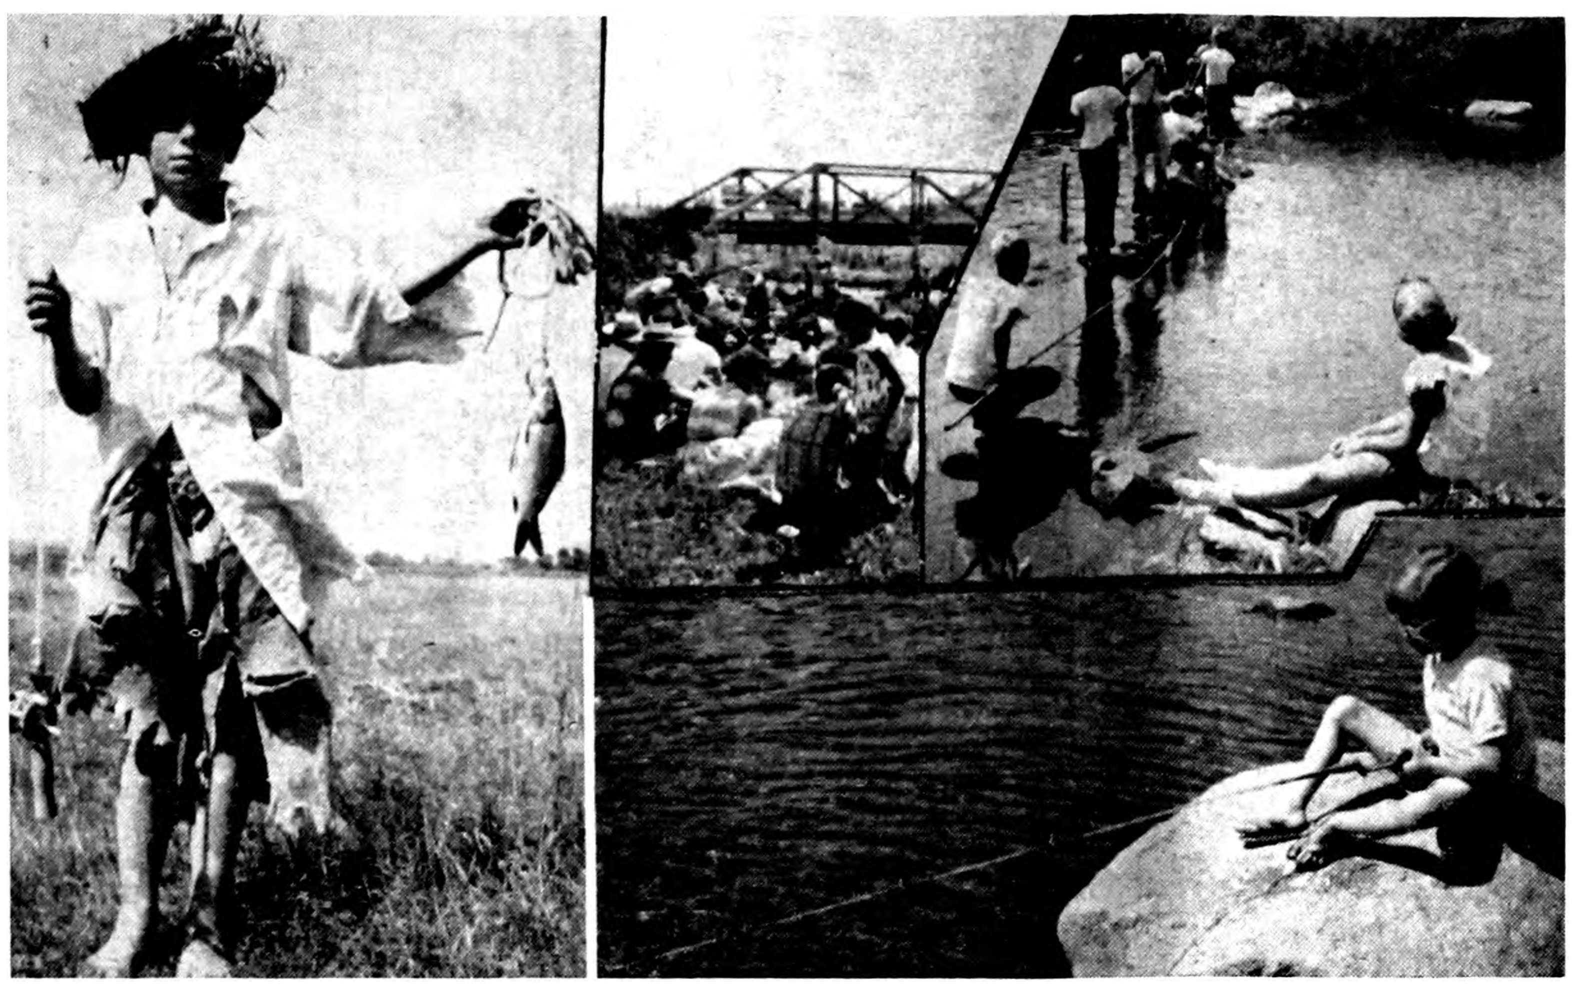
RANDY PROVIDES ADDRESS

Friends of Randy Musselman, recent Navy recruit, may address correspondence to him as follows: Randy Musselman SR. Co. 252 USNTC, San Diego, Calif. Randy would appreciate mail.



FISH DIDN'T BITE too well at the Sportman's club's annual Kids' Fish Derby last Friday afternoon in the George Eckhoff pasture northwest of town, but all participants had fun trying their luck. Searches for "a better hole" before long found the youngsters lined up along the Iowa river bank for 300 or 400 yards. In this montage of Fish Derby action, Frank Quigley is shown at left with a carp that was not only the first fish pulled from the water but was the biggest one caught. Frank, who is 11 years old and son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Quigley, won the rod and reel he is so proudly exhibiting AND a cash prize. Lower right is one of the many tykes who fished in vain. You'll note she had no reel on the rod she's using, so she was "within the law" insofar as the rules were concerned. She is Kim Lobdell, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lobdell. She concentrated hard — but the fish wouldn't cooperate. Top center is shown a corner of the throng gathered in the vicinity of the road bridge near the spot where young Quigley hooked his "first" and "biggest." It was inevitable that THAT would become a popular location. Peaceful scene at top right was situated some distance upstream, where stepping stones permitted a handful of enthusiasts to get "closer to their work." The young miss looking on probably had as good a time as anyone. As a spectator, she was thoroughly enjoying herself — and she just didn't care whether the fish bit or not.

Trafford: "streets and city growth prompt tax increase"

Belmond's biggest city budget ever is proposed in the estimate that appears in this issue asking $110,327 in taxes and estimates 1961 expenditures at $252,047. Actually, proposed expenditures come to $441,173, but this figure includes $189,126 operation expense of the municipal hospital — which is not, of course, an actual city expense.

Most significant amount in the budget estimate is the $110,327 required in taxes. This is $23,360 more than asked for the current year and is by quite a margin calls for the largest municipal levy in Belmond history It will require an estimated levy of 36.273 mills compared to 28.221 actual levy for the current year.

Mayor L. T. Trafford, in commenting on the city budget, says however that this millage raise and that needed by the school budget will still leave the aggregate tax levy for persons living in Belmond comfortably under average for Iowa cities (communities with 2,000 or more population).

Two factors cause raise

Belmond's need for a tax raise at this time is explained by Mayor Trafford in this way: "Two factors account for the higher levy. First, the city administration is determined that some essential paving shall be done next year — the first general street-surfacing program in the community since 1919 Second. Belmond's growth has entailed some expenditures that would not otherwise have been necessary."

Tax funds to be raised for streets are set at $25,857 for next year, compared to $10,035 this year. Since omission of any street program this summer is expected to make possible a $10,000 balance at the start of 1961, this would create a fund of $35,857 for the city's share of the proposed paving project for next summer.

Sanitation balance down

The other major raise in levy is for the sanitation fund. Taxes in the amount of $10,697 are to be raised for this fund, since it is being virtually emptied by construction of the storm sewer on Seventh street NE.

A year ago, a year end balance of $14,106 was anticipated, so the only levy was for $358 to pay the dump-keeper's salary. The actual balance on Jan. 1, 1960, turned out to be $9,816. An unencumbered balance of only $48 is predicated for the end of this year. Predicted expenditures out of the santitation fund for 1961 come to $13,745.

Builders Land company, subdividers of East Gate Addition, may pay as much as $3,000 into the sanitation fund in recognition of benefits to be derived from the Seventh street storm sewer. The $10,697 levy, with the $3,000, will be required to meet the expenditures proposed for next year.

Sewer seriously needed

"Belmond's growth to the north and east made the storm sewer extension necessary," Mayor Trafford observes. "The sewer will also provide much improved drainage to a number of blocks of long-established homes; and it is possible that a hook-up with this new sewer will be required to provide satisfactory drainage for the new school grounds and the athletic field."

No other major changes in fund levies appear in the 1961 budget estimate.

There is a drop of $1,275 in the general fund levy, $15,210 compared to this year's $16,485. The levy was kept about the same despite an anticipated $9,476 unencumbered balance at the end of 1960 because the council is building up a reserve to purchase or build a maintenance shed to house city street equipment. There is no adequate, enclosed storage space for this equipment now to keep it out of the weather.

Hospital levy same

The appropriation for public safety, at $15,970, is about $500 less than for the current year.

A two-mill levy is again being made under municipal enterprises for the city library, which will yield $6,084. A half mill instead of a whole mill is being levied for cemetery upkeep, which will come to $1,521. Three mills is again the levy for municipal support of the hospital, which will produce $9,126.

Expenditures from the recreation fund are estimated at about $320 less than for 1960. The park levy in this fund is reduced by three-eighths of a mill, down to 1 3/8, and predicted income from the swimming pool is set at $8,000 instead of $9,000 — the figure for this summer. The council has decided that $9,000 income from the pool is unlikely unless it gets a better than average break on the weather. About a $1,240 larger balance is expected in the recreation fund at the start of 1961 than existed at the start of this year, due to lower planned expenditures during the present year.

Sewer rental separate

A slightly higher levy will be made for utilities, prompted by the anticipation that additional new street lights will be installed next year in new residential developments.

A separate budget item is made of the sewer rental fund this year, at the request of the state auditor's office. It has previously been included in utilities. It is collected to amortize the revenue bonds that comprised part of the money source paying for the sewage disposal plant.

Appropriation for the debt service fund is down a slight amount — $130 — to $14,440, because a slightly higher year-end balance is expected at the end of 1960 than existed at the start of this year.

Hearing on Aug. 1

State money from the road use tax is estimated in the same amount for next year as this, $10,000. Along with that amount, an anticipated $1,000 year end balance brings the amount proposed for expenditure for 1961 up to $11,000.

Set up as another separate fund for the first time is the city's share of state liquor profits. It is estimated at $2,400 for 1961, compared to $2,200 for the current year. In late years the state allotments have been set aside and used for replacement of the city police car, when that step is necessary.

Soldiers relief, conservation up—

County budget asks $25,000 more in taxes

Wright county's budget estimate for 1961, which appears in this issue of The Independent, calls for $25,360 more in taxes than the current year's budget called for and proposes expenditure of $7,360 more than 1960 expenditures.

Amount to be raised by taxation this year, after protests at the public hearing effected a $3,000 cut in the soldiers relief levy and a $10,000 slash from the county conservation fund, came to $526,000. The 1961 budget estimate asks for $551,360 in tax monies.

Proposed expenditures for 1960, after the two reductions accomplished at the hearing, totalled $992,000. The estimate for 1961 shows proposed expenditures of $999,360.

While a few very minor reductions are made in three funds in next year's budget estimate (Bangs eradication, $2,000 less tax asked; Social Security fund, $900 less;and state retirement fund, $2,000 less), these savings were more than wiped out by increases in the same funds that drew taxpayers attention a year ago.

A 100 per cent increase in its fund is asked by the soldiers relief commission, from $15,000 to $30,000. Last year the initial budget had called for $18,000, but that was cut by another $3,000 after the hearing when the supervisors ordered no more salary to be paid by the commission for hiring a secretary.

Request of the county conservation commission is for $22,460, compared to the $16,000 allowed this body for 1960 after the $10,000 cut was made following the hearing. Chairman Stanley Shupe of Clarion was told at Clarion that the complainants didn't so much object to the proposed $26,000 as to the fact that the commission had no clear plans for projects that would require that much money.

Another fund that drew fire at last year's hearing was the secondary road construction-maintenance fund. It was claimed by protesting taxpayers that this fund actually figured to amount to some $50,000 or so more than the budget showed. This assertion was based on the fact that estimated income from the state road use tax fund is always estimated at considerably less than is actually received; that the cash balance at the start of the year consistently is larger than estimated; and that no allowance in the expense estimate had been made for a 13-man reduction in the road crew in April of 1959.

The late supervisor from Dows, George S. Trowbridge, justified the "concealed" funds with the explanation that "more money is needed for hard-surfacing." As matters turned out, about $50,000 more is being expended on surfacing this summer than the 10-year road plan in effect called for.

Next year's secondary road budget is virtually the same as that of a year ago, calling for $575,000 in expenditures made up of $100,000 estimated unencumbered balance at the end of the year, $300,000 from the road use fund and $175,000 from county tax levy. The only item differing is the Jan. 1 balance this year, at $169,578, which was about $20,000 less than the Jan. 1, 1959, cash balance.

An extra $5,000 is asked in taxes for the state institution fund and the estimate of expenditures is $5,000 higher. Also, an additional $1,000 in tax money is asked for the general fund, putting that appropriation up to $116,000. Ordinarily the general fund requirements are down by quite a few thousand in non-election years. The reduction for 1961 is less than usual because the Wright County Bar association is requesting some remodeling be done on the courtroom and adjoining area.

The lawyers propose that the south stairway be closed off and two additional rooms be created on the second floor, utilizing the space now occupied by the stairs. The bar association also wishes to see the courtroom modernized.

Auditor Myron Price shows the estimated millage to raise the budgeted 1961 taxes as 12.25 mills

Tax commission's ruling ups budget of assessor

County Assessor F. Ross Henry published in last issue the estimate of money that will be required to operate his office during 1961. His budget proposes expenditures coming to $26,440, compared to $22,215 for the current year and $17,385 for 1959.

Mr. Henry explains that most of the $4,330 increase in assessor's costs between 1959 and 1960 was anticipated because of additional expense of preparing the quadriennial reassessment of real estate that is due in 1961.

Much of the groundwork for this reassessment is being done this year. The rest of the reassessment work will be done the early part of next year and will add a thousand dollars or so to what normal costs of his office would be.

Another factor that has been responsible for higher figures this year and next is the $500 raise in salary that Mr. Henry was given last year.

He says that of the $4,225 rise in proposed expenditures for next year, roughly $1,000 is intended to complete the real estate reassessment and the rest is earmarked for the hiring of more field men to conduct the 1961 property assessment.

This is in recognition of the state tax commission's recent declaration that a representative of the assessor's office must personally make property assessments by visiting the properties to which he is assigned.

It is noted in the assessor's budget estimate that taxable valuation in the county at the end of 1959 came to $53,230,879. This indicates addition of $1,039,340 in assessed valuation over that subject to taxation in 1958.

Letting on school, community center set for July 28th

Belmond Community School district and trustees of the Fred and Alice Luick Memorial Building Trust in last issue published a notice to bidders that bids will be received on or before Thursday, July 28, for construction of the district's new high school and adjoining community center.

Separate bids are solicited for general construction, plumbing, heating and ventilation, and for electric wiring. These bids are to be received by the school directors not later than 2:00 p.m. on the day designated.

Notice was also published in the issue that a hearing on the proposed plans and specifications and proposed form of contract governing construction of the school building and of the community center for which the Luick Trust provided funds.

It was stated in the notice of hearing that the architect's estimate of the aggregate cost of the high school and community center is $800,000. This figure is under the gross figure of $850,000 given in planning estimates because the architect's fee and certain equipment costs are omitted from consideration in the figure set forth in the hearing notice.

Remember?

Can you remember when a prominent young man-about-town looked like this? He has graduated from BHS, where he made an enviable name for himself in sports. There are a great many clues we could provide as to his identity, but most of them would be dead give-aways. We'll give you these additional tips. He is not the only son his parents have; and he was raised on the farm. You will find his name on page 7.

Board regards budget line held despite increase in school taxes

Although estimated expenditures under the Belmond Community School district budget estimate for 1960-61 come to about $51,200 more than for the year just ended, the school directors take satisfaction in the fact that the district's millage levy will nevertheless compare favorably with other districts in this area.

"Considering new obligations it was necessary to meet under the proposed budget," says Mrs. Al Mennenga, president of the board, "we regard the millage required to raise the necessary tax revenue was kept at a level that should be satisfactory to propertyowners in the district.

"Less than four mills increase in the school tax was necessary to meet the increased needs of the 1960-61 budget, " Mrs. Mennenga notes. "To be exact, it appears that a millage raise of 3 79 will be sufficient to meet the proposed budget. The mill total of 36 06 will be lower than that of a number of near-by districts and very close to as low as the others."

Main increases in expense derive from higher salaries for teachers, purchase of some equipment for the new high school that the bond issue does not provide for, and increase in outlay for bond principal and interest with inclusion of cost of the new high school in this fund.

Some minor reductions in expenditures from the various funds will bring the amount required by taxation to $390,578.59, compared to $339,384.37 for the past year

One action taken by the school board enabled the amount of $18,000 to be saved in interest cost. Money derived from the sale of new bonds last spring was promptly re invested in government securities that will net the mentioned $18,000 before the securities have to be cashed to make payments to the contractors.

Regarding the proposed budget. Mrs. Mennenga says. "There is good reason to believe that the tax rate for Belmond Community School district will be attaining just about its highest level in the year 1960-61.

"This year will see major building needs fulfilled for some time to come. The district's tax base has been steadily rising, and there is promise that this will continue.

"All of these factors justify the school board's satisfaction that the 1960-61 millage will be held to barely 36 mills. The directors consider that the district is getting a great deal accomplished, while keeping the millage favorably comparable with other districts of this area."

Public hearing on the proposed budget will be held on Tuesday, Aug 2, at 8:00 p. m. at the schoolhouse. At that time taxpayers, either for or against the budget as estimated, will have opportunity to express themselves.

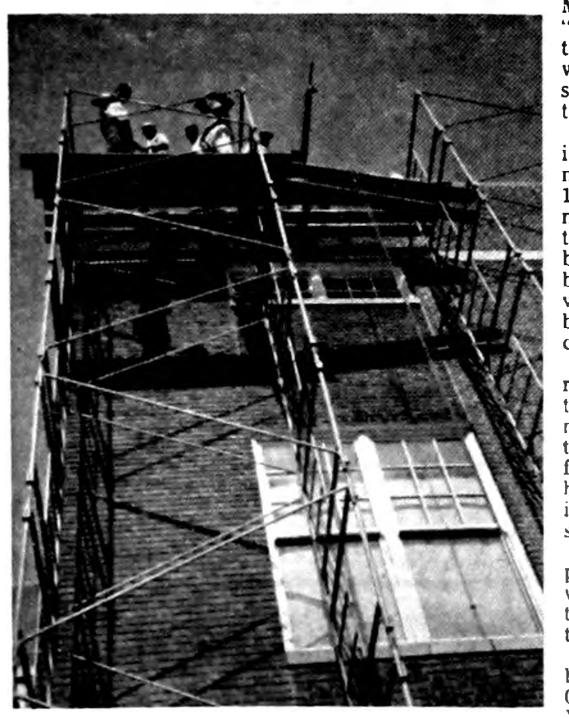
Mean-while, down at the old school



Renovation work on the old high school building was held by the school directors to a minimum this summer to keep expenses down. One job done, though was pointing up of the brick by A. R. Dorr Sons — the first time this has been done since the building was erected in 1916. As shown here on the job last week, the Dorr crew found its 55-foot scaffolding none too high to fill its need. Another summer job planned was installation of fire doors at both north and south stairways, so each floor can be shut off from that above and below — as required by the state fire marshal. The vacation work crew will also paint the football stadium, both the metal frame and the benches.

Out-of-towners get the cash

Maybe local shoppers need to learn a lesson from out-of-town customers who make Tuesday one of their shop-in-Belmond days. This week, two of the out-of-towners were enriched by a total amount of $75 for being in Belmond with Cash Gift Day numbers in hand. None of the numbers distributed in Belmond brought forth a winner. The lucky number-holders were Reka Schulte of Alexander, who picked off a $25 prize at 2:00 p.m.; and Mrs. Lloyd Christenson of Kanawha, who won a $50 award at 3:00 o'clock. Delighted to see this many CGD greenbacks cut loose, the committee is making the prize total $400 once again next Tuesday. The amount will once more be split into eight $25 prizes at 2:00 p.m. and four $50's at 3:00 o'clock.

Sewer project's been a headache

Pictured below is the Seventh street storm sewer project, which the first of this week was a bit more than a block from completion. It runs from the river and just east of the Rock Island tracks will hook up with East Gate Addition's storm sewer system.

Because of great quantities of fine sand that hadn't been anticipated the ditch has had to be dug much wider than would otherwise have been necessary. Elapsed time for the work, and cost of doing it, have gone up correspondingly.

Up to last Friday the cost of the project stood at about $11,600. Builders Land company, the East Gate sub-dividers, has agreed to pay 20 per cent of the project cost — up to, but not over, $3,000.

In the picture accompanying may be seen Melvin Swenson (serving as observer for Iowa Electric Light and Power company) and Engineer Sig Helgeland about to guide Myron Trager — at wheel of city tractor, but not shown — in lowering a 20-inch cement tile into the ditch. Augie Trager prepares to handle the tile after its descent; a moment later Lester Kottler was there to help Augie.

Gene Nelson appears in background making an adjustment on the scoop of the drag-line with which he'd been making way for the tile. Without the sand to battle, he could have dug the ditch about half as wide.

Donald L. Nelson and Judy McHale wed at St. John's church, Clarion

St. John's Catholic church at Clarion was the scene of the wedding of Miss Judy McHale, niece of Mrs. Loretto Tillman of Clarion, and Donald L. Nelson of Waterloo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Nelson. Monsignor James E. Slowey performed the double-ring ceremony Saturday morning, June 25, at 10:00 o'clock before an altar decorated with baskets of white gladiolas. Phil and Tom Brand of Clarion served as altar boys.

Mrs. William Mock of Clarion, organist, played the nuptial music and accompanied Margaret Hagie of Des Moines as she sang "Panis Anglicus," "Soul of My Saviour" and "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her brother John, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over taffeta, fashioned with a fitted bodice, scalloped neckline and sleeves fastened with tiny satin buttons and ending in bridal points over the wrists. The front of the dress featured a panel of the tulle and lace while tiny satin buttons and a satin butterfly bow at the waist decorated the back. The full skirt extended into a brush train. Her finger-tip veil of nylon illusion fell from a bow of tulle trimmed with sequins and pearls.

The bride's bouquet was a cascade of pink sweetheart roses, lilies of the valley and teired bows of tulle with white satin bowknot streamers. Her jewelry consisted of tiny pearl earrings, a family heirloom, and a single pearl on a chain, a gift of the groom.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Eleanor McHale of Minneapolis, Minn., and the bridesmaid was Sena Whitman of Des Moines. They wore identical street-length dresses of pink taffeta, with short sleeves and full skirts and featuring wide American Beauty rose commerbunds having large butterfly bows in the back, ending a sash. Their matching picture hats were of white embroidered lace trimmed in American Beauty rose. They carried white gloves, a gift of the bride, and cascade bouquets of white carnations and ivy.

William Vroman of Waterloo, cousin of the groom, served as best man and Gary Nelson of Ames, brother of the groom, was groomsman. Phillip McHale of Clarion, brother of the bride, and Ernest Kiley of Renwick, cousin of the groom, served as ushers. The men of the wedding party wore black suits with black ties and boutonnieres of white carnations, except the groom's, which was of three pink sweetheart roses from the bride's bouquet.

Mrs. Tillman chose a blue lace dress with white accessories for her niece's wedding. The groom's mother wore a beige linen dress with matching lace jacket and pink accessories. Both corsages were of pink roses.

Following the ceremony, a two-course dinner was served by St. Rita's circle to 140 guests in the church parlors.

For traveling, the bride chose a pale blue sheath with matching jacket and white accessories. Her corsage was pink sweetheart roses. The couple went on a trip through Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The bride is a graduate of St. John's Catholic school and graduated with the class of '58 from Clarion High school. She has been employed for the past two years with the Bell Telephone company at Clarion.

The groom is a graduate of Kanawha High school, spent four years with the U. S. Air Force and at present is employed by Rath Packing company at Waterloo, at which place they will make their home.

Belmond Independent
Dear Sir:

Across the nation, in our state, and within our own community, there has been a growing awareness of the need for a program in reducing farm power accidents.

Because of the increased mechanization on the farm and the greater exposure to accidents caused by careless use of farm power, the Belmond Friendly Service FFA Chapter has chosen to participate in a Safe Farm Power Use Program.

Soon, an FFA member from our Chapter will call on farm families in this area to explain the (1960) Safe Farm Power Use Program. These families should welcome this emissary of safety and listen to him. He represents a group of America's finest young farmers with no other interest than to make farming a better,happier, and safer occupation.

Film Highlights
COMING ATTRACTIONS

If a woman's hair is her "crowning glory," the "Five Branded Women" in Thursday through Saturday's feature film have hardly a shred of glory among them. For the comely quintet who portray partisans in a central European country under Nazi occupation are dealth "butch cuts" for fraternizing with the enemy. Silvano Mangano, Barbara Bel Geddes, Vera Miles, Jeanne Moreau and Carla Gravina demonstrate that beauty can survive the loss of feminine coiffures in this highly dramatic story. Van Heflin, Richard Basehart and Steve Forrest back up the femal contingent.

Warner Brothers says, with tongue in cheek, the "Tall Story" is "not recommended for parents — if you're sending your teeners to college." It seems the plot has a lot to do about a co-ed who simply can't help lovin' tall boys.

Saucy star of "Tall Story" (showing Sunday through Wednesday) is Jane Fonda, daughter of long-popular Henry Fonda.

She shares top billing with Anthony Perkins, who after success in some starkly dramatic roles proves he can also do comedy with deft skill. You'll get a wallop out of a hilarious scene in which the young folks experiment in Japanese kissing.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE Republicanism

There is one fundamental difference between those who bear the Republican and the Democrat party label — their concept of the role government should play in the lives of each of us.

Democrats believe fundamentally in giving more and more power to the federal government; the Republicans less.

Democrats would have the federal government spend more . . . and tax more . . . to do for us what we should be doing for ourselves.

Republicans still champion the private initiative that made America great. They believe government's role should be that of umpire in the free enterprise system . . . to forestall either business or labor from taking unfair advantage.

To retain the free enterprise system that has made America the envy of the free world, we must halt the encroachment on our personal rights that all leading Democrats advocate.

NATIONAL FARM SAFETY WEEK — JULY 24-30

Farming Can Kill You!
IT'S EASY—HERE'S HOW . . .

1. NEGLECT YOUR MACHINERY—
Who cares if it's not in safe working order. It's too much trouble to keep it in shape. Guards are for, sissies.
2. OPERATE TRACTORS CARELESSLY—
Always start and stop suddenly . . . take corners at high speed . . . and drive as often as you can in ditches, on soft ground and creek banks. It's more exciting.
3. IGNORE ALL TRAFFIC RULES—
Whether you are driving a car or a tractor on the highway, remember, rules are for the other guy. It's the slack season for the undertaker anyway.
4. STARTLE YOUR ANIMALS—
Yelling "boo" at the bull is a fine way to liven up an otherwise dull day.
5. BE A LOUSY HOUSEKEEPER—
You can't get hurt in the house, besides you are too busy to watch the water heater . . . fix old wiring . . . pick up roller skates, etc.
6. FALLING IS SUCH FUN—
Especially from the barn roof . . . ladders never slip anyway. To heck with safety . . . live dangerously.
7. DISREGARD WATER SAFETY RULES—
Stand on your head in boats . . . dive in shallow water . . . all are O.K. Who wants to live to be ninety, anyway.
8. FIRST AID CAN WAIT—
Show everyone how tough you are . . . ignore cuts and bruises. You don't want to overwork the doctors and nurses, do you?
10. IT CAN'T HAPPEN TO YOU ANYWAY—
Only one out of five farm families had serious accidents last year. Why worry when you know it will happen to someone else!
9. FORGET FIRE HAZARDS—
Smoke all you want to in the barn, and always start fires with kerosene. This makes life more interesting.

IF YOU FOLLOW THE ABOVE RULES, WE WISH TO TAKE THIS OPPORTUNITY TO SAY IT'S BEEN NICE KNOWING YOU AND WE ONLY REGRET THAT OUR ACQUAINTANCE MUST BE SO SHORT

We don't like to lose our customers. If for no other reason, please take care of yourself.

Institute offers some advice—

How to prevent accidents on farm

DES MOINES (Special)—A warning to Iowa farmers that the peak season for farm machinery accidents occurs this month was sounded today by the Iowa Farm Loss Prevention Institute.

July is one of the worst months of the year for serious injuries and deaths among farmers, the Institute said. There were 93 accidents last July, resulting in the deaths of 11 farmers.

One reason so many more accidents take place during July is the rush of the heavy work schedule on farms, according to James A. Vickery, executive secretary of the Institute. Farmers try dangerous short cuts to save time, and accidents result.

Nine farm safety pointers to help reduce this year's accident toll, as suggested by Vickery, include:

1. Turn off the motors of all machines before oiling, cleaning or adjusting.
2. Never allow children to ride on farm machinery.
3. Always stay behind the sickle bar on the mower.
4. Stop the pulley before putting on or taking off a belt.
5. Always keep guards in place on all machines.
6. Stop the motor and allow to cool before refilling the gas tank.
7. Never use machines which are not in good working order.
8. Never step over or under moving belts.
9. Never wear loose-fiting or torn clothing and gloves around machinery.

J. Govern reports on farmers given FHA loans in '60

Loans totaling $269,440 were made by the Farmers Home Administration to farm families in Franklin, Hamilton, Hardin and Wright counties during the 1960 fiscal year, according to John J. Govern, the agency's county supervisor. Mr. Govern's office is located in the Evans-Kay Building in Clarion.

Borrowers repaid $189,891 during the year on loans of all types obtained from the Farmers Home Administration. Their repayments on loans came mainly from the sale of beans, corn and hogs.

Improvements which these farmers have achieved, Mr. Govern said, included better dairy herds, better housing for their livestock and better equipment.

Forty per cent of those milking cows are on a production testing program while only about eight per cent were testing three years ago. Daily green chopping for dairy herds is on the increase; and proper fertilizer use increased last year as it has for the past several years.

Throughout the counties are many farm families who have borrowed in former years and are still making scheduled repayments. Many other families now farming in these counties, and who had borrowed from FHA, have now repaid their loans in full and are financing their needs through banks and other lenders.

The bulk of the funds borrowed are in operating loans — made to pay costs of feed, seed, fertilizer, pesticides, livestock, machinery and equipment, and to make recommended adjustments in farming systems.

Farm real estate loans are made to improve or purchase farms or farm land, to build or repair farm dwellings and to finance other essential farm construction.

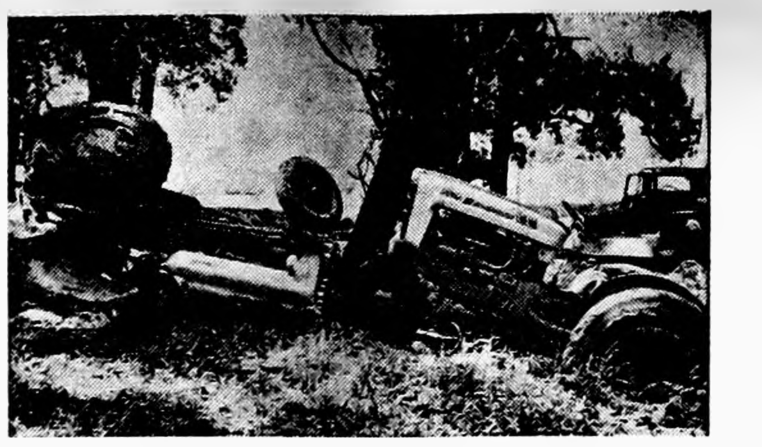
IOWA PRESS ASSOCIATION



WITH THE WORST season for tractor accidents now here, Iowa safety leaders are urging farmers to use extra care during this summer's heavy work schedule. The overturned tractor shown here killed the owner, and is typical of this type of accident. Last year, tractors figured in nearly one-third of Iowa's 747 farm machinery accidents. Last July there were 93 farm accidents involving machinery, and 11 of these were fatal. The Iowa Farm Loss Prevention Institute this week urged farmers to take a little extra time during this rush season, and to exercise a little extra care. It could mean saving a life.

Soil conservation district to pick queen candidates

A pretty farm girl from the Wright County Soil Conservation District could become Iowa's 1960 "Queen of Conservation." The "Queen of Conservation" contest replaces the former "Queen of the Furrow" contest and is being co-sponsored by the Soil Conservation Districts of Iowa and the Farmers Grain Dealers Association of Iowa (cooperative) of Des Moines.

A glamorous wardrobe and beautiful wrist watch await the lucky winner. Besides her prizes, the new queen will be hostess for Iowa Soil Conservation Districts Field Day and Plowing Matches which will be held near Guthrie Center on Sept. 16.

She will also be the official hostess for the annual conference of soil conservation district commissioners at Davenport on September 18-20.

The contest is open to all single girls between the ages of 16 and 21 who reside on farms in Iowa. The Queen will be chosen for her poise, personality, intelligence and personal attractiveness.

The district contest for Wright District will be held the latter part of July. Exact time and place will be announced next week.

Two country winners will each receive a pearl necklace and will compete in the regional contest to be held at the North Iowa Fair in Mason City on Aug. 18.

One winner from each of Iowa's nine soil conservation district regions will vie for the crown of "Queen of Conservation" in the statewide contest to be held at the Plowmen's Banquet in Guthrie Center on Sept. 15.

Official entry blanks can be obtained at the local soil conservation district office, Evans-Kay building, Clarion, from any member company of the Farmers Grain Dealers association or from 4-H leaders.

MR. AND MRS. LOWELL GAETZKE

Watermiller-Gaetzke nuptial rites performed on June 28 at Meservey

The chancel of the Reformed church was enhanced with two large floral arrangements of pink, white and blue garden flowers for the wedding of Miss Beatrice Watermiller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Watermiller, and Lowell Francis Gaetzke, son of Mrs. E. H. Langlitz. The double-ring ceremony was performed Tuesday evening, June 28, at 6:00 o'clock by Rev. Charles Johnson in the presence of a small group of relatives and friends.

Janet Suntken of Belmond played appropriate organ music and accompanied Mrs. Charles Johnson as she sang "Because" and "Wedding Prayer".

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride appeared in a street-length white gown, styled with a fitted bodice, a sabrina neckline which dipped gently in the back, and elbow-length sleeves. Her veil was held in place by four tiny white bows. The cultured pearl earrings and two-strand necklace she wore were a gift of the groom. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white carnations with white streamers.

Mrs. Irvin Benning of Cedar Falls was maid of honor. She was attired in an aqua, floral, street-length dress with white accessories. Her wrist corsage was of pink carnations.

Russel Gaetzke, brother of the groom, served as best man. Herman Groen was the usher. The men of the wedding party had white carnation boutonnieres.

The bride's mother chose a navy blue dress with navy and white accessories. The mother of the groom wore a sheer, flowered dress with white accessories. Their corsages were of pink and white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors. Mrs. John Ruiter cut the three-tiered wedding cake, which was frosted in white with pink rosebuds on each corner and topped with a miniature bride and groom. The tables were laid in white with garnet roses and pink candles.

Alvina Kuhlers poured and was assisted by Mrs. Ruth Prelipp. The bride's table was served by Marie Gruis. Miss Kuhlers also opened and arranged the gifts.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Meservey High school. He served in the U. S. Army and is now employed by Lewis Dorenkamp Construction.

For traveling, the bride chose a pink, sheer dress with fitted bodice and full skirt. Her accessories were white and she wore the carnation corsage from her bouquet.

After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Gaetzke are now living in their newly remodeled home in Meservey.

Ardith Jeanne Leckey of Baton Rouge, La., arrived by plane in Mason City Tuesday of last week where she was met by her great aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. James Hemming of Thornton, who brought her to the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Raecker, where she will spend two weeks vacationing. She had accompanied her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Leckey, by plane as far as Chicago where they were to attend meetings for several days and then return to their home in Louisiana. National Farm Safety Week—July 24-30

OLD JOHN BROWN SEZ:

FARM SAFETY MAKES SENSE

A FARM CHECKED FOR SAFETY IS CHECKED FOR PROFIT, TOO!

Your farm is a vital part of the heart of America, because food is the most important commodity produced. As a farmer you can be justly proud of your place in the national ecomomy.

However, farm accidents can hold back your production — and profits — unless you practice "Farm Safety" in everything you do, every hour of the day! Animals, falls and machinery account for most farm accidents. And accidents cost farmers $75,000,000 every year! So don't take chances. "Cultivate" safety.

Stuart Kutz as administrator. He will start work today in order that he will have the benefit of Mr. Kutz' advice for 10 days before the latter takes up his duties as controller of St. Luke's hospital at Cedar Rapids.

Mr. Witham was graduated from Clare High school, a parochial school, in Webster county in 1952. He farmed for two years, then entered the U. S. Army for an equal period of time.

He was assigned as a personnel administrator in the Army and held a corporal's rating at the time of his discharge in November of 1956. This personnel work inspired his first interest in hospital administration, he says.

Following his discharge, he enrolled in January of 1957 at Fort Dodge Junior college. During two years as a student there he worked during off-hours as an adjustor for a finance company. In January of 1959 he transferred to Buena Vista to obtain his Bachelor of Arts degree.

With the help of summer work last year, Mr. Witham had completed requirements for his degree by this past June. He majored in business administration and his minor course was accounting.

While at Storm Lake, he worked for 14 months as assistant to the administrator of Buena Vista County hospital, which provided him with extensive experience for the position he has accepted here.

The new administrator is married to the former Gloria Yoder of Manson and they have two children — Anne, age 2½ years; and Ellen, 10 months. For the time being the Withams are renting the former Margaret Mennenga residence at 211 Third avenue SE.

on rural property, compared to this year's 11.35; and 6.78 mills against city property, compared to 6.29 for the current year.

An extra $2,000 in taxes for the road clearing fund — raising the appropriation from $10,000 to $12,000 — is prompted by an almost $4,000 drop in the cash balance the first of this year compared to Jan. 1, 1959.

Hearing on the county budget estimate for 1961 will be held at the court house in Clarion on Tuesday, Aug. 2, at 10:00 a.m., when comments will be received from any taxpayers who wish to be heard.

John Van Gerpen's mother dies at 80

Funeral services were held Wednesday of last week at the Buffalo Center Congregational church for Mrs. John Van Gerpen, 80, mother of John Van Gerpen of Belmond. Rev. John D. Engels officiated and burial was in Olena Mound cemetery.

Ina Janssen was born in Germany on Feb. 5, 1880, and emigrated to America with her parents when she was 12 years old. The family settled in Hardin county. She wed John Van Gerpen at Alden on Feb. 21, 1900. They continued to live in Hardin county until moving to Buffalo Center in 1927.

Mrs. Van Gerpen suffered a paralytic stroke on Nov. 8, 1957, two months after her husband's death, and was unable to walk thereafter. She died at her home a week ago last Sunday, July 10.

In addition to her son, she is survived by two daughters, Ina, living at home, and Mrs. C. H. (Lucille) Sonnenberg, also of Buffalo Center. She also leaves nine grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Belmond trounces Garner nine 18-2

Belmond's Junior Legion ball team posted a decisive victory over Garner Monday, winning by an 18-2 margin behind Roger Ginapp's one-hit pitching. Merel Robbins was behind the plate for the victors.

Garner used three hurlers and two catchers in seeking a battery that could stem the flood of Belmond runs.

The winners connected for 11 hits, scoring in every one of the six innings except the second. They were guilty of only two errors, while five bobbles were booked against Garner.

In a midget contest, Garner had better luck, winning 3 to 2.

Hot day attracts 800-plus to pool

Manager Jerry Kintzi reports that last Sunday saw Luick Memorial Swimming Pool drawing its biggest crowd of the current season. With air temperature reaching 90 and the pool temperature attaining a comfortable 78 degrees, an estimated crowd of 800 or more used the pool during the day.

Paid admissions came to $68, compared to the next best day this year of a bit over $40. Mr. Kintzi says that at the peak of the afternoon's heat, no less than 550 persons occupied the pool and sun deck at one time.

Because of the unseasonably cool weather, attendance at the pool has generally run considerably under expectations thus far this summer.

McClenahan, Andy Miller now own Sales Pavilion

Guy McClenahan announces in this issue, jointly with Andrew Miller, that Ray and Don Frye have sold their interest in Belmond Sales Pavilion and Mr. Miller has become a partner of Mr. McClenahan in the business. The new partnership became effective Friday of last week.

Mr. Miller is no stranger to Belmond. Until he left this community 2½ years ago to farm near Huntsville, Mo., he was tenant on the H. C. Simerson farm. He plans to move his family back to Belmond some time this week. The Millers will occupy the property Mr. McClenahan owns at 707 Second avenue NE.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller's two oldest daughters — Iola, 19, and Ilene, 18 — are enrolled at Central Christian College of the Bible at Moberly, Mo., and will not return here with the family. Accompanying their parents will be Jim, now 14, and Susan, age four.

In March of this year, Mr. Miller took the auctioneering course offered by the Reisch Auction school at Mason City and, as he gains experience at the crying of sales, will replace Ray Frye as auctioneer for the pavilion sales. "Coonie" Smith will continue as an auctioneer for the sales barn.

Mr. Frye plans to retire, now that he has disposed of his interest in Belmond Sales Pavilion, but details of his future plans are still uncertain. His son Don will return to full-time farming.

Ray Frye had been associated with the sales barn since March of 1949, when with Jack Munnis he purchased the establishment from Marvin "Slick" Pals. Mr. McClenahan bought Mr. Munnis' share in the business in 1951. The younger Frye joined the firm in 1955.

In 1957, Mr. McClenahan bought the feed business that up to then had been an adjunct of the Sales Pavilion and operated it under the name Mac's Feeder Supply. He will continue to operate this business independently.

● Remember?—

The smiling lad on the front page is Lynn Jenison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Jenison. Lynn graduated from BHS this spring with an athletic record probably unsurpassed by any alumnus of Belmond High, topped by IDPA and D.M. Register All-State honors in basketball. He was also one of the top scholars of the Class of '60. He will attend Iowa State university, Ames, this fall.

ALICE IORIO MARRIED SATURDAY MORNING TO ROBERT L. BRYANT

The Richfield Lutheran church at Minneapolis, Minn., was the scene of the wedding of Alice Lieuwen Iorio of Minneapolis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lieuwen, and Robert Bryant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wells Bryant of Minneapolis. The Rev. Mr. Rasmussen read the double-ring ceremony Saturday morning, July 2, at 11:00 o'clock before an altar decorated with white gladiolas.

Traditional wedding music was played before and after the ceremony.

The attendants were Mrs. Jack Fulton, sister of the bride, and Robert Holzer of Minneapolis. David Nelson of Minneapolis served as usher.

The bride wore a street-length dress of white imported lace with a matching picture hat and a drop diamond necklace, a gift of the groom. Her attendant wore a street-length dress of beige lace with a matching hat. Their corsages were of red roses.

The men wore dark business suits and white carnation boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a navy blue gown with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations and red rosebuds. The groom's mother was attired in a yellow and white cotton dress with white accessories and her corsage was white carnations with yellow rosebuds.

After the ceremony, a wedding dinner was held at the home of the groom's parents for 40 relatives and close friends. The bride cut and served her wedding cake Marie Zimmer and Esther Ackerman of Minneapolis served the dinner. Carol and Terry Bryant of Minneapolis, sisters of the groom, opened the gifts.

Following a trip to northern Minnesota, Mr. and Mrs. Bryant are at home at 4840 Chicago ave. S in Minneapolis.

The bride is employed as a reservation sales agent by Northwest Airlines and the groom as an advertising sales representative by American Tobacco company.

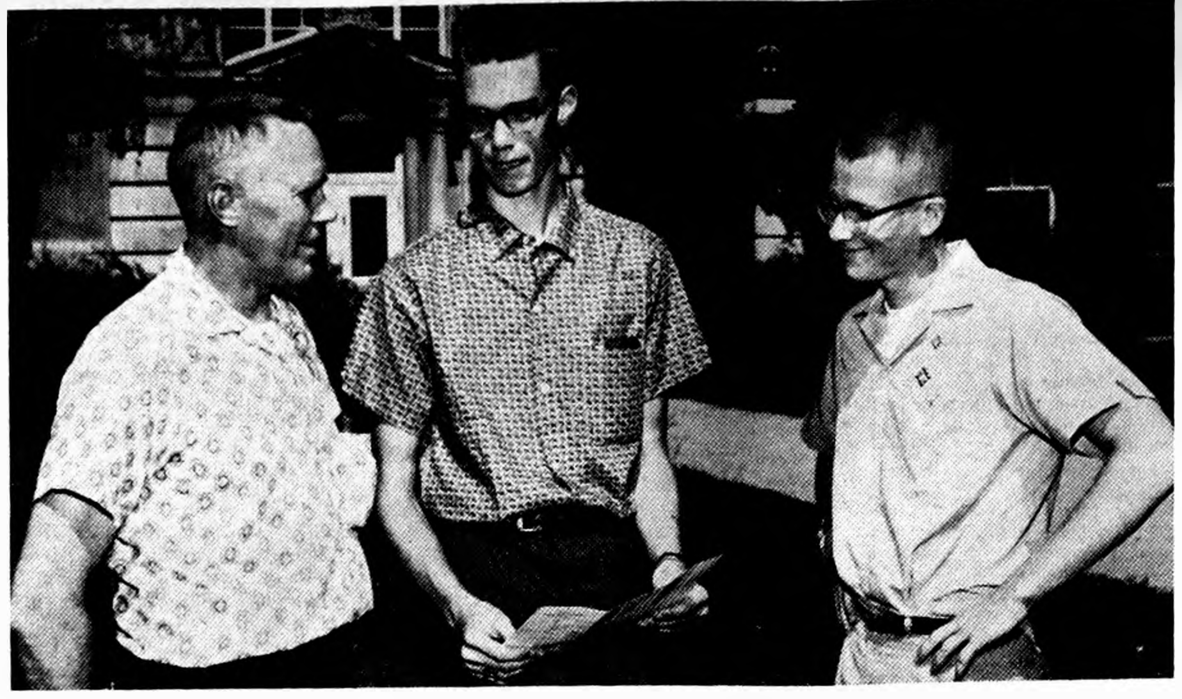
Dr. and Mrs. Dan G. Byrnes of Los Angeles, Calif., are parents of an 8 lb. baby boy born July 17. His name will be David and his grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dempsey. His mother is the former Betty Dempsey.



ENGINEERS-TO-BE Curtis Trager and Walt Hotvet (center and right) are shown above with the former's father, Carl Trager, during a recent engineering orientation program for prospective freshmen held on the Iowa State university campus at Ames. Examinations were given the young visitors to determine their interests and capabilities. They also conferred with counselors so the freshman applicants could get aid in their proposed study programs. Mr. Trager enjoyed a coffee hour with other parents and members of the college of engineering staff which enabled him to learn something about college life on the ISU campus and to ask questions regarding the engineering school.

MIDGET LEAGUE STANDINGS

One of the best games of the PTA summer recreation baseball season, fought out last Friday evening saw the Cubs trim the Red Sox with a deciding run in the bottom of the fourth inning. Donnie Havens, pitcher for the victors, won his own ball game by smashing out a homerun after one batter was out to clinch the decision at 7-6.

In this peewee thriller, the Sox went into the final inning trailing 6-0 and Havens had a no-hitter going. A hit by Paul Bamford, plus three walks and four errors enabled the Red Sox to tie it up in their half of the 4th. Vance Jenison hurled well for the losers, allowing only two hits, but still fell short of Havens' one-hit performance.

Craig Boller's Indians retained top position in the midget league with a 14-1 Friday night victory over Bob Misner's Orioles. Terry Armour didn't allow the losers a hit in their one time at bat. The Indians won in the top of the 2nd on the 12-run rule.

Tuesday evening's peewee game last week saw Jim Dickson's Cardinals pull ahead of Fred Whipple's Giants in the standings with a well-played 5-1 win. Rick Hawley pitched no-hit ball for the Cards and connected for a homer to help his own cause. Ron Ginapp, on the mound for the Giants, gave up only two hits but allowed seven walks. Hawley issued only three passes.

In the midget tilt Tuesday, Jerry Soma's Yankees handed Neal Waddington's Tigers their first loss, 10 to 5. Waddington yielded only five hits but passed batters nine times. Soma was touched for six hits but walked only three men.

Tomorrow night a key game of the midget scheduled will see the Tigers endeavoring to spoil the Indians' defeatless record. A loss by the Indians would create a three-way tie for 1st place, the Tigers and Yanks sharing the spot.

CHEVROLET
Not a single cracked egg since Chevy took over the route

That '60 Fleetside pickup you see takes whatever kind of road comes along, and makes about 250 stops a day delivering eggs house to house for Mr. Harry Hansen of Missoula, Montana. "With my previous truck," Mr. Hansen writes, "I always had some cracked eggs. Cargo damage always cut into my profits. But the new Chevy eliminated that problem completely. I haven't had one cracked egg with my new truck and I've had up to a ton of eggs in it without any difficulty. . . . I didn't know a truck could ride so nice."

Chevy rides nice, all right: takes good care of fragile cargoes. But that's not even the half of it. Torsion-spring suspension also means longer life for the truck, extra thousands of working miles, because the sheet metal and body components take less of a beating. You can run off-the-road or over back trails at faster safe speeds, too; get in more trips a day, make more money. Those facts are as true of the big Chevrolet heavyweights as they are of the pickups. Any model you name. Get one on your job and you've got the world's most efficient, most economical way to haul any load over any road. Your dealer will be happy to prove that statement any day you say.

◂ "I'm getting close to 20 miles to the gallon," Mr. Hansen states, "and that's on stop-and-go delivery."

Wright county's budget proves "tighter" than most

A study made by the Iowa Taxpayers association on the expenditures proposed by Iowa counties for 1959 and the actual sums expended shows that, in the aggregate, 98 counties (Woodward's figures were not available) missed their estimate by $19 million.

Considering that that amount was the difference between $137 million and $117.6 million, representing an overestimate of 16.5 per cent, the ITA does not regard the estimating as particularly astute.

Of course, it is recognized that budget needs cannot be anticipated down to the last penny. It is noteworthy that Wright county did appreciably better than the average. Its unencumbered balance at the end of the year was $58,947, compared to actual expenditures of $903,235. The county departments' estimate of expenditures had totalled $962,182.

So Wright county "overestimated" (the term is hardly warranted in this instance) by only 6.5 per cent. Since 1951, when a period of excessively careless budgeting was called to a halt by protesting taxpayers, Wright county's annual budgets have been kept relatively "tight."

While it has been a quite widely prevailing practice to make a more or less wild guess on the needs of some funds, there is little excuse for such budgeting. Last summer at the hearing on the budget for the current year, the conservation commission's cash request was logically cut when no specific justification for the amount asked could be provided.

Taxpayers interested enough in a budget to attend the public hearing on it have a right to be satisfied that tax askings are reasonable and needs bona fide, as set forth in each fund.

Last summer, it was pointed out at the county budget hearing at Clarion that approximately $50,000 appeared to be unaccounted for in the road fund — that it clearly would be available, but that the budget made no accounting for it. The reply of the supervisors' chairman, when questioned on the matter, was that if such an amount DID exist, it would be spent on additional road construction.

As it turned out, the taxpayer analysis of the fund proved correct — and also the chairman's promise as to disposition of the excess money. It was utilized to put the county's 10-year road surfacing program one project ahead of schedule.

However, in these days of continually rising taxes, it seems a logical prerogative of the taxpayers to request that programs requiring capital outlay be systematically followed so that — when avoidable — a heavier than necessary millage is not levied in any one year.

By and large, Wright countians can be reasonably well satisfied with the current administration of their local government. That does not mean, though, that there isn't still ample room for improvement.

For example, some "wise spending" for voting machines could effect sizeable, long-range savings on election costs. Competitive bidding is still not employed in the purchase of quite a number of items that would lend themselves advantageously to such a practice. And our soldiers relief administration continues to be of dubious quality. These are things the taxpayers might give some thought to with "hearing time" once again just around the corner.

Demo's want farmer back on "hooch" of high parity

Of more significance to the midwest that Sen. John Kennedy's nomination as the Democratic candidate for president and the nomination of Sen. Lyndon Johnson as his running mate is the farm plank upon which these two men are pledged to stand.

We're going to be hearing a lot about it. Because Gov. Herschel Loveless had the chance to land the deciding 1st ballot votes in Kennedy's column and took advantage of the opportunity, we'll hearing of it from the young nominee's own lips.

He promised this to Loveless in appreciation of services rendered — and personally, we're happy he's chosen this means of settling the debt rather than giving serious consideration to Herschel as a running mate.

How the majority of Iowa farmers may vote in the general election we'd hesitate to guess. We know this, though, many of the most successful farmers we're acquainted with are NOT going to be happy over the prospect of a farm program based on high price supports and rigid controls.

Just exactly what the Republicans will come up with as a farm plank remains to be seen. But the GOP is quite thoroughly committed to placing emphasis on conservation as a means of limiting harmful surpluses.

The Poage Family Income bill that's been getting a kicking around in the current term of Congress pretty much sets the pattern of the type of farm bill the Democrats are promising.

From where we sit, this seems on a par with assuring an alcoholic that "just one" won't hurt him. The smart farmer knows that what he needs is a vitamin-rich diet of self reliance, with only such help from the government as will abet his own efforts without seriously infringing on his independence.

The farmer was on a high-parity binge for a number of years and ended up with little more to show for it than a headache. The sobering up process has been a painful one, but we know a good number of our farmer friends who regard that progress has been made and that the ordeal's been worth it in freedom from controls.

Now the cry is ringing out again, "See what the boys in the back room will have!"

Clearly the Democrats think enough farmers have a foot itchy for the brass rail that they can catch a majority of them with another round of high-parity hooch. It will enslave them, just as surely as it did before, if they order up!

One thing is certain. Those farmers who prefer the sober life of self-dependence, with only such aids as aren't habit forming and disabling, will know clearly which party to vote for in November.

Questions of interest to taxpayers

In the absence of a Taxpayers Association, badly needed in Mitchell county, there are some items which interested and concerned taxpayers can check in the budget estimates that appear this week and will appear in the next few weeks in these pages. These questions can be asked at the public hearings held by each taxing bodies usually within two weeks of the time the budget notice appears in the paper.

But although we cry continually at these budget hearings "No taxpayer ever shows up to ask questions." If taxpayers did show up at the hearings, here are some of the items they might check.

ARE ALL ESTIMATES OF EXpenditures in each fund backed up with detailed supporting data or is the amount shown in the budget simply a "guess" of what will be spent?

Is every budget item increase explainable by the officials concerned?

Is your local property tax situation unfavorable when compared to other communities you may be competing with for new industry? ([illegible], New Hampton, Forest City, Charles City, Mason City for example).

IS THERE A SYSTEMATIC AND continuing inventory of equipment, tools, materials and supplies?

Are publicly owned motor vehicles used for private purposes?

Do the public officials seek bids from competitive firms on all purchases, especially major items of expense?

Does your welfare department make systematic and periodic checks on the eligibility of persons on relief rolls?

Is your county collecting a fair percentage of the money it pays out for care in various state institutions of patients who are able to pay their own expenses?

DO YOUR PUBLIC OFFICIALS make a serious effort to purchase goods, services and equipment in your home community where prices are usually lower, or do they spend tax funds almost exclusively with out-of-county salesmen who contribute nothing to the welfare of the community?

Are your schools employing more teachers and supervisory personnel than are absolutely essential for the proper and effective functioning of the schools?

These are interesting and worth while questions. Every public official in Mitchell county should be able to answer them to your complete satisfaction. — Osage Press News

City can't relax

Britt residents can take some satisfaction from the state audit of the city business for 1959.

The auditor reports that the city seems to be getting close attention to business by its officials. The clerk's business and financial records are up to date and all in order. We have only [illegible] in general obligation bonds outstanding. We are in a good position to continue on community projects that will provide a better community.

However, residents and officials should not become complacent. Are we still getting the most governmental services for our tax money? For instance, we pay [illegible] in taxes for public safety. Are we getting all the services, protection and law enforcement that amount will give us?

THE ENGINEER TOLD THE council recently that the sewage disposal plant is operating at only one-third of its efficiency. We should expect better use of this facility and a move is underway to correct this deficiency.

Perhaps the $17,000 we pay in tax money will only give us the quality of streets that we have, but we should not settle for that. Investigation is underway to see how much more money some better streets will take.

We mention these things to point out that city government never stands still. It takes continual effort on the part of someone to get the most from what we have. — Britt News-Tribune

Young man unafraid

The bleak picture of youth we get too often these days was brightened by the recent news of the Westbury, Long Island high school senior refusing to accept a graduation award because he disagreed with the policies of the organization giving it.

The American Legion offered the award. But the name of the organization, in this instance, is beside the point.

WHAT IS IMPORTANT AND refreshing is that honor student Stephen Bayne is a young man with principles and is willing to stand up for them.

We cannot see such a lad becoming a victim of the me-too-ism that has stunted the intellectual growth of so many our our youngsters and blunted the political imagination of so many of their elders. — New York Herald Tribune

IT'S AEROSPACE FORCE—

Don't know whether it's due to the fact that we just passed our four-dozenth birthday last week, or wether the pace of the world is just becoming next to impossible for ANYONE to keep up with. But it seems to us that, like Alice in Wonderland, a person has to run like the dickens just to stay in the same place anymore.

What re-impressed this on our mind — already panting to keep even — was a release from the USAF last weekend which identified it as the U. S. "Aerospace" Force rather than the oldfashioned Air Force, to which we'd become accustomed.

Obviously, this military service finds the confines of the earth's atmosphere too restrictive, as it contemplates its responsibilities of the imminent future. What a change a decade and a half has wrought! Remember that it wasn't until well along in World War II (if our memory serves us well) that the Air Force ceased to be an adjunct of the U.S. Army and became an independent service.

Can't you just see the USAF recruiting slogans of a few years hence? . . . "Join the Aerospace Force and see the Universe! . . . "Join NOW and Pick Your Planet!" . . . "Aerospacemen Needed NOW to Man Uncle Sam's Newest Space Platform."

SLOUGHS OF YESTERYEAR—

Since that first Sputnik was successfully launched less than three years ago, mankind has had thrust upon it all kinds of "travel" problems that previously required no consideration. But hardships entailed in transportation have been with the human race ever since the first wheel was invented — and undoubtedly before that.

One of the biggest obstacles to early settlers of this part of the country and the pioneers who had to negotiate these midwestern prairies en route to points father west, was the river bottomland and its sloughs.

The June issue of Iowa History News Flashes of the State Historical Society comments at some length on this menace to prarie schooner travel. Our own Iowa River valley ranked high on the list of roundly cursed bottomlands. As though the bottomless muck were not trouble enough, these sloughs were inevitably populated by swarms of mosquitos that added insult to injury as pioneers tried to extricate covered wagons from the bogs.

The diary of a soldier recounting passage of the U.S. Army's 1st Dragoons across neighboring Humboldt county in 1844 noted that his unit struck "a succession of the most terrible slues" during an expedition from Fort Des Moines. As the soldiers heaved their wagons out of mudhole after mudhole, 12 miles were traveled in approximately 12 hours time.

"WHAT A NAME! AND OH!"—

Nearby Calhoun county, to the west, had one bog so mutilating to the human spirit that it earned the name "Purgatory Slough." And a 1850 newspaper wrote of it: "What a name! and oh! What a slough! we hear those exclaim who have been so unfortunate as to be caught in it. We heard one individual say that it took four yoke of oxen to pull his light buggy through this slough.

"The bottom of it has never been found, and it is thought by some that it has fallen out, leaving nothing but blackmiry mud — a contest with which it is thought must at least equal the supposed torments of Purgatory, hence the name."

Purgatory Creek, creator of the awesome slough, today gurgles peacefully beneath concrete bridges, an inoffensive streamlet that seems totally undeserving of its title.

THE "SKUNK BOTTOMS"—

Rivalling the Iowa River lowlands in devilish reputation were the "Skunk Bottoms" — the swampland along the Skunk river. A party headed for the Colorado gold rush in '59 reported that they "found them as bad as expected and that was bad enough. We had to double team for over a mile, wagons down to the axletrees all the way."

Summarizing the News Flashes' article concluded: "Although sloughs posed a problem for our pioneers, few hardy travelers were deterred by the prospects of a day spent with men and animals wallowing in the mud.

"Modern highways and drainage methods ended the slough 'menace' and also closed a muddy chapter in the history of transportation in Iowa (which in early days of the auto found two sets of tire chains an absolute 'must' for any motorist braving the Hawkeye States gumbo roadways in time of rain)."

BLOUGH THOUGHT—

A settler was often made
blough,
His temper upset
And his brow drenched with sweat
At the very thought of a slough.

Know your businessmen—

Kennedys, ex-truckers, like furniture trade

Dave Kennedy and his father, Charles Kennedy, had been in the dray business here in Belmond for nearly nine years when the former was advised by his doctor that he (Dave) had a decision to make.

Poor health had Dave just about on the ropes, and the medico informed him he had the choice of getting out of the trucking business or risking a serious break in his health.

Understandably in need of a cup of coffee to settle his nerves, Dave stopped at the Mello Maid and ran into Dan Boone, who was in the furniture business here at the time.

"Why don't you sell your furniture store to me?" Dave asked.

"Let's go take inventory," Dan replied — and the deal was consummated just about that abruptly.

Up to that time, the only experience with furniture Dave and Charley had had consisted of moving a good deal of it. But once he and his father found themselves in the furniture business Dave quickly became convinced that fate had led them in the right direction. He readily admits that he "loves it" — to a degree that a 16 or 17-hour day is no chore, but filled with pleasure.

When the Kennedys took over the business (then located where Belmond Hardware is situated today) on Dec. 1, 1953, Dave set a volume goal he was determined to achieve in five years. He admits with pardonable pride that the goal actually was met intwo years — and better than doubled in five.

Kennedy Furniture has been in its present quarters since late 1954. It provides space for a good choice of furniture on the ground floor (which has been supplemented by the former P&G grocery building cater-corner across the street) and in the basement is one of Iowa's widest selections of floor coverings.

Salesmen have told Dave, in fact, that no furniture store in the state carries a bigger floor-covering stock than Kennedy's of about 150 rolls in some 125 different patterns. Dave admits that in the early, struggling days of the store he got it on a firm financial footing by knocking on doors in an area of wide radius around Belmond, seeking floor-covering sales.

If any one, particular merchandise line has been most responsible for making Kennedy's the thriving business it is today, probably credit should go to floor coverings. In this connection he gives generous praise to his two installation mechanics, Louie Perkins and Bud Johnson.

Dave says the excellence of their workmanship has brought much business to the store, not only in the floor-covering line but indirectly in furniture purchases of all types.

"The furniture business varies from many others," Dave observes, "in that the customer must depend heavily on the merchant's judgment. Confidence of the buying public is about as valuable an asset as a furniture dealer can possess."

He goes on to explain that the quality of furniture and its allied products is not readily detectable from surface appearance. Consequently, a good share of the time the buyer has little to go on except the merchant's assurances as to the true value of an article being bought.

Through the mediums of expert installation (of floor-coverings), honest servicing, and replacements when necessary, Kennedy's has built up an enviable reputation in the furniture trade.

As an example of how customer confidence has been won, Dave recalls a time that he was "taken in" on a purchase of carpeting. It proved inferior to guaranteed performance — and the manufacturer would not stand behind it. Kennedy's replaced 153 yards of the stuff out of their own till. It was pretty costly at the time, but Dave says, "It was sure worth the money in terms of good customers kept happy."

Kennedy Furniture keeps keenly alert to opportunities to make "good buys, and passes the savings on to its customers — rather than cutting a fatter profit — when such an opportunity presents itself. "Furniture bargains," according to Dave, are largely the result of the retailer being "at the right place, at the right time — with the money to buy."

To that end, Dave spends an unusually large amount of time visiting markets and contacting wholesalers for better deals than a salesman walking through the door could ever offer.

Besides the valued judgment of his father and the expert workmanship of Louie Perkins and Bud Johnson, Dave shares credit for Kennedy's success with other members of the staff.

Roger Wagner, earlier employed by the Kennedy dray business, is a valued aid. And over the years, Emory Thompson (farming now, and off the payroll at present) and Minnie Johnson (who came with the store, when Boone sold out) have helped to make Kennedy Furniture the thriving success it is today.

IT'S HARD TO FARM WITHOUT AN ARM!

Will yours be the one in five farm families in which accidents occur this year? You and only you can eliminate the hazards that may cost a life.

Your farm implements are as safe as can be made but it is up to you to operate them safely. Keep them in good repair and don't wear loose clothing around machinery. The life you save may be your own.

Ever try scooping grain with one arm? It can be done, but it is not easy. Maybe you'd like to try operating your combine or baler with one arm? Farming calls for two hands, two arms and two legs. It can be done with less, but you wouldn't deliberately ask to farm that way, would you? Your are asking for it if you don't follow the safety rules of good common sense in your every day living!

VOL. 41 NO. 43 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER WRIGHT COUNTY, IOWA—THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1960 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Elsewhere on this page is reported the nerve-wracking experience that Randall Klemme and his wife lived through Sunday in flying to Mason City so he could fill a speaking engagement at Winnebago Council Boy Scout camp. When the plane was flown back to Omaha, after its landing gear refused to lower, their predicament was extensively publicized on the radio and television.

For about two hours the aircraft flew about the Omaha vicinity — first trying with a continued lack of success to get the landing wheels down, then getting rid of gasoline to minimize the chance of a fire when it was clear there was no choice but to crash land the plane.

Fearing that their daughter Patty would be greatly distraught from hearing of their plight, the Klemmes called her before phoning his parents — the Ray Klemmes — here to put their minds at ease. But Patty had been near neither radio nor television and had to have explained to her what it was all about. He declared in talking with his mother that it was just as well that his dedicatory address at Marble Rock was cancelled. He admitted he was left in no shape for public speaking.

Last Friday morning saw the first return of Rev. William Hill to some of his customary haunts in much too long a time. Before sickness hospitalized him for a number of weeks, the Congregational pastor met each morning at coffee-break time with his klatch of "saints."

He always identified himself as the "sinner" of the assemblage — a bit of "poetic license" in reverse.

The elderly shepherd's java flock has probably done some fairly grievous back-sliding while out from under his influence; but it shouldn't take the reverend too long to get 'em whipped back into shape. His presence Friday had a salutary effect on the language used, at least.

While people are pretty hard to impress with entertainment these days, having seen the best there is at a twist of their television knob, the free show offered in conjunction with the All-Vets celebration last weekend drew generous applause from good-sized crowds. Three of the acts were good enough to deserve a place on just about any vaudeville program — the tighwire comedian, the clever cyclist and the acrobatic duo who climaxed their performance with what they called the "Helicopter Whirl." Worse acts, by a long shot, have appeared on TV as variety attractions.

Got a piteous wail from Edus Johnson after our first "Remember?" picture appeared a couple of weeks ago. He wrote, "I looked all through Page 7 and couldn't find the names of the two youngsters."

The back shop "done us wrong" and about 500 copies of the July 14 issue didn't have the correct page number on which the "Remember?" answer could be found.

With a little more determination, "Ed" would have found on Page 5 the identification of Lavonne Hansen ("Miss Belmond") and Lynne Arends (1st runner-up in the Jaycees' July 4th "Miss Belmond" pageant).

Rev. William Heinzig, who is vacationing in Regina, Sask., Canada, dropped us a line on Friday of last week to advise what his St. John Lutheran church notes should contain for this coming Sunday. So that he and his family would not be subjects of unwarranted envy he added, "It is hot here, too; but we are having a fine time."

Credit Wright county's delegation to the state Republican convention with having minds of their own. While all but two or three of the county groups lined up behind Jack Miller or Dayton Countryman on the first ballot, Wright gave a majority of its vote to Rollo Bergeson.

Wright's initial vote was recorded: Bergeson 15, Countryman 7, Miller 4, Stringer 2. Polk was the only other county giving most of its votes to Bergeson for the U. S. Senator nomination.

When the band-wagon break came and counties started throwing their support to Miller as the obvious winner, a new poll of the Wright delegation showed it still doing its own thinking — Stringer 8, Countryman 8, Miller 5, Bergeson 4. No sheep, these Wright countians.

DISPLAYING A SOUVENIR of their days in Bangkok, Thailand, Mrs. Carl Wagoner here displays a beautiful scarf of Thailand silk draped about her shoulders. Her husband, pictured with her, says he leaves "dickering" to his wife when there's buying to be done in foreign stores or markets because "Athena can bargain a great deal better than I can." The Wagoners have just concluded a visit in the home of Carl's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Klinefelter of Goodell, and with other relatives.

County outlay more than $2 million—

Building here exceeded $370,000 in 1959

Belmond last year enjoyed one of the biggest construction years in its history, a rise of $111,264 in real estate tax evaluation indicates. This assessed value would convert into construction cost of $370,900, County Assessor F. Ross Henry states.

This would be the largest outlay for construction that Belmond has witnessed since 1954, which is as far back at The Independent has reported annually on building here.

New building here in the past half dozen years has had construction cost estimated as follows: 1959 — $370,900; 1958 — $236,000; 1957 — $182,000; 1956 — $330,000; 1955 — $253,280; 1954 — $128,860.

MAIN STREET

In terms of assessed valuation, Belmond real estate value was set at $2,320,279 for 1960 compared to $2,209,015 for 1959. Clarion's assessed real estate valuation increased a bit less than Belmond's, rising $104,184 to a 1960 total of $3,308,246. Eagle Grove had much the most remarkable increase among Wright county's cities — up $197,937 to $4,099,224.

Converted to actual cost of construction, Clarion's real estate gain would indicate new building amounting to about $347,000 during 1959 and Eagle Grove's gain would point to new building aggregating almost $660,000.

"Building year" for Wright

The amount of building is arrived at by ascertaining the "actual" value, of which the assessed value is 60 per cent; and then doubling that "actual" value to produce the approximate cost of construction.

That 1959 was a "building year" for the county as a whole is shown by an over all outlay for building that came to $2,090,000, compared to only $1,346,000 in 1958. Assessed valuation of Wright real estate jumped a matter of $626,928 — to a 1960 total of $40,139,672.

Increases in assessed valuation in near-by townships were as follows: Belmond township, up $20,137 to $2,130,373; Pleasant, up $10,054 to $1,832,752; Norway, up $7,023 to $1,915,533; Iowa, up $10,198 to $1,869,759; Grant, up $14,083 to $1,694,428. The town of Rowan showed a gain of $3,465 to $200,742.

Rowan shows big gain

Among Eagle Grove, Clarion and Belmond, the latter showed a bit the largest rise in personal property assessed evaluation over 1959. The gain here was $30,952, bringing the total to $827,180. Clarion's increase was $29,925 to $1,004,313; and Eagle Grove's $24,342 to $1,603,272.

Rowan outstripped all of its three larger neighbors in regard to amount of gain in personal property assessed valuation, its figure rising $46,489 to $132,681.

Belmond township showed an increase of $26,578 to $439,956; Grant a rise of $13,392 to $287,967 and Norway a jump of $11,961 to $267,078. Declines in assessed valuation of personal property were shown by Iowa, down $1,110 to $301,155; and Pleasant, down $231 to $258,840.

For the county as a whole, an increase of $263,333 in personal property valuation was shown between 1959 and 60, bringing the present total assessed valuation to $8,921,093.

Assessor Henry, in providing figures on monies and credits, admitted he could offer no explanation for the strange antics shown by the various taxing divisions in this tax revenue category.

In Wright county as a whole, the total of taxable monies and credits went up to $5,949,787, an increase of $131,211 — and Belmond's gain accounted for $104,123 of that figure. Eagle Grove showed a decrease in monies and credits amounting to $73,867; and Clarion showed almost an equal decrease, $73,293.

In contrast to Eagle Grove and Clarion, monies and credits in Rowan were up $37,836. These shifts made the various communities' m-and-c totals: Belmond $853,681; Clarion $1,569,365; Eagle Grove $1,389,969; Rowan $72,754.

Belmond township's monies and credits were down a matter of $41,049 from 1959, to $58,502; Pleasant's were down $9,950, to $26,115; and Norway's were down $6,621, to $27,603.

On the other hand, Iowa township showed a robust rise of $92,256 to $200,505; and Grant showed an increase of $42,904, to $82,140.

Carl Wagoner visits Belmond—

Nearly 15 years with state dept.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Carl Waggoner of Washington, D. C., left on their return trip to the capital after visiting since the early part of July with relatives of Mr. Wagoner in Belmond and vicinity. He is returning to duties with the U. S. state department, by whom he has been employed for over 14 years.

This was Mr. Wagoner's first visit home (he is the son of Mrs. Julius Wagoner and the late Mr. Wagoner) since Army duty took him overseas in 1942. He was in uniform for four years and participated in the invasion of Africa.

Later he was assigned to Italy, where he served as a radio technician with the Army signal corps. At the war's end he was with an Allied Control Commission team, whose assignment was protecting American property in the war stricken countries abroad.

When he was discharged in '46 as a Master Sergeant, Carl accepted a job with the state department and was first assigned to the U. S. legation at Budapest, Hungary. This was before the "iron curtain" blocked this old-world capital from the free world.

After 4½ years at Budapest, Carl was transferred to Porto Alegre, a Brazilian seaport city, where he was connected with the U. S. consulate. From there he went to Amman, Jordan, for four years. It was this assignment that brought him, indirectly, acquaintanceship with his wife.

Carl was returning to his post via steamship after enjoying leave at the end of two years' duty in Jordan and a fellow passenger was his wife-to-be, Athena. This was one shipboard romance that "took," for not too long afterward Athena flew to Amman to become Carl's bride.

Since then, the Waggoners have lived in Rome; in Bangkok, Thailand (formerly Siam); and in Belgrade, Jugoslavia. Mrs. Wagoner developed thyroid trouble in the course of their travels and her health prompted Carl to ask for a domestic assignment last year.

In May of 1959, Carl was ordered to Washington, D. C., for duty until such time as Athena's improving health will permit their return to foreign service. Since returning to the States, Mrs. Wagoner has undergone an operation and other treatment and says she is now "feeling fine."

Except for Rome, Carl says every one of his assignments has been to what would in the language of the diplomatic service be regarded a "hardship post." His work, though, has been sufficiently interesting that his surroundings have not been a reason for discontent. Both he and his wife admit, that they'd had "enough" of Jordan by the time they were transferred to Bangkok.

Bangkok is remembered by both of them fondly because of memories of a charming Thai lass who served as a maid in their household. Her name was (and is) Bo-Tee and she is 21 years old. Because her outlook for being anything but a domestic all her life is very dim in Thailand, Carl is pulling what strings he can in an effort to get her to the U. S. on a student's visa.

Because her father was Chinese and her mother Siamese, it's next to impossible to get her fitted into the immigration quota of either China or Thailand.

A BHS graduate in '28, Mr. Wagoner has found his unexpected occupation one which is both keenly interesting and highly challenging. Both he and his wife are eagerly looking forward to returning to foreign service. They hope their next assignment may be to Europe.

When the time arrives, he will be given the opportunity to list in order three duty stations where he'd most prefer to serve. If a staff opening that he could fill is available at one of them, his preference will be observed. Otherwise, he'll go where he is needed — "which," Carl observes, "could be almost anywhere."

TWO FOOD SALES SLATED

Two food sales are planned for Saturday morning at 10:00 o'clock by circles of the Methodist church. Mary and Esther Circles will combine efforts in a sale at Hattel's Super Valu grocery and the Ruth and Martha Circles will combine for a sale at the P&G grocery.

Just too durned hot!

Just too hot for anything — including chasing a fistful of dollars. That seemed to be the story Tuesday afternoon when a dozen Cash Gift Day numbers were posted, but not a one of them was matched by a reader of The Independent or Buyers Guide. That leaves $400 to be pursued by number-holders next Tuesday. Again that amount will be split into eight $25 prizes at 2:00 p. m. and four $50's at 3:00 o'clock. Maybe next Tuesday it'll be cool enough to bother.

THIS LOVELY creature will be breaking hearts on Main street on Ridiculous Day, Saturday, Aug. 20. The Chamber of Commerce expects this promotion to be more fun than a barrel of monkeys — and smell a LOT better. A prize of $10 is to go to the first person correctly identifying the merchant pictured above. Guesses must be mailed to The Independent. In case two correct ones arrive on the same day, postmark will determine the winner. . . . But EVERYONE coming to Belmond on Ridiculous Day will be a winner, from the standpoint of both bargains and laughs.

Law investigating Hoppel car crash

Patrolman Ben Urban of Clarion had under investigation this week an accident on Highway 3 east of Clarion that hospitalized Gaylon Lathrop of Belmond and damaged — apparently beyond repair — the '54 Chevrolet owned and driven by Roger Hoppel in which Lathrop was riding.

Young Lathrop was taken first to Clarion Memorial hospital and then transferred Monday evening to Belmond Community hospital. X-rays divulged that he had had several bones in one leg chipped and Tuesday he was taken to Mercy hospital at Mason City to receive the attention of a bone specialist. Hoppel was not hurt.

It was about 3¼ miles east of Clarion at approximately 5:15 p. m. Monday, according to Patrolman Urban, that the accident occurred as Hopel was in the process of passing a pick-up truck driven by Bill Grayson. The latter is presently staying at Van Gerpen's trailer court here. Hoppel lost control of his vehicle, skidded and rolled into the south ditch and snapped off a powerline pole at the fence line. Both the car and truck were headed east, the young men being on their way home after a day's work with a Northern Natural Gas company line crew.

Deputy Sheriff Dale Walrod stated that the Hoppel car skidded and rolled a distance of about 400 feet before crashing into the pole.

MARILYN JOHNSON ATTENDS HOSPITAL FINANCE PARLEY

Marilyn Johnson, Belmond Community hospital's office manager, returned last Saturday after spending the preceding week attending the 18th annual institute on hospital accounting and finance held at Indiana university, Bloomington.

Sponsored by the American Association of Hospital Accountants, the week's program was devoted to financial management controls.

Neighbors, friends bring in oats for Ed Schimp

Nineteen neighbors and friends of Ed Schimp, plus his son Larry, made short work Monday afternoon of harvesting close to 50 acres of oats which Ed had been unable to get at because of recent major surgery.

Combines were provided by Dick Ersland, Jim McMurray, Arnold Barkema, Lewis Sorenson and Dwight Tyrrell. With Ed's own machine — driven by Harm Sandman — that made an even half dozen harvesters on the job.

Other men who helped with oats harvest were: Gary and Larry Ersland, Richard McMurray, Richard Peddicord, Mike Berhow, Jerry Tripp, Wayne Mason, Philip Erdman and Harold Erdman.

At mid-afternoon the crew was served refreshments by Mrs. Schimp, Mrs. Harold Erdman and Mrs. Arnold Barkema.

Work was started about 1:00 p. m., and by 5:30 o'clock all the oats were in the bin. A phone call was made to Mr. Schimp to tell him the oats harvesting was done, that the crop had averaged about 55 bushels to the acre and weighed a highly respectable 39 pounds to the bushel.

Ed said, with a smile evident in his voice, "that's about the best medicine I could have right at this time."

It was back on Jan. 30 of this year that Mr. Schimp suffered a fractured vertebra when some bales of frozen straw fell over on him. He spent seven weeks in Belmond Community hospital and then two months in a plaster cast.

He had been required to wear a brace right up to the time he went to Mercy hospital, Mason City, two weeks ago last Monday to undergo spinal surgery at the hands of a specialist.

Ed had been suffering increasing pain because of a nerve being pinched by scar tissue that has developed from his injury in January. He's hoping that the operation set things a-right and that his recovery will find him ready to undertake full-scale farming once again.

BACK TO CANAL ZONE

Harold Barkema returned to Panama Canal Zone after a visit at the parental Charlie Barkema home. His sister, Mrs. Wilbur Larson of Latimer, and Johnny Barkema accompanied him to New York City and the latter two returned home Saturday morning. Harold arrived in the Canal Zone the same day. He has a civil service job at an airport there.

BACK FROM TROUBLED Africa are Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Nelson, who arrived at Des Moines Municipal Airport on Wednesday of last week to spend the next 16 or 17 months on furlough from his missionary duties in Zululand. After 6½ years in Africa—

Missionary back home on furlough

About 30 happy relatives and friends from Belmond and elsewhere greeted Rev. Herbert Nelson and his family at the Des Moines Municipal Airport on Wednesday of last week, happy to see them safe from the strife that has been developing in Africa and eager to greet them on their first reurn to the States in over six years' time.

A Des Moines Register reporter, Dean Fischer, had the following by-lined story on the Nelsons in the Friday issue of the morning paper:

A missionary from South Africa said here Thursday that African nations "must not be granted independence in quick stages," although he conceded "the rise of nationalism can't be stopped."

The Rev. Herbert Nelson of Belmond, who arrived with his wife and six children in Des Moines Wednesday night after 6½ years in Zululand, South Africa, said the people of Africa are not ready for independence. He has spent the last year and a half in Durban.

"They haven't been trained for it," he said.

Referring to the violent upheavals in the Congo after that nation recently became independent, the Rev. Mr. Nelson, who is in charge of an American Lutheran Mission in Zululand, said the process toward independence must be evolutionary.

"It must start today, in the churches, the homes and the businesses," he said.

Government in South Africa is controlled by the Afrikaans, descendants of the Dutch Boers. To avoid nationalist uprisings, Nelson said the Afrikaans depend on a policy of "apartheid" — complete separation of races in schools, living quarters and farm areas.

The Rev. Mr. Nelson said he is opposed to both extremes — the apartheid policy, and the granting of independence to Africans without careful preparation.

He said the situation in South Africa would be much worse if it were not for the churches. The church has taught the Africans to obey their government.

The Rev. and Mrs. Nelson and their six children are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nelson, in Belmond, and other relatives. In September, Nelson said he would begin work in the church's evangelism department in Minnesota.

Randall Klemme and wife unhurt when airplane has to belly-land

Plans for Randall Klemme's appearance at Sunday's dedication of the new Winnebago Council Scout Reservation at Marble Rock were cancelled out by an airplane mishap that otherwise had a happy ending.

Accompanied by his wife Margaret, the ex-Belmondite who is now a vice president of Northern Natural Gas company flew Sunday morning from Omaha to Mason City for the purpose of keeping his afternoon speaking engagement.

Everything was seemingly "under control" when the plane lowered its altitude passing Belmond, in a salute to the utility executive's home town. Minutes later, though, Pilots Don Foreman and Frank Korth discovered that the landing gear would not descend to proper landing position.

Also passengers in the Super Ventura nine-place plane owned by Northern Natural Gas were the wives of the pilots.

Inability to get the landing gear lowered made it necessary for the plane to retrace its course to Omaha before making a landing attempt. With the gear still not functioning, the craft was taken to Offutt Air Force Base rather than to its departure point, Omaha Municipal Airport, because Offutt offers an emergency strip.

It was finally necessary to crash-land the plane on the emergency runway, where personnel stood ready to attempt rescue operations if the plane should flip or catch fire.

The crash landing was completely successful. All the plane's occupants escaped unharmed, although the plane itself suffered extensive damage.

Originally, Mr. Klemme had planned to bring his wife to Belmond to spend the day with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Klemme.

Immediately after the successful "belly landing" at Offutt, Mr. Klemme talked to his mother by phone to assure her of his safety.

Tomco work well started now—

Detasseling gets under way late

Detasseling operations of Tomco, Inc., neared their peak this week with prospect that youngsters at work in the fields might reach a maximum number of 150 to 175 by this weekend.

Bill Dieger, supervisor in charge of the detasseling, says one crew of six was called out to detassel an early field on Tuesday of last week but that the regular start of the season didn't get underway until Saturday. On that day, 58 boys and girls were busy.

Because of the wet planting season, this year's detasseling season was about four to six days later starting than the average Mr. Dieger looks for the work in the fields to be very largely completed by a week from next Monday.

On Monday of this week, exactly 100 detasselers were on the job — 16 machine crews. Tomco has 26 machines it can field at one time carrying six or eight workers each.

One machine can cover 30 to 35 acres per day, Mr. Dieger says. Two to two and a half times as many detasselers used to be required when foot crews were used, instead of crews mounted on machines. Should heavy rain make it necessary to resort to foot crews during the present operation, Bill comments, about double the labor would be needed until machines could get back into the fields.

Tomco is having to detassel close to 1,240 acres in the Belmond vicinity this season, according to the supervisor. This represents only about 40 per cent of the firm's local seed plantings. The rest of the Tomco fields are in sterile seed stock that does not require detasseling.

Bill explained that the fertile and sterile seed is blended before grading and bagging, assuring proper pollination of all the corn in the farm fields planted next season with Tomco hybrids.

Actually, he added, it is proved that 20 per cent fertile seed would be more than adequate to provide thorough pollination; but that figure is doubled by Tomco as a safety factor to guarantee good yield from Tomco hybrids.

Tomco fields are looking good this year, but several seed raisers near Belmond would welcome a good downpour on their fields in the very near future. Rain has been in extremely short quantity in recent weeks.

Borer damage has shown up in only minor degree — not sufficiently extensive in any of the Tomco fields to justify spraying.

Pirates and Indians climb—

Ties for 1st in both PTA leagues

Last week's play in PTA Summer Recreation baseball saw the mid-way point in the season reached — and the races in both the peewee and midget leagues tightened up considerably.

Teams previously undefeated, the peewee Cardinals and midget Indians, each suffered their first loss to produce first-place ties in both leagues.

Wayne Smith's Pirates jumped all the way from fourth place to a tie for the lead in the peewee ranks by whaling the league-leading Cardinals on Tuesday evening, 20 to 7; and then edging Fred Whipple's Giants on Friday in a 12-11 thriller.

In the Tuesday game, John Dickson's Cards went into the third inning tied with the Pirates at 7-all. A siege of 10 walks combined with five hits — including a homer by Mike Klinefelter — clinched the Pirate victory in the top of the third via the 12-run rule.

The Pirate-Giant contest was a hair-raiser. Ronald Ginapp had given the Pirates only three hits in three innings, but seven walks plus a homer by Jerry Smith and triple by Lee Barkema brought the opposition six runs in the second frame. Trailing 11-7 in the bottom of the fourth, the Pirates pulled the game out of the fire when Wayne Smith hit a home run to clear the bases and clinch the victory.

Neal Waddington pitched his midget Tigers into a share of the league lead with a one-hit decision over Craig Boller's Indians. Terry Armour was the only Indian to gather a hit for the losers as Waddington chalked up 10 strikeouts. Armour, on the mound for the Indians, was touched for eight hits as his mates bowed 8-3.

Walks spelled the downfall of Keith Sheller's Braves as Bob Misner pitched his Orioles to their first win with a one-hit performance. Doug Greenwood got the lone safety off of Misner. Pasquaiello allowed only two hits but issued 24 passes as hurler for the losers in the 18-6 defeat.

Belmond's Golfing Gordons did very respectably in Iowa state championship play during the men's and women's tournaments held the two weeks preceding this one.

Mary Gordon fell short of making the championship flight in the women's tourney at Hyperion Golf and Country club, Des Moines, but played consistently to finish fifth in the first flight. Only 20 entries in the entire tournament posted better 72-hole scores than her 366.

After rounds of 92-93-92, Mary wound up with an 89 that left her just one stroke away from tying with two other golfers for third place in her flight.

Fred Gordon succeeded in qualifying for the Iowa Amateur Golf tournament weekend before last at Des Moines' tough Wakonda course, but withdrew after slipping to an 84 on his third 18.

The 1947 state champion posted a 75 on Friday and followed with a 77 on Saturday to make the qualifying grade safely. On his Friday round, Fred was even par through 15 holes but bogeyed each of the last three.

Winner of the title was Jack Webb, Atlantic High school coach, who was the 1949 champion. In that year he trimmed his brother Don in the finals after the latter had eliminated Gordon in the semifinals, 3 and 1.

Suntkens show 'em how to run—again

Those speedy Suntkens ran away with a lion's share of the prize money in the annual race program for kids held last Saturday morning at the BHS athletic field in conjunction with the All-Vets celebration.

Daryl "Shorty" Suntken was winner of the open class race for boys and Marilyn Suntken won the corresponding race for girls. Little Beverly Ann contributed further to the glory of the Suntken clan by winning the race for girls up to age six.

Results of the races — which paid $1.50, $1.00 and 50 cents for the first three places — were as follows:

Up to age six — boys: 1. Tom Korthas, 2. Mark Dannewitz, 3. Tim Greenwood; girls: 1. Beverly Ann Suntken, 2. Marilyn Stadtlander, 3. Cynthia Steenblock.

Junior Pioneers well in running for softball title

Pleasant Pioneers' entry in the 4-H junior softball league remains well in the running for the county championship, but the senior Pioneers as of last Friday were struggling to remain eligible for the title play-offs Aug. 18 at Woolstock.

While both Dayton and Vernon township 4-H'ers were ahead of Pleasant in the junior standings with 6-1 marks, the Pioneers were close behind at 5-1. In fourth place was Woolstock with three wins and two loses. The top four teams in each league will contend for the championships in the play-off tournament.

Woolstock Junior Stockmen and the Iowa Hawkeyes up to last weekend were both undefeated in the senior 4-H league, with records of 7-0 and 6-0, resectively. Still very much in contention were the Liberty Pathfinders at 7-1.

Tied for fourth place and flirting with elimination from the title picture were the Pleasant Pioneers and Blaine Livewires, each with an even split in six games. All of the other senior league teams had lost at least four games.

Woolstock's Willing Workers lead the girl's softball standings at 2-0, with Dayton and Wall Lake each possessing a 1-1 record and Iowa last with two losses and no victories.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Realizing that one of the best ways for a nation to become "well fixed" is to be defeated by the USA in war (whereupon Uncle Sam pours in the "relief"), the tiny Grand Duchy of Fenwick decides to go to war with the United States.

That, in extreme brief, is the plot of the delightful satire, "The Mouse That Roared," which stars Iowa's Jean Seberg this Thursday through Saturday.

Sharing the double bill is "Comanche Station," a western tale of the rescue of a white woman from the Comanches and the ordeal of bringing her safely through hostile Indian territory. Randolph Scott and Nancy Gates play the lead roles. Skip Homeier, child star of a few years back, is featured.

What's this? Parents' Magazine awarding a prize to Brigitte Bardot? That's right. This family journal's Merit Medal award went to "Babette Goes to War" as excellent entertainment for all ages. "A new and delightful Brigitte in an extremely funny farce," declared the Parents' review. You can see for yourself Sunday through Wednesday.

Harvey Hilpipre Wright delegate

Harvey Hilpipre, 17-year-old Clarion 4-H'er, will represent Wright county at the 1960 State 4-H Leadership camp, Aug. 7-13 at the state 4-H camping center near Madrid.

Through the program, "Let's Look at Leadership and Group Action," the state's young leaders will become aware of leadership abilities and responsibilities and gain experience in group participation and the use of group techniques.

Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hilpipre, has been active in local and county 4-H club work and school activities. He is Wright county's 4-H boys vice president this year.

Representatives from every county in the state will attend one of the two sessions being held this summer.

ASC election results given—

47 newcomers on twp. committees

More than half of the township ASC committeemen elected at meetings held on July 14 were new recruits to the committee ranks, reports Jack Masters, manager of the ASC office at Clarion. Of 80 each of the 16 townships—47 were committeemen chosen — five from newcomers.

This was the first year since 1950 that voting on ASC committee members was done at township meetings, rather than by mail. It was hoped by ASC officials that the method of electing via meetings would prove more democratic and give eligible farmers a better opportunity to nominate their own ASC representatives

In view of the fact that only 26 new committeemen were elected in 1959, when nominating committees proposed most of the names on the ballots, the election of 47 newcomers to the committees this year suggests that the purpose of the changed election procedure was achieved.

All committemen elected in mid-July will serve one-year terms starting Aug. 1. This Saturday, the newly elected township chairmen and vice chairmen will gather at Clarion as delegates and alternate delegates to the county ASC convention. Its principal business will be to elect the county ASC committee of three members and two alternates.

All of the ASC members from Belmond township are new to the committee, four out of five from Iowa, and three out of five from both Pleasant and Norway townships. In the listings of township committeemen that follow, they are shown in order of chairman, vice chairman, member, 1st alternate and 2nd alternate; and an asterisk indicates an incumbent member of the committee:

Belmond township — George Crawford, Arthur Pringnitz, Bernard Davenport, Loren Bamford, Joseph Tegland; Pleasant — *Hio Goeman, *George Mennenga, Ira Studebaker, Jr., Peter Bohning, Rex Fetrow; Iowa — Raymond Aldrich, *Robert Avery, John Henry Arends, Jay Knuths, Herman Frohling; Norway — *Lismore Stole, *Richard Arends, Glenn Russell, John Engh, Doyce Friedow.

Meet the newcomers—

Pictured above are the Darrell Staleys — Virginia (Mrs.) holding three-week-old Dinette Dawn, and Darrell holding 14-month-old Denise Diane. Darrell and Virginia moved to their new home at 206 Sixth avenue SE on July 1. They moved here from Aplington, where Darrell was the vocational agriculture teacher for one year. Darrell will be the new "voc. ag." teacher here.

Darrell graduated from the Hampton High schools and then attended Iowa State university, graduating in May 1959.

While in high school, he participated in football, wrestling and track, lettering nine times in these sports. During his senior year, he was a member of a foursome which won the mile relay in the state Class A track meet and helped Hampton take second in the meet. In college, he wrestled for two years, earning a freshman numeral his first year. Darrell won two matches while in college.

Darrell belonged to the Sigma Phi fraternity at ISU and was president during his junior year.

The Staleys met at Ames while Darrell was going to college and were married in November of 1958. Darrell gives Virginia credit for giving him much help during his college days.

Darrell's vocational agriculture instruction is a year around job. Beside teaching during the school year, it involves visiting FFA boys during the summer, checking on their projects and helping them to get ready for fairs.

He also assists a committee in preparing the program for the annual adult night school class in agriculture that is held each winter. This course is for both the high school youth and for adults who wish to increase their knowledge of good farming practices.

Darrell lists his hobbies taking in all kinds of spectator sports and participating in swimming. He played softball at Ames and Aplington, pitching and playing left field. He said that though he has never had much time to hunt or fish, he thinks he would like to try his hand at them now.

Virginia shays she shares her husband's interest in spectator sports and swimming.

Darrell's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Glen Staley of Hampton. His father is a widely known businessman who has interests in the Staley Farm Supply and elevators in Hampton, Alexander and Rowan. He is also starting a new business; that of manufacturing pelleted feeds and has a plant for that purpose in Rowan. Mr. Staley is also the owner and manager of the Hampton Sales Barn and is engaged in farming.

Darrell states that though there was a job with his father waiting for him upon graduation, he was more interested in teaching better ways of farming and he is going to do just that. This, of course, does not preclude the possibility of some day joining his father.

Virginia's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cerise of rural Kelley.

THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE

Republicans

Under Republican policies American workers and their families have enjoyed more jobs, steadier prices, more security and more pay with more money left over for themselves than ever before.

In the GOP years, since 1953, the cost of living has gone up only 10 per cent, a dazzling contrast with the 48 per cent increase during the Truman years.

In the same period, the value of the dollar has declined less than a nickel, in contrast to the 50-cent decline in the preceding Democratic years.

Encouraged by this financial stability, the dynamic American economy under Republican policies expanded to provide an all-time record of 65.5 million jobs, 7.5 per cent more than were available under the Democrats, even in the war boom which occurred during the preceding administration.

Remember?

Friends of this pretty miss will have little trouble indentifying her. She has changed little, except that the decade that has passed since this picture was taken has added to her comeliness, brought her marriage, and made her the mother of a lovely baby daughter. She no longer makes her home in Belmond, but her parents still call this community "home." If you cannot identify our young beauty, look elsewhere on this page.

1,816 in Wright getting monthly Social Security

At the end of 1959, as federal social security was starting its 25th year, old-age, survivors, and disability insurance monthly benefits were being paid at the rate of $108,080 a month to 1,816 residents of Wright county, according to Clifford W. Swedlund, manager of the Fort Dodge social security district office.

In the 11 counties served by the Fort Dodge office, payments totaling $1,177,764 were made to 19,376 persons for December 1959. This showed an increase of almost 10 per cent in number of beneficiaries since February 1959, the last previous date for which district figures are available.

Nationally, about 13¾ million persons were receiving old-age, survivors, and disability insurance benefits at the end of 1959 at an annual rate of more than $10 billion. Almost half a million disabled workers and their dependents receiving benefits at a yearly rate of over $400 million are included.

As social security celebrates the silver anniversary of the signing of the original Social Security Act on August 14, 1935, about 74 million workers are in covered employment or self-employment, building protection for themselves, their dependents, and their survivors under the social security law.

Monthly payments in the Fort Dodge area included $812,323 to 11,344 retired workers and $16,403 to 188 disabled workers; 4,197 wives or dependent husbands of retired or disabled workers received $162,189. A total of $82,650 was paid to 1,491 aged widows or dependent widowers; $21,669 was paid to 371 mothers with young children and 21 dependent parents received $1,323. A total of $81,207 was paid to 1,764 children of retired, deceased, or disabled workers.

Queen nominations sought by five Wright farm girls

QUEEN

Five candidates for the two Wright county nominations as "Queen of Conservation" had been chosen by Monday of this week and it was expected by Bob Locke, farm planner for the Soil Conservation Service, that more would be in before Saturday night's judging.

Successor to the "Queen of the Furrow" of past years, the "Queen of Conservation" is being chosen this year by the Soil Conservation Service in collaberation with the Farmers Grain Dealers (cooperatives) of Iowa.

Two Wright county candidates for regional honors will be chosen to compete at the North Iowa Fair, Mason City. Those who as of Monday of this week were entered as county contestants were: Rita Schroder and Marguerite Agena, Dows; Lorraine Davenport, Belmond; Ardith Boyington, Rowan; and Kathy Thompson, Eagle Grove.

Judges will be the editors of Wright counties four newspapers: J. R. Gallagher of The Independent; M. B. Crabbe, Eagle Grove Eagle; William Houser, Clarion Monitor; and Richard Peters, Dows' Wright County Reporter.

In advance of a dinner at Gannon's Party Room, Hotel Moore, Clarion, the judges wil interview all of the contestants. Friends of soil conservation from over the county will be guests, along with the girls, at the dinner being presented by the Wright county soil commission and cooperative elevators.

After the dinner, the girls will be interviewed in the course of a program on the courthouse lawn, at the end of which the judges will make their decisions as to who shall represent Wright county at the regional contest.

From this squad, four members will be selected to comprise the team and represent Wright county at the district 4-H judging contest at the North Iowa Fair and the state 4-H judging contest at the Iowa State Fair.

Brucellosis-free county objective of test program

An accredited, brucellosis-free county by the end of this year is the hope of federal veterinarians supervising the Wright county control program, County Extension Director Aaron Bowman reports.

Dr. H. G. Voetberg, federal veterinarian, and Dr. S. C. Gartman, training assistant, advise that brucellosis testing had been completed on the cattle herds where necessary, with a very few exceptions, in nine townships, including Pleasant and Norway.
way.

All beef herds in the county are tested for brucellosis. However, only those dairy herds that show evidence of the disease according to the ring test are further tested for the disease.

Dr. Voetberg said that tuberculosis testing as well as brucellosis testing on the cattle will be done simultaneously in Boone, Iowa and Vernon townships.

There has been a change in the period of time for TB testing. To keep the county accredited, testing will be done over a period of six years to equalize the tax burden for this work. Only a few townships will be tested each year.

Only accredited veterinarians can be used for TB testing. However, undergraduate veterinarians can be used to help on the brucellosis testing.

All of the veterinarians in the county are cooperating with the federal and state authorities in the various testing programs which have been passed by state and federal legeslative acts to protect both the livestock producer and the consumer.

THE
Republican!

The money the Federal government spends comes, of course, from the people. The GOP is prudent with the people's money, and this prudence is bitterly opposed by numerous Democrats who propose pumping unneeded billions from the Treasury into various special interest projects pushed by pressure groups.

The nationl debt is 91 per cent Democratic. That is, $260 billion of the $290 billion total was incurred when Democrats were in the White House.

Of the 10 income tax increases since establishment of the tax, ALL BUT ONE have been enacted by Democrats. Of the nine income tax reductions, seven were enacted by Republicans — including history's biggest, the 1954 slash which has saved American families $40 billion in the past six years.

Dan works for the Iowa Electric Light and Power Company as an apprentice lineman. He lists his hobby as studying, as he is just completing a course in the National Guard which will lead to a commission.

Dan is also taking a correspondence course in electrical engineering, which comes into good stead on his job. Joyce says that she enjoys embroidery work during her spare time.

"Average voter" owes his party financial support

Much ado is sometimes made by the "common voter" over the fact that (1) so many political candidates today fall into the "wealthy plutocrat" class; (2) that political campaigns are generously underwritten by wealthy individuals, who expect kind treatment of legislation that is to their particular interest; (3) that candidates are subjected to great pressures by any minority groups that help underwrite their campaign costs.

To one degree or another, all of these developments ARE regrettable and it is understandable that they should be deplored. What the "common voter" gives inadequate thought to, though, is the fact that he himself holds the key to alleviating these undesireable circumstances.

A letter went out this week to known Republican voters of Wright county urging them to contribute to the cost of carrying on their party's campaign between now and the fall election. Generously supporting your party is your own best protection, as a voter, against having your candidates under obligation to groups and individuals whose interests may not coincide with those of the average citizen.

If a suggestion were ever made to wipe out the U. S. party system (and this has occurred elsewhere), Americans would be fighting mad. Yet the large majority of us feel utterly no responsibility for helping provide the funds that are the life blood of the party we so stoutly support at the polls.

It would be an investment bearing excellent returns if we "average voters" assured that our voice was the loudest of all in our candidates' ears by helping to the best of our ability to assure their maximum interest in OUR causes, rather than those of vested interests or pressure groups.

"Crime doesn't pay" . . . unless you're an embezzler

Most of the reasoning involved in law is as logical as night following day. Basic law is time-tested and time-proven and the layman, unless caught in its web, is quite obliged to admit it's intended to give him his just deserts.

There is one element of American law, however, that causes endless consternation among the public as examples of its application make the news. Two such examples made headlines in Iowa last week — and were no more intelligible than innumerable prior examples.

A young assistant postmaster was given nine months on each of six counts of embezzlement — the terms (as seems to be customary in such sentences) to run concurrently. Defalcations totalled "likely in excess of $10,000;" which prompts the usual remark on the part of most readers, "a pretty good rate of pay for nine months in the pokey."

In the second instance, another young fellow employed as assistant cashier of a bank got four nine-month terms on as many counts of embezzlement — to be served, of course, concurrently. He'd falsified bank records in a manner that allowed him to acquire some $5,700 over a period of four years' time.

We're as willing as the next person to see young family men given a break. But a young punk whose family enviroment has virtually deprived him of any opportunity to make satisfactory social adjustments and who nets $50 or $60 from two or three service station break-ins is almost certain to get five years or more in prison.

Of course, we all know examples of embezzlement that have brought the criminal immense amounts of money — but drew punishment less severe than would be handed down in many cases of crime ostensibly much less serious.

It would almost seem that this one "blind spot" indicates an inclination toward snobbishness on the part of the law. The benefactors are almost invariably white collar workers of upper middle class social status. For some reason, a "laboring man's crime" is considered much more heinous.

We'd be interested to learn from an expert student of the law what lies behind this apparent anamoly in the law. If there is good reason for it, it isn't readily apparent. Certainly embezzlement is the best paying crime on the market.

Computers great business aid — except to Uncle Sam

One thing credited with helping modern industry and commerce from inviting business cycles that are too sweeping is the electronic computer. A number of companies processing their operational data with such computers report that it enables them to reduce drastically their inventories of both manufactured goods and materials.

This has led students of economics to believe that computers' increasingly extensive use may even restrain the tendencies to "boom" and "bust" that have played hob with our national ecoonomy so many times in the past. It should be noted that experts in the computer field do not welcome predictions of such miraculous achievements for the electronic "brain."

Nevertheless, in this rapid-moving world, the swift ordering of facts by means of these computers is essential to adequate control of production, inventories and like business factors.

It is ironical that the federal government probably operates more of these computers than any other client — and at the same time, inventories of its various agencies and of its military services continue to make headlines with unhappy regularity. If private industry can find in the computer such a valuable partner in keeping inventories and stockpiles at economically reasonable levels, why cant the government provide the human brains that will guide its computers to the same achievement?

"Jack" gave Kennedy nomination

Well, Jack Kennedy has been nominated for President by the Democrats, just as practically everybody except the wishful thinkers and the political experts predicted weeks ago

It cost the Kennedy family a lot of money, perhaps as much as $5.0000,000, according to some estimates.

Money means little to the Democrats, especially to Jack's father, who is one of the most successful speculators in the history of the United States.

OTHER WEALTHY DEMOcrats are not quite so free with their wealth. There are no indications that Lyndon Johnson, Stuart Symington, or Adlai Stevenson spent large amounts. Poor Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota probably spent more than he could afford, and is reported to be in debt $30,000 or $40,000 for his ill starred campaign.

Generally speaking, the Democrats specialize in spending the taxpayers' money rather than their own. That's one of the reasons we have a national debt of well over $280 billion.

NO ONE BELIEVES JACK Kennedy would ever have been nominated for the presidency if he hadn't had millions of dollars at his disposal.

It is significant that all the Democrats mentioned for President this year were millionaires except Humphrey.

As for the Republicans, Richard Nixon is a poor man. According to the best available information he owns practically nothing except a fine home in Washington with a big mortgage on it.

WE ARE NOT SUGGESTING that any of the money spent by the Democratic candidates was spent illegally.

The point we are emphasizing is that running for President has become too expensive for the average man.

Jack Kennedy has proved it is possible to buy the Democratic nomination for President. Whether or not he can buy the election remains to be seen — Council Bluffs Nonpareil

Editors were gypped

Along with some 400 other Iowa weekly editors (most of whom are Republicans) we woke up last week and realized that someone has set the state Republican convention for a Tuesday night and Wednesday. In the newspaper business that amounts almost to sacrilege. Weekly editors don't go to weddings or family reunions on Wednesday, that is the day we save the country.

This must be a part of this "Times are changing — this is a young man's world" business that we are hearing so much about lately

But just like Harry Truman who stayed away from the Democratic National Convention there will be a lot of weekly editors who have been life-long supporters of the Republican party who won't attend the 1960 State Republican convention — Eagle Grove Eagle

Franklin's new parks

During the past year and a half the Franklin County Conservation Board has established eight different parks throughout the county under the authority which is vested in it by state law.

Some of these parks are as much as 16 acres in size; others are smaller. Most of them provide picnic areas. Some of them have fishing, playground and other recreation facilities. One or two have rough slough land that will be developed or maintained for wild life and nature study.

This is excellent. Both the Hardin and Franklin county conservation boards have been unusually active and aggressive, particularly considering the fact that they are unpaid and simply doing a public service as they carry out this responsibility. — Iowa Falls Citizen

WHAT'S WITH THE FLAG—

One thing the persons responsible for flag etiquette overlooked so near as we can find, was what's to be done with a flag that is obsolete. This was no problem for nearly half a century.

Before Alaska was admitted to the Union last year, no new state had been created since Arizona's admittance on Valentine's Day in 1912. And since New Mexico officially became a state on Jan. 6 of the same year, there wasn't the problem in jumping from a 46 to a 48-star flag that was faced in the conversion from 48 to 50 stars.

Of course, from the time Delaware became the first official state in 1787 until Oklahoma joined the ranks 120 years later, new stars were being added to the flag with more or less regularity. Wonder what they USED to do with out-of-date flags?

We presume that obsolencence would make a flag fit the description of being "no longer a fitting emblem for display" — in which event it is to be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning."

THE "STARS AND STRIPES"—

The "Stars and Stripes" are about 10½ years older than the United States, itself. Our national flag (our friend, the World Book advises) was adopted by a resolution of the Second Continental Congress on June 14, 1777 (which is why that date is now observed as "Flag Day").

Legend has it that George Washington offered this dramatic explanation for the choice of the stars and stripes:

"We take the stars and blue union from Heaven, the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing we have separated from her, and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

Actually, there's reason to suspect that the founding fathers were influenced by the banner of the British East India Company in devising the first flag. This group of merchants organized for exploration and trade flew a flag of seven red and six white stripes — just as the "Stars and Stripes" always have.

ORIGINAL "OLD GLORY"—

It may surprise you, as it did us, to learn that "Old Glory" was originally the name bestowed upon one, individual flag rather than applied collectively to all flags of our country.

In 1831, a young sea captain named William Driver was given command of the brig "Charles Doggett," and fellow citizens of Salem, Mass., presented him with a flag to fly from its mast. He hailed it as "Old Glory."

Twice it accompanied him around the world; and when he retired from the sea in 1837 he took the flag with him to Nashville, Tenn., where usage of his name for it spread.

Driver remained a loyal patriot of the Union, and during the Civil War had his flag sewed inside a bed quilt to hide it from the Confederate soldiers

When Union forces captured Nashville in 1862, Driver brought out "Old Glory" and she was flown from the state capitol.

In 1922, "Old Glory" was bestowed upon the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, D. C., where she may be seen today.

SHE BOWS TO NO ONE—

A number of nations (particularly monarchies, in name) deem it proper that their national flags be dipped in salutation to an individual. This is not the case with the "Stars and Stripes," though The U. S. flag may be dipped in courtesy to another nation — but never to a person, not even the President.

In the U. S., our flag is supreme over all others — with one exception.

On the ground where the United Nations headquarters stand in New York City, the blue and white flag of the UN takes precedence over all others, including our own.

This is the only place within the U. S., its territories or possessions where a flag may be displayed in a position of higher prominence or honor than the U. S. Flag.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE —

It was just about 68 years ago (August of 1892) that the Pledge of Allegiance was drawn up in the office of the Youth's Companion, popular children's magazine of a generation or two ago. Primary credit is given James B. Upham, one of the editors, but several on the staff helped to condense it. The pledge was first used publicly at exercises on Columbus Day, Oct. 12, 1892, at Boston.

The Youth's Companion circulated the pledge nationally in leaflet form. It held unofficial status as The Pledge to the Flag until Flag Day of 1954, when it was revised by Act of Congress to read . . . "one nation under God, indivisible."

Actually, one earlier change had been made in the original wording, which simply stated, "I pledge allegiance to the flag . . ." until at that point the words "of the United States of America" were added.

This is probably more than you had any wish to know about the U. S. Flag; but you COULD have quit reading before you got this far.

Know your businessmen—

Hobby grew into occupation for Sid Swenson

Back in mid-depression days, when no job could be very securely depended upon from week to week, Sid Swenson became interested in sign painting as a source of extra cash — and as a hedge against the possibility that he might suddenly find himself unempolyed.

An itinerant sign painter first inspired Sid's interest in the trade about 1930. He recalls that when he was still doing such work more as a hobby than anything else, it provided him with the cash to purchase a year-old car (for $265) and that impressed him with the potentialities of sign lettering.

For 30 years — from 1920 until 1950 — Sid's occupation was that of auto electric mechanic. For 12 years he was employed by Joe Scott, proprietor of the Belmond Storage Battery company.

He recalls that in the infant days of radio, that concern and The Independent (whose publisher at the time was Roy Rankins) jointly purchased a Westinghouse radio to acquaint the public with this new phenomenon. Both concerns were housed in the part of the old Hub garage that now serves as storage space for Followwill Implement company. The radio was kept at the Independent office, and local residents were invited to drop in and hear important broadcasts such as political conventions, championship fights and the like.

For 18 years, Sid operated his own auto electric business, selling out in 1950 to Daryl Leeth, who in turn later sold the business to George Swaroff. Poor health made sale of the mechanical business necessary.

Sid opened up a paint and wallpaper store, which in 1953 he sold to Jim Cairns. For about four years following, Sid was employed by Rowat-Murray, Engineers. It was in 1957 that he decided to concentrate on sign painting, which had continued to be a part-time business for him from the time he first picked up the knack.

A steady source of income for Sid nowadays is the roadside sign business he has developed. By the time cold weather ends the installation season this fall, he expects to have 20 under lease. The one he's presently working on for Nolan Rexall Drug — 12x5 feet in dimension — will be his biggest

He rents the sign locations along the highway for prices that vary according to location and several other factors. In some instances, a merchant prefers to buy the sign outright and pay site rent himself; but most of Sid's signs are under lease, and he is responsible for their maintenance.

Proper maintenance involves repainting the sign about every two years. Other than that, the amount of maintenance involved depends on the weather (high winds, particularly, and vandals (who can ruin a sign as quickly as you can pull the trigger on a shotgun).

Sid has never hand any formal training in sign painting, but he has acquired a number of text books on the subject that have enabled him to acquire prefessional skill. He limits his work mainly to lettering, but on occasion has done supplementary art work — such as the Indian on the sign in front of Harold's Clothing.

He says that attractive lay-out and pleasant combinations of colors are musts for a good sign. One thing which he has to talk his customers out of, once in a while, is cluttering up a sign with too many words. He says a sign must be easy to read at a glance, or passing traffic simply won't bother to read it.

A dictionary needs to be kept close at hand by the sign painter, Sid notes, for it's easy for misspellings to slip in. He declares he's never let a finished sign go up with an overlooked misspelling; but once in a while a member of his family saves him from such a fate.

He says the most flagrant error he's ever seen on a sign was the misspelling of a Mason City firm's name in three-foot letters painted on brick by means of scaffolding. That one took a bit of fixing, he reports with a sympathetic grin.

Letter spacing is another matter that must be watched closely. Letters insufficiently separated make a sign difficult to read, according to Sid

He feels he was very fortunate in picking the hobby he did, when he did. It has made him a useful occupation, and one he was able to resume even after suffering a heart attack early part of this year.

VOL. 41 NO. 44 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER WRIGHT COUNTY, IOWA—THURSDAY, AUG. 4, 1960 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Sometimes pure chance can do a better job than the best public relations counsel that money can buy. We cite the appearance of Lavonne (Miss Belmond) Hansen's picture with three other Miss Iowa contestants on the front page of Saturday's D. M. Register. Jack Williams, local Jaycee and Independent staffer, was close-by when it was taken, having just delivered Miss Belmond to Clear Lake, and says it happened this way.

Seems the Davenport Times (which belongs to the Lee Syndicate, like the Mason City Globe-Gazette) wanted a shot of their Miss Iowa candidate. A G-G photographer obliged and the picture was dispatched via Wirephoto.

That means of delivery apparently made the picture available to all Wirephoto subscribers, and the Register picked it up to give the Miss Iowa contest a plug. So there was Miss Belmond, along with Miss Davenport, Miss New Hampton and Miss Clear Lake right on the front of "The Newspaper Iowa Depends Upon," Friday evening. Lavonne was among the beauties caught by WOI-TV's television camera. Good publicity getter!

Any persons interested in a 5x7-inch print of their favorite peewee or midget baseball team, as appearing in this issue of The Independent, can obtain same by ordering at the newspaper office. Prints are $1.00 per copy.

After having exercised unusual foresight in lining up a vacation relief man in plenty of time this year, Mainstreeters front and middle have learned anew that "the best laid plans of mice and men . . ." etc., etc., etc.

Max Hansen of Fort Dodge had been assisting on the Independent staff for three weeks, and Mainstreeter No. 3 had gotten HIS vacation in, when Max's father-in-law suffered fatal injuries in an auto accident near Chicago.

This turn of events made it impossible for our substitute to return to Belmond for the rest of his agreed-upon eight weeks. Result: So Ed is on the job this week instead of "vacating;" and Dick's prospects aren't so bright.

Mayor "Bud" Trafford's unstinting service in behalf of the Belmond Lions club was recognized Sunday at the club's annual chicken barbecue at the swimming pool shelter house. A past president of the organization, "Bud" has been a constant inspiration to it and has spurred it to some of its most praiseworthy achievements.

Although he is still making his home here, "Bud's" affiliation with Folco headquarters at Fort Dodge now makes it impossible for him to attend meetings of the local club.

He was the guiding hand behind the highly popular "Ladies Night" parties the Lions have held for several years past, and he has regularly served as chef for the barbecues. His additional contributions to the cause of Lionism were also acknowledged by the handsome plaque on a walnut base that was given to "Bud" as a GOOD Lion.

This incident took place several weeks ago, but still bears repeating. It seems that Ed Gabrielson of P&G grocery is a rather soft touch for bums looking for a handout. He reasons that some scraps from the store are headed for the trash can that could just as well be consumed by a "knight of the road," with no loss to the cash register. These things get around, and Ed has "company" pretty regularly as one grifter informs another that Ed can be counted on to exhibit a soft heart.

One hobo, however, was passing right by the store when Dean Pals stopped him and asked if he could use something to eat. The tramp eagerly agreed he could; and Dean said, "Just go in to the meat counter at the store here and ask for Ed."

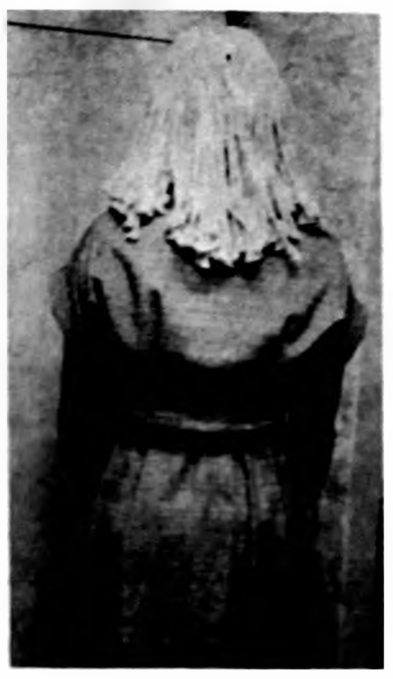
The instructions seemed simple, and the transient decided to carry them out. He went in, asked for "Ed," and the hobo explained that he'd been told he could get some food. But Ed decided things were going to far when he was asked for by NAME and sent the guy scooting. When he found out moments later that Dean had "referred" the fellow to him, he was chagrinned at breaking the faith . . . So he sent Dean to chase the free-loader down and bring him back to the store; whereupon Ed gave him a whole ring of baloney just to show how sorry he was!

$50 GIFT TO HOSPITAL

A gift in the amount of $50 honoring the memory of the late Dick Barkema has been received by Belmond Community hospital, contributed by Mrs. Barkema and friends of her husband.

Remember?

My! What a difference 10 years can make! This chubby-cheeked doll has completed high school and is a grown up gal with an engagement ring on her finger today — which makes one fellow a real lucky guy. She won many honors during her days in BHS . . . but topped them all following her graduation. If you can't see through the girl to the woman of today, look on page 7 for [illegible]



TEN DOLLARS still await the Independent reader who identifies the Belmond merchant pictured above in the attire said shopkeeper will be "duded up in" for Ridiculous Day, Aug. 20. Last week, several mailed guesses to the Independent office. At only three or four cents for "entry fee," many more should certainly be taking a try at that 10-spot.

Rowan Youth, 15, hurt by tractor

Michael Rampelberg, 15-year-old son of Rev. and Mrs. Jack Rampelberg of Rowan, underwent surgery at Belmond Community hospital Tuesday morning to repair a fracture of his left thigh bone suffered Wednesday afternoon of last week in a tractor accident.

The youth has been working for Ryle Andrews of Rowan as a farmhand and was driving the Andrews tractor along a gravel road, hauling a flatrack. Mr. and Mrs. Andrews' son Leslie, 10, was standing on the rear of the tractor and Michael cast a glance back at the boy to make certain of his safety.

With his eye momentarily off the road, Michael briefly lost control of the tractor and it wandered to the right into soft gravel, which pulled the machine toward the ditch. Realizing the tractor was going to tip, Michael tried to leap clear but his upper left leg was pinned.

He was brought to the Belmond hospital for medical attention and has been a patient since. Young Andrews escaped from the experience without injury of consequence, but was brought to the Belmond hospital for examination.

Total of $34,353 under estimate—

Bids for school, Luick Center better than expected

Bids that in the aggregate came to $34,353 less than the architect's estimate were accepted last Thursday night by the directors of Belmond Community School district as contracts were let for construction of the new high school and Fred and Alice Luick Community Center. Total of the bids came to $765,647, compared to the $800,000 cost anticipated by Karl Keffer Associates of Des Moines.

Supplementing the pleasure of the directors in the excellent bids received was the fact that the low figures included all alternate features that had been placed in the specifications only tentatively, subject to deletion if the bids ran too high.

Mrs. Al Mennenga, president of the board of education, says that the highly favorable bids permitted including in the final plans the following facilities or features that would have been excluded if the bids had run higher than predicted.

Two classrooms in the west wing of the high school; a coil door in the gymnasium that will divide the floor into halves to permit conduct of both boys' and girls' physical training classes simultaneously; terrazzo floors in hallways, instead of plain concrete; and ceramic tile wainscoting to a height of six feet along hallway walls not covered by lockers.

"It was not necessary to indulge in any of the compromises that the board had reluctantly agreed upon, in case of too-high bids," Mrs. Mennenga noted. "As a consequence, the new school and community center will be on a par with any similar facilities to be found anywhere in this part of Iowa."

Peterson Construction company of Clear Lake was awarded the general contract on a bid of $547,663 which was $12,337 less than the architect's estimate and $24,347 less than the next lowest bid. Six contracting firms submitted bids, ranging as high as $596,000.

Plumbing, heating and ventilating contract went to Earl Webster Plumbing and Heating of Spencer. The Webster bid was $1,926 more than the architect had estimated, but was $4,691 less than that of the next lowest bidder.

Four firms submitted bona fide bids on this particular contract, the highest being $185,870. Kinseth Plumbing and Heating of Belmond failed to comply with one of the technicalities required to make its bid official, so could not be given consideration as a bidder.

Packard Electric company of Belmond submitted low bid among four firms seeking the electrical contract with a figure of $56,058. This was only $830 less than the next lowest bid but was $23,942 under the figure estimated by Keffer Associates on basis of a conventional percentage of the over-all construction cost. High bid was $8,507 over Packard's.

Completion date for the combination school building and community center is set forth in the contracts as Aug. 1, 1962. Plans call for occupancy of the school for the 1962-63 school year. No starting time was indicated by Peterson Construction, but it was expected that initial work would be started by no later than the middle of this month.

In general appearance, the layout of the new high school and community center will roughly resemble the number "1" with Luick Community Center comprising the base (extending east and west). The upright portion of the "1" will be occupied largely by special purpose rooms; and the wing jutting to the west will be devoted mainly to general classrooms.

Contained in Luick Memorial building will be gymnasium with normal seating capacity for basketball games of about 1,400 persons, equipped with folding bleachers and roll-out door for dividing floor; boys and girls locker rooms, with adjoining offices for coaches and girls physical training instructor; and wrestling room.

Second section of community center will include dining hall capable of serving 400 to 500 at a time, with adjoining kitchen; vocal music room; band room, augmented by two practice rooms; offices for vocal and instrumental music instructors; auditorium with seating capacity of about 700, with adjoining dressing room and a work room for the construction of sets and like undertakings.

West wing near the rear of high school will contain four general classrooms; a fifth classroom especially equipped for speech work, with stage at one end; art room, generously provided with north light; boys and girls rest rooms; nurse's office; also two offices for counselling use.

The main portion of the high school building will contain: at the north end, a 32x71-foot library including librarian's office; science section with combined physics-chemistry laboratory, room for biology and another for general science; homemaking room; separate rooms for typing and bookkeeping; general classroom.

Also in this section will be the school offices — an outer office and those for the superintendent and principal; a teachers room; meeting room for the school board; and work room for duplicating machines and similar equipment.

There will be separate, general entrances for students and faculty members and two unloading areas for buses.

Set into the community center will be a patio, set off with a permanent awning extending to the south. This patio, and a second area on the east of the high school, will be planted with shrubbery and flower beds. Also on the east will be a parking lot of generous size to accommodate basketball spectators.

Mrs. Mennenga observes that "Through the generosity of the late Chester Luick, and the willingness of the district's taxpayers to provide the necessary additional building funds, the city of Belmond and Belmond Community School district will have a community center and high school in which their residents may take complete pride."

City council gets street plan OK'ed

By their absence from Monday night's hearing on the 1961 Belmond city budget, taxpayers of the community expressed unspoken approval of the street-surfacing program proposed for next year.

Not one person appeared before the council to protest any phase of the budget estimate as published two weeks ago. The street fund was set at $25,857 for 1961, an increase of more than $15,800, with the additional funds earmarked for street surfacing.

With a $10,000 unencumbered balance anticipated at the end of the current year, the street department will be equipped to handle the city's share of the first, major paving program to be undertaken in Belmond since 1919.

W. Cramer named as rural carrier

Wallace Cramer was notified on Friday of last week of his appointment as rural carrier on Route 2 out of the Belmond post office. This route was left vacant when Otto Hanson retired on July 19.

Actually, Mr. Hanson had not been active as a carrier since October of last year. During the interim, deliveries on Route 2 have been made by Mike Luick.

Mr. Cramer has been on the post office staff since April 23, 1941, when he became a substitute city carrier. He advanced to permanent status on October 1 of the same year.

Rural Route 1 out of the local post office is also vacant at present and has been so since the retirement of Ed Tracy on March 31. Bob Tracy has been carrying on the route since that date.

A recommendation of appointment has been sent to the post office department, but as of this week no word had been received from the department as to official action on the recommendation.

For "Conservation Queen"—

Judges pick Boyington, Schroder

Ardeth Boyington of Rowan and Rita Schroder of Dows were chosen as Wright county's candidates for the title of "Queen of Conservation" as 13 girls contended for that honor Saturday at Clarion.

Selection of Wright's two contenders for the state title was highlight of a dinner and program sponsored by the county Soil Conservation Commission in collaboration with Wright affiliates of the Farmers Grain Dealers (cooperatives) of Iowa.

Next competition for the two winners will be in a regional contest to be held at Mason City in conjunction with the North Iowa Fair.

Also entered in the county contest were:

Kathy Thompson, 16, Eagle Grove; Joan Mathre, 17, Kanawha; Bette Krause, 17, Kanawha; Marguerite Agena, 17, Dows; Erin Tegland, 17, Clarion; Linda Shillington, 17, Clarion; Caren Edwards, 17, Goldfield; Lorraine Davenport, 18, Belmond; Karen King, 16, Clarion; Joan Graves, 16, Goldfield; and Diane Frohling, 17, Rowan.

Judging the contestants were four Wright county newspapermen: Bill Hauser of the Wright County Monitor, Clarion; Wally Johnson, Eagle Grove Eagle; Richard Peters, Wright County Reporter, Dows; and Pat Gallagher, Belmond Independent.

Miss Boyington, who is 17 and will be a Rowan High school senior this fall, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Boyington. She plans to attend college for a least a couple of years and then to seek a position as hostess for an airline.

She has been active in 4-H work, has served as county girls' vice president, was on a blue ribbon demonstration team at the state fair and was winner of a trip to Chicago as an outstanding 4-H'er.

Miss Schroder is 18 years old and graduated from Dows High school in May of last year. She then took a business course at Hamilton School of Business at Mason City and was hired to serve on the secretarial staff of the county extension office at Clarion.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schroder. Her plans for a business career have become of a strictly temporary nature since becoming engaged a while back and she will marry "probably this fall."

Ray Hagie of Clarion, Republican candidate for state representative from Wright county, served as master of ceremonies for both the introduction of guests at the dinner held at Gannon's party room in Hotel Moore and for the stage program on the court house lawn that followed the dinner.

Arrangements for the dinner and contest were made by Bob Locke, farm planner, and Bea Peyton, office manager for the SCS district commission of Wright county.

CHOSEN TO REPRESENT Wright county at the regional "Queen of Conservation" contest at the North Iowa Fair, Mason City, were the two attractive girls pictured above. They were picked from a field of 13 candidates Saturday night at Clarion at the annual dinner and program for which the Wright county Soil Conservation District serves as joint sponsor. This year, sponsorship was shared by county members of the Farmers Grain Dealers (cooperatives) of Iowa. The two winners? Rita Schroder of Dows, left, and Ardeth Boyington of Rowan. Shut car windows plus exhaust leak: family in hospital

Fumes from a damaged exhaust system were blamed for placing five members of a vacationing Missouri family in Belmond Community hospital early Monday morning.

Under medical treatment were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maple of Hickman Mills, Mo., and two of their children — Deborah, age six; and Russell, five. A younger son, Robert, Jr., soon to be three years old, was unhurt but is sharing Rowan room at the hospital with the rest of the family while they recover from their injuries.

Mr. Maple was most seriously hurt and faces a probable two-week stay as a hospital patient. He sufferer multiple injuries, according to the attending physician. The same report was given on Mrs. Maple and the two older children, with the added comment that their injuries were of lesser degree.

Patrolman Elmer Angle of Garner, investigating officer, was told by Mr. Maple that on Sunday his '60 Rambler station wagon had been struck underneath and that during subsequent pauses at stop signs the family had detected exhaust fumes.

The Missourians were returning home after a vacation in northern Minnesota. When they got an early start on the road Monday morning the air was chilly and the car windows were kept closed. Mr. Maple believed this provided the explanation of the family's mishap a quarter mile north of Goodell on Highway 69 at about 6:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Maple was driving the station wagon when she apparently was overcome by carbon monoxide. The car went out of control, crossed the highway and crashed into the ditch on the east side. Patrolman Angle says the station wagon was totally demolished.

Creating new offices, building dryer—

Tomco launches two major expansion projects

Tomco, Inc., currently has two major construction projects under way in Belmond, spurred by steady growth in the firm's volume of business. One involves conversion of the Butler, steel-panel building on Highway 69 near the north plant into general offices for the company. The other is the building of a new corn-dryer adjacent to the south plant.

Executive personnel who will have private offices in the converted Butler building are: R. B. Thompson, company president; Charles Wilmarth, director of research; A. V. Brandmeyer, division sales manager; Don Bunnel, marketing director; Gene Griffin, controller.

Also, Dave Hallowell, director of personnel and public relations; Dick McFarlin, office manager; George Sharp, chief accountant; and William Shirer, assistant to the research director.

Special purpose rooms will include: mailing center; tabulation room (specially soundproofed to house Tomco's IBM accounting equipment); a conference room adequate to accommodate gatherings of 20 to 25 persons; publications room; utility room, containing coffee bar, air conditioning equipment and electric control panel; and men's and women's rest rooms.

Mr. Hallowell, in announcing the expansion projects, called special attention to a research and quality control laboratory, which is an additional special purpose room in the new office building.

It will be equipped for conducting tests on germination and moisture content. In addition, it will include cold storage space for basic seed stock from which Tomco hybrid varieties are produced. A similar, but somewhat larger stock, is kept in the north plant. The supplementary supply is being added as a safeguard in case of destruction of the other supply by fire or some other disaster.

C. H. Lind, Fort Dodge contractor, has been hired to do the work of converting the interior of the steel building to its new purpose. It has been used for warehousing since its erection in 1959. Kinseth Plumbing and Heating will be responsible for the portion of the conversion in its field and Packard Electric company will do the electrical work.

Oct. 1 has been set as the tentative date for occupancy of the new office quarters. The east exterior will be made attractive with a front veneer in two shades of brick, extending half of the east side. A generous amount of plate glass will be used, also, around the entrance.

Goodwin Construction company of Indianola is putting up the new dryer, which will be housed in a building 100x60 feet in ground dimensions and 38 feet high. An auxiliary building constructed of concrete block, 20x20 feet in dimension, will house the burners and blower units. The main building is of timber construction with galvanized metal sheathing as its exterior.

Capacity of the new dryer will be 11,000 to 15,000 bushels of corn at a time, depending upon the grain's moisture content. Its heat will reduce the corn's moisture content to 11 or 12 per cent in about four days' time, on the average. It will augment an older dryer that has a 7,000-11,000 bushel capacity.

Mr. Hallowell says construction of the new dryer was made necessary by Tomco's "biggest ever" acreage this season in the Belmond vicinity. The building is to be completed by Sept. 1 and all equipment installed and ready for operation by Sept. 15.

Following hearing Tuesday morning—

Board reduces '61 county budget by nearly $26,000

Reductions in the Wright county budget totalling $25,980 were made by the board of supervisors Tuesday afternoon, prompted by protests registered by taxpayers at the annual budget hearing conducted in the morning. These decreases brought down to $525,400 the tax askings under the 1961 budget, which is $600 less than required by the current year's budget.

Estimated expenditures for the coming year were reduced by the same $25,980 figure to $973,400 — which is $18,600 less than the proposed expenditures for 1960.

Largest cut was that of $10,000 from the $30,000 appropriation requested by the soldiers' relief commission. This brought the proposed expenditures from this fund down to $20,000 for 1961, a figure still $5,000 more than the appropriation and proposed expenditures for the current year.

Next largest slash was made in the general fund tax appropriation, which was cut by a matter of $9,500. The request of the sheriff's office for $31,000 was docked by $4,000; another $5,000 represented a reduction in proposed remodeling work and repairs on the courthouse; and $500 was dropped from the $2,000 asked for courthouse supplies.

Final reduction was in the amount of $6,460, dropped from the appropriation for the county conservation commission. The commissioners had asked for $22,460. The drop in tax levy will give the commission the same $16,000 amount to spend in 1961 as it had this year.

All available seats in the board room were occupied at the hearing, but not enough taxpayers were on hand to justify holding the hearing in the court room. The proceedings were conducted in an amiable spirit, with little sharp criticism being registered by the taxpayers and the supervisors showing a complete willingness to hear the protests out in full.

Four funds received the most attention, the general fund, soldiers relief, conservation and road funds.

In connection with the general fund, added information was requested on the request of the Wright County Bar association for $5,000 in funds to do some remodeling on the second floor of the courthouse.

Auditor Myron Price said it was his understanding that the bulk of that amount — and perhaps several thousand more to be asked in the 1962 budget — was earmarked for closing off the south stairway and constructing a jurors' room.

One taxpayer reported that it was his understanding that space for such a purpose would be available in the quarters now occupied by the county superintendent's office when school reorganization in the county is completed within the next couple of years.

Considering that the need for a jurors' room is limited to two or three weeks out of the year, at most, it appeared to be the consensus of opinion of the citizens present that the elaborate remodeling project proposed could well be delayed until its need has been more conclusively proved.

Passing attention was also given to the sheriff's budget, which is included in the general fund and showed an increase of $8,000 over that for the current year. It was brought out that $5,000 asked for radio equipment would be needed because of an action announced by the state department of public safety.

This action would withdraw state police radio service now supplied sheriffs' offices and local police and make it necessary for county networks to be set up if air-wave liason is to be continued on its existing basis. The professed need for the rest of the sheriff's office fund increase was not inquired into or discussed.

Annual inquiry into the size of soldiers relief fund put Commissioner Frank Champlin on the "witness stand" to explain the commission's expenditures. Questioners did not express doubt over the need of the applicants for funds, but they did indicate curiosity as to why Wright's outlay for soldiers relief seems exorbitant in comparison with near-by counties.

Figures were supplied showing that soldiers relief in Wright county regularly runs two to four times the expenditures in Humboldt, Kossuth and Franklin counties and close to twice that of Hancock. It was brought out that the Wright county soldiers relief commission had only $15,000 appropriated for the current year — but spent more that that amount in the first six months.

In the course of discussion it was suggested that soldiers relief might advantageously be administered by the general welfare office, as is being done in a number of Iowa counties. It was pointed out that such a transfer would have to be made a special election issue and approved by the county's voters before such action could be taken, however.

Considerable time was devoted to the operations of the county conservation commission, which had asked a $22,460 appropriation. A year ago it had requested $26,000, but the amount was pared by $10,000 subsequent to the budget hearing last August.

Auditor Price stated that the supervisors have never received either a detailed report of the conservation commission's advance plans or such a report on projects undertaken. He noted that of the 1961 budget, $11,000 was earmarked for real estate purchases.

Supervisor Ed Kennedy related that the development of Tyrrell Park, southwest of Belmond, had proved an unfortunate waste of money because of its relative isolation from town and because of damage done by vandals. He wondered if some of the conservation commission's proposed projects might not suffer the same fate.

It was agreed that the conservation body might wisely determine the public acceptance of some of its first-established parks and recreation spots before engaging in such relatively ambitious purchases of land as proposed for 1961.

When the road budget came up for discussion, Engineer Haydn Jones acknowledged that there proved to be more money available for county road construction this year than was reflected in the 1960 budget. This circumstance had been claimed by taxpayers at last year's budget hearing.

Mr. Jones went on to say that the excess funds are being spent during the current season on expediting the county's 10-year paving program and that six more miles are being blacktopped this summer than the program initially called for.

He conceded that the annual road budget has not, in the past, been too realistic in its estimates. He added that this is a matter that can be amended in future budgets and he promised his own, personal effort to see that the road budgets in years to come are as accurate a picture as possible of the road department's financial situation.

Mr. Jones expressed doubt as to the advisability of slowing down on road surfacing in 1961 to get the 10-year program back on schedule. He said, "From my conversation with people over the county, I believe they are anxious to see the road-surfacing program carried through to completion as quickly as possible."

He said he figures the budget set up for 1961 should just about allow for the number of miles to be blacktopped as programmed for next year in the 10-year plan.

THAT BUSY BEAVER who greeted wayfarers approaching Belmond for 12 months disappeared last week from the signboards north and south of town. In his place, a "Gladhand Charley" now extends a fistful of fingers to all persons traveling Highway 69, beamingly welcoming them to Belmond in behalf of all its "2,499 Friendly People." Combs Bulletin company of Fort Dodge, from whom sponsoring local firms rent the sign, decided that Belmond's new unofficial population had the ring of a good "bargain" and consequently chose it as the sign's motif for the next year's time.

Detassler hurt in field mishap

Nikki Killius, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Killius, suffered an extremely painful injury about 9:00 a. m. Monday as she was dismounting from a detasseling machine while working with a Tomco crew.

An investigation of the accident indicated that Miss Killius apparently slipped as she was stepping from the platform on which the detasselers ride.

As she twisted while endeavoring to save herself from a bad fall, Nikki's left leg came in vigorous contact with a set screw on the outside of the machine's framework.

The sharp end of the screw cut a long, deep gash in the calf of her leg. The small bone in the lower leg was broken in the mishap, also.

Miss Killius was a member of a crew working on the V. E. Hanson farm two miles east and two miles north of town. Alvin Kuhlers was driver of the machine upon which she had been riding.

"Lightning" strikes again

Tuesday afternoon the weatherman had no luck at all in generating a welcome shower — to say nothing of a thunder storm. Nevertheless, "lightning" struck on Main street. More than that, it was "lightning" striking the same target for the fourth time. It came in the form of a bolt of good luck that tingled Orana Quigley at 3:00 o'clock to the tune of $50 in Cash Gift Day currency. She confirmed that three times in the past she has been the winner of a CGD prize. Altogether, $100 was cut loose from the Cash Gift Day kitty, for there were two $25 winners at 2:00 p. m. They were Henry Larsen and Mrs. Edward Peterson, the latter of Goodell. Undisturbed by this jolt to the CGD pocketbook, the committee is again posting $400 in prizes next Tuesday afternoon — once more divided into eight $25 awards at 2:00 and four $50's at 3:00 o'clock.

PHYLLIS LEE, WHEN SHE WAS "SOYBEAN PRINCESS"

Phyllis, once GMI Soybean Princess, Still a General Mills "Sweetheart"

It was just six years ago last week that a Belmond High school sophomore-to-be reigned as "Soybean Princess" over a three-day celebration here designated "General Mills Appreciation Days."

Then Phyllis Lee, and only 14½ years old, the pretty miss won the hearts of GMI officials who came to Belmond to participate in the "Appreciation Days" program. They agreed that no company was ever represented by "a sweeter sweetheart" than the charming daughter of Mr and Mrs Archie Lee.

Her graciousness, unflagging patience and ready cooperation at all times contributed in no small degree to making "Appreciation Days" and event still vividly recalled by those persons responsible for the planning and conduct of the celebration.

Typical of her unhesitating willingness to respond to all requests was her nervous ascent to a perch a-top the large sign on the local GMI plant grounds to pose for the accompanying picture

Last week, evidence was provided that Phyllis (now Mrs Odean Severseike) is still counted as a sweetheart of "the General."

She was prettily pictured on the back cover of the July issue of "The Modern Millwheel," magazine published by and for the employees of General Mills. Her full-length photo (cropped to smaller size as here reproduced) was adjoined by a variety of candidates' campaign buttons and the following comment:

"Politics and voting are important to 21-year-old Mrs Phyllis Severseike, cashier in the Accounting Department of the Mechanical Division, who will be voting for the first time this fall. She wants to know all about the various candidates for President and is interested in the issues of the campaign.

"Her first step was to register to vote. Then Phyllis watched the major political conventions on television to become better informed on the issues and candidates."

Phyllis's husband, Dr. Odean Severseike, is presently putting in his medical internship at a Minneapolis hospital.

Ed Albers rolls "perfect" 300

Ed Albers, Belmond's lowest handicap bowler, got his 1960-61 pin-busting off to a noteworthy start last Thursday by posting a "pedfect" 300 game at Strike-It-Rietsch's bowling alleys at Rockford, Ill.

It was the first 300 game to be rolled at the recreation center in its entire five years of operation and, according to Ed, "surprised the proprietor considerably."

After kiddingly declaring his intention of rolling a perfect game, Ed's first three strikes prompted the alleys' proprietor to comment, "Well, only nine to go."

Six strikes later he excitedly amended his cry to "Only a turkey to go."

This was Albers' first 300 in almost a year and a half, after a cluster of perfect games during the 1958-59 season that saw him in one open bowling session string two 300 games in a row.

GINAPP ON CHICAGO TRIP

Roger Ginapp, local pitching ace who has done some twirling this summer for the Garner Junior Legion ball team, recently had the opportunity to accompany the Garner group on a jaunt to Chicago. The group drove in to the "Windy City" on a Thursday and returned home on Sunday after taking in two big league ball games.

League titles still in balance—

PTA ball program in final week

This week's concluding slate of games in the PTA Summer Recreation peewee and midget baseball leagues found four teams still in the running for the peewee title and three still in contention for the midget championship.

Upset artists last week were Keith Boller's Cubs. After slipping to a 2-3 won and lost mark by losing Monday night to Fred Whipple's Giants, the Cubs trimmed the league-leading Cardinals and Pirates to remain a threat for the title.

Thursday afternoon the Giants' hopes received a jolt when the previously winless Red Sox emerged a 25-13 victor when first Ron Ginapp and then Fred Whipple had trouble finding the plate as hurler for the losers. They gave up only six hits — but they included homers by Paul Bamford, Terry Nelson and Capt. Kenny Eygabroad. Whipple also hit for the circuit.

Friday night's battle between the Cubs and Cardinals was a thriller, which the Cubs won 12-11 on a pair of unearned runs in the bottom of the fourth inning after Rickey Hawley's Cards had taken an 11-10 lead in the top of the frame.

Hawley allowed only two hits as losing pitcher but control trouble kept him in hot water. Don Havens struck out seven Cards and allowed only six hits, but five of them were four baggers — three by Capt. Jim Dickson and one each by Don Dougherty and Mark Gabrielson.

Havens poled a couple of homers, himself, to pace the Cubs in their 11-7 win over the Pirates on Wednesday afternoon. Tom Tyrrell for the winners and Capt. Wayne Smith for the Pirates also hit round-trippers.

Key game in last week's midget league activity saw the 1st-place Indians grab the inside track to the championship by decisively whipping the Yankees in 2½ innings under the 12-run rule, 13-1.

Capt. Jerry Soma gave up four hits, allowed four walks and was hurt by a fielding error as Craig Boller's Redskins counted eight runs in the top of the third. Pitcher Terry Armour permitted only two hits and struck out four in two innings on the mound for the winners.

Bob Misner's Orioles shocked Neal Waddington's Tigers with a 6-3 defeat that shoved Waddington's wallopers into third place. This was an extra-inning affair in which Misner allowed only five hits over the five-frame route. Waddington yielded only three hits, but 10 walks spoiled an otherwise good hurling effort.

The Yanks kept their title hopes alive by trimming the Orioles Wednesday afternoon, 16-10, with an 11-hit attack featured by a homer by Mickey Ketchum and a triple by Bob Cox.

Regular season play in both leagues concludes today (Thursday) with four games.

Wright countians have over half bond quota met

June purchases of U. S. savings bonds in Wright county amounted to $85,511, giving the county a six-month total of $752,719 for 57 per cent of the 1960 quota.

This kept Wright still ahead of state and national quota attainments. Iowa's average for the period was 51 per cent, while the national average was 49 per cent.

Robert L. Davison of Clarion, volunteer county chairman, reported that sales of Series E and H bonds in Iowa during June were more than $9 billion, giving the state a first-half total of $78,705,172.

Among the eight midwestern states in this region, Iowa still has the highest dollar volume and per cent of quota attained for the first six months.

Six-month sales of Series E and H bonds and per cent of quotas reached are shown for other counties in this area:

Hardin, $971,870 for 58 per cent; Webster, $1,496,043 for 58 per cent; Hamilton, $735,112 for 54 per cent; Winnebago, $497,164 for 53 per cent; Hancock, $565,759 for 52 per cent; Humboldt, 435,305 for 46 per cent; Franklin, $417,500 for 41 per cent; Cerro Gordo, $831,045 for 39 per cent.

Thornton winner in eighth, 3 to 2

Belmond's Junior Legion baseball team lost an extra-inning decision to Thornton on the latter's diamond Sunday afternoon, 3 to 2, in a well played game.

After taking a 2-0 lead in the first inning with the help of hits by Bob Burk and Larry Tideback, Belmond stayed in front until the fourth. In that frame, Thornton tied the count on two hits combined with an error.

That was all the scoring until the bottom of the eighth, when a pair of Thornton hits brought in the deciding run.

Roger Ginapp for Belmond and Younge for Thornton each permitted seven hits. Ginapp struck out nine batters and issued only three walks. Younge fanned eight and passed only one man.

Neal Waddington was behind the plate for Belmond and Winthers for Thornton.

Don Byrnes now licensed doctor

Friends of the former Betty Dempsey, now Mrs. Donald G Byrnes, will be interested to hear that her husband recently completed a year's internship at Cedars of Lebanon hospital at Los Angeles He has since passed his state board examinations, received his Doctor of Medicine degree and is now licensed to practice in California.

On July 10, Dr. Byrnes went on active duty with the U. S. Air Force as a Captain for a 12-week course in aviation medicine, which he will complete Sept 27

Mrs. Byrnes, who is a daughter of Mr and Mrs. Bill Dempsey, also reported in a letter to The Independent that on July 17 she gave birth to an 8-lb., 4-oz. son, who has been named David Alan.

This is the Byrnes' second son and, adds his mother, "Grandpa and Grandma Dempsey's 16th grandchild."

Three from here to sales meeting

Three Belmond representatives of the MoorMan Feed company will leave next Tuesday for Quincy, Ill., to attend an old-fashioned camp-out and educational meeting on one of the firm's research farms near-by. More than 2,000 men from 31 states will be housed in a huge tent city during this 75th annual affair

Planning to attend are Tom Quigley, MoorMan sales representative for the east half of Wright county; Gordon Warren, who just this week moved to Belmond from Sutherland to take over the west half of the county as a sales territory; and Pat Martin, another newcomer to Belmond, who is district sales manager.

Proegers develop new type "glad"

Kay Ellen Gardens, of which Mr. and Mrs. Luther Proeger are proprietors, last week enjoyed the distinction of having a new strain of gladiolus accepted for introduction as a newly developed variety.

There were about 325 entries in the seedling class at the Iowa State Gladiolus show last week at Estherville, from among which only eight were accepted for introduction as new strains.

Produced after seven years of development, the Kay Ellen seedling is a rose red miniature. Mr Proeger says the commercial outlook for the new strain is quite promising, but it will take a couple of seasons to produce it in marketable quantities.

This year Kay Ellen Gardens had 10 spikes entered in the state show. While the nursery took no championships, as it has a number of times in the past, its entries won five firsts and a pair of seconds in the lower divisions

"7" brings luck to Jim T. Barry

Seven was a lucky number for James T Barry on Tuesday of last week when seven friends gathered at his farm south of town on Highway 69 to harvest his oats. Jim has been ill since planting time this spring and has been unable to look after his field work

Those who assembled at the Barry farm to harvest the oats and get them in the bin were: Gene McLaughlin, Bob McLaughlin, Alfred McLaughlin, Jack McLaughlin, James W Barry, Tom Quigley and Ira Studebaker, Jr.

With James W. Barry, Al and Bob McLaughlin each bringing along a combine, the hard-working visitors got the 15 acres of oats in the bin in short order.

Wright delegation to NFO meeting

Wright county will be well represented at the "NFO Meeting for Action" to be held next Tuesday at Veterans auditorium, Des Moines, predicts Marion Robinson of Holmes, publicity chairman for the Wright unit of the National Farmers Organization.

Roger Wilcox of Eagle Grove, county NFO president, and Mr. Robinson will head the Wright delegation to what Oren Lee Staley, national NFO president, promises will be "the largest meeting in the history of the organization."

NFO leaders and members from a 10-state area are expected to attend the meeting.

Chief among the meeting's purposes will be to make plans "concerning the part that test holding actions will play in the over-all plan of action for collective bargaining for the American farmer," says President Staley.

Today's "Remember" puzzler is Connie Gabrielson. She climaxed all her previous achievements by being selected last year as "Miss Belmond" in the Jaycees' annual 4th of July beauty-talent pageant.

ALEXANDER NEWS

MRS. H. B. JANSSEN

Brothers' bravery prompts citations

Two Alexander boys received awards for bravery from Gov. Herschel Loveless last Saturday at Clear Lake during the annual Governor's Days program. Receiving recognition for meritorious volunteer service were Larry and Gerald Scott.

Basis for the award was the Scott boys' prompt action in saving Dennis Johnson from serious burns when his clothes caught fire as he was burning trash at the school.

Young Johnson was helping his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Johnson, with some cleaning up at the schoolhouse when the incident occurred. As he was emptying a basket of waste paper into the incinerator, his clothes burst into flame. The Scott boys quick-wittedly extinguished the blazing clothes before Dennis suffered any more than minor burns.

The citations were presented by Governor Loveless in behalf of the State Department of Public Safety.

Prize drawing gives newlywed pair expense-paid holiday in New York

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Suntken, son and daughter-in-law of Mrs. Gen Suntken, this week are enjoying a second honeymoon — in New York City — thanks to Mrs. Suntken's lucky participation in a drawing for June brides.

Sponsor of the drawing, in collaboration with Northwest Orient Airlines, was the gift shop of a drug store at Albert Lea, Minn., which is just 10 miles from Mrs. Suntken's home of Hollandale.

When she registered her china and silverware patterns at the gift shop prior to her wedding on June 4, the bride-to-be dropped her name in the drawing box and gave the matter no further thought.

Her mind was pleasantly recalled to that fortunate act a short while back, though, when she was informed that it had won her and her husband an expense-paid holiday in New York.

The couple left Minneapolis on Monday morning aboard a Northwest Orient airliner, due for arrival at a New York airport in the afternoon. They are residing at Hotel Astor during their stay.

Paid entertainment they will enjoy during their gift holiday will include: a tour of New York City and a helicopter ride over the metropolis; two Broadway shows, Meredith Willson's "Music Man" and "Sound of Music," starring Mary Martin.

There wil be an evening at the Copacabana, a show at Radio City Music Hall, a Day Line boat trip up the Hudson river to West Point, a tour of the United Nations and dinner at the International Restaurant.

Also provided will be box seats for a N. Y. Yankee baseball game; a tour of the very modernistic Gugenheim museum, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, which just recently opened; and a number of other attractions of more minor nature.

Mr. and Mrs. Suntken will return to Minneapolis on Friday, whereupon he will resume his duties on the staff of a large Reformed church at Rochester, Minn., until Sept. 7.

This fall the Suntkens will return to the New York vicinity when Larry resumes his studies at New Brunswick (N. J.) Seminary, where he's studied for a year and has two more to go in preparing for the ministry.

Reapportionment by lawmakers appears dubious

As one of the many who are fearful of what all may come up in the bucket if reapportionment is dipped up via constitutional convention, we were left uphappy by the treatment this problem got at the recent state Republican convention.

It has been our consistent hope that the legislature, itself, might be depended upon to reapportion equitably and intelligently Iowa's legislative representation. We were pleased when the GOP resolutions committee not only faced the problem, but went a step farther and suggested one way the job of reapportionment might be done.

There was no quarrel from the floor over the recommendation that one house be set up on the basis of area and the other on population. But when the resolution gave as a possible example the establishment of the Senate as the area body (as is the case in the U. S. Congress) with the proviso that the House, as population body, be enlarged to about 75 legislators some of the incumbent lawmakers present as delegates squealed like a cat with its tail caught in the door.

We're sorry to say that our own 37th District senator, John Walker of Williams, was the loudest of the bunch and it was his motion that succeeded in eliminating the "example" from the resolution.

So long as individual legislators battle for their own personal prerogatives at the expense of the state's best interests, there is meager reason to hope that the legislature will be able to whip the problem of reapportionment.

A glimmer of hope broke through the clouds when "Iowans for Reapportionment by Legislative Action" was formed in mid-July. Guiding spirits behind this organization include some of the state's most competent and public-spirited men.

Alan Vest of Sac City, former president pro tem of the Iowa senate; Gus Kuester of Griswold, former speaker of the house; Lew Warren, publisher of the Oelwein Daily Register; and John Burroughs, publisher of the Belle Plaine Union, are typical of the men who are placing their influence behind Iowans for Reapportionment by Legislative Action.

It is noteworthy that the organizers of the group include both Democrats and Republicans and that they come from communities ranging in size from small village to our largest metropolis. Likewise, all areas of the state are represented, showing that sectionalism plays no part in the reapportionment scrap unless selfish considerations prevail over good citizenship.

In explanation of the group's purpose, Mr. Vest says, "In their eagerness for quick reapportionment some metropolitan newspapers advocating a constitutional convention have overlooked what we think are serious dangers in such a procedure.

"It will be the purpose of our group to present the facts concerning these dangers, so that the voting public will be able to make an informed decision on this question next November."

This is, to our notion, an admirable objective. We feel, though, that the group's educational efforts are going to have to be aimed not only at the voting public but at those legislators whose short-sightedness seems likely to doom all prospect of fair reapportionment by legislative action.

We'd be interested to learn just how the Iowans for Reapportionment by Legislative Action propose to go about that.

Democrats very clearly the "inflation party"

Now that the conventions of both major political parties have been held and the platforms erected upon which their respective persidential candidates are obligated to stand, the voter can now decide with fair accuracy just WHAT a vote for WHO is going to mean.

We've heard it said, and seen it written, that "there's really very little difference" between the Republican and Democratic parties any more. How this nonsense can be repeated in light of the drastically differing philosophies demonstrated in the two platforms, we can't see.

The Democrats have well earned "the inflation party" as a label. They ran up 93.4 per cent of the current national debt; they approved deficit spending budgets or deficiency appropriations resulting in deficits during 20 of the last 27 years; they enacted 20 major tax increases — which nevertheless failed to equal Democrat spending.

While the Democrats platform pays lip service to a blanced budget and a sound fiscal policy, its commitments for inflationary spending make the solid-dollar talk ridiculous.

They promise bigger subsidies, more federal aid, larger handouts to practically all voter blocs tightly enough aligned to comprise a purchaseable package.

They promise the farmer higher parity (with a minimum of controls — they say); they promise the elderly low-cost medical and hospital protection (Socialized medicine? Certainly not!); they promise school aid not only to subsidize building of schools, but to help meet teachers' salaries (of accompanying regulations, they say naught).

And so it goes. Promise after promise of benefits to voter blocs, that will cost John Q. Public added billions and inevitably give the inflation spiral a big push upward.

It remains to be seen if John Q. will recognize that he's being played for a sucker; and that a gift received at the cost of higher taxes and diminished dollar value is worse than no gift at all.

Clipped Comment

From the Typewriters of Other Editors

Bigger 6th District in prospect

Recent census figures shows Iowa with a gain of population of 4.4 per cent of population over ten years ago. The astonishing fact is this places Iowa in 42nd place among the 50 states as far as population gain is concerned.

Iowa is certain to lose a congressional seat. After the 1960 elections Iowa will be entitled to only seven instead of eight congressmen. Time was when Iowa had eleven members of the house of representatives.

This poses a problem for the next session of the legislature which must redistrict the state into seven instead of eight congressional districts. The districts must be larger, particularly in the strictly rural areas, as house membership in congress is based on population.

IF THE STATE REFUSES TO redistrict then the congressmen must must be elected at large.

At the present time the Sixth district, of which Kossuth is a part, has 15 counties in central and north Iowa. The district is three counties wide — Emmet, Kossuth, Winnebago — and five counties deep north and south, plus Crawford county on the west of the lower tier of three.

The largest city in the district is Fort Dodge, which is small in comparison with cities in other districts. It seems evident the Sixth district is in for considerable expansion or dismemberment.

AS THE DISTRICT BECOMES larger the difficulty in getting candidates to run increases. The rigors of a campaign are not lightly considered by those who might be persuaded to make the run. Campaigning from near Omaha to near Mason City is not an easy task now.

It is often a controlling factor in the consideration of persons who might run. This writer has an inkling of the problem having run in what amounts to a four-county district, and the campaign problem was a controlling factor in not being a candidate again.

To be successful, particularly in this state senatorial district with a strong leaning toward one party, a candidate of the opposing party must put on an intensive campaign of several months. As so many others have decided — it's too time-consuming when you have to earn a living too.

WHEN THE SIXTH DISTRICT is enlarged for congressional purposes the problem of good congressional candidates will be accentuated. With the primary often turning on quips, slogans, and voter apathy, good candidates just won't take the rap involved. And in the fall election too often the fate of the local candidate is determined by such slogans a "10-cent hogs" with blind circle voting.

The Advance believes the Sixth district deserves better representation than it is getting from the present incumbent. However the task of getting the better men to run is terrific when these men understand the problem and how voters turn to the rabble rouser type of campaign.

It's time for the voters to take stock of themselves, and to cast a vote based on sound judgment as between candidates they send to congress and to the legislature. — Algona Advance

Sacrifice how?

Ever since Kennedy, in his acceptance speech, called on the people of the U. S. to "sacrifice" instead of looking for more luxury and easy living" we have been bothered. The thing that bothers us is how would a multi-millionaire start to sacrifice?

And he surely wouldn't call on the people to "sacrifice" unless he was going to set the example? Of course we could all give up our Cape Cod summer home. But apparently he doesn't want us to do that because he is vacationing there himself and apparently does not intend to abandon it right away anyway.

OF COURSE WE COULD ALL give up one or two of our chauffeurs or a couple of upstairs maids. But that wouldn't do in an expanding economy as it would be causing unemployment.

If Mr. Kennedy gets elected we will expect him to "sacrifice." We just haven't been able to figure out how the son of a multi-millionaire would go about "sacrificing." — Eagle Grove Eagle

SCANNING THE HORIZON

WITH YE ED

Because inspiration has disappeared in the heat, we propose to let one of our favorite writers — John Gould of the Christian Science Monitor — fill our Scanning space this week. We give you "A Dispatch from the Farm" on the portentious subject of what kind of noise a worm makes . . .

LISBON FALLS, MAINE
Having read most of the promotion material supplied by the Angleworm Lovers of America (I guess they call them "earthworms") I'm still in doubt as to what kind of noise the worm makes when he turns. He does make a noise. Of that I am sure, because my robins hear him. I can't, but they do.

I don't mind telling you it takes quite a bit to subdue one of my worms. They are rugged, developed specially to inhabit the blue clay terrain. Come August, you couldn't stick a crowbar in our lawn—it would be like shoving a toothpick into cement—but the worm toots along through it like nothing.

I don't intrude; I leave them to perform their clandestine affairs. I figure if I leave them alone they'll leave me alone, and the last thing I want is worms reciprocating.

But a large and capable robin who resides in my maple tree is equal to them. He cocks his head in the other direction (that's why they call him a cock robin) and now I know he is listening for worms.

He'll sit there a-cock with his little ones squawking in his off-ear, and the other noises of rural summer are going on as usual. The drone of chain saws in yonder copse, the yammer of tree frogs drumming up a shower, the yak of ducks from the pond, the exuberant cries of children who have found a dog that barks and the heavy din of lumber trucks grinding up the highway — all mingled and jingled.

In the midst of this some incautious worm in my lawn will make whatever noise it is that worms in my lawn make. I can't hear it, but my robin does.

He launches himself off the limb, flies directly about 70 feet to a precise spot, makes a lunge with his beak, and brings up one end of a worm. There is no chance about it; it happens all the time. At first, I thought the robin was lucky, like a boy finding a cent in the grass, but afterwards I knew that the robin was foreknowledged, and descended on purpose because he was well aware of what he would find.

The possibility that it was sight instead of sound occurred to me, but I have evidence to discredit that. Sometimes the pussy cat will stroll across the lawn. If a robin had eyesight to see a worm, he'd have eyesight to see a pussy cat. But sometimes the cat will get halfway across before the robin sees her.

So, I conclude it is sound. The worm makes some kind of noise which is either above or below the normal range of the human ear. It is perceptible to robins. I believe it is a low, ominous, infrared noise, myself, rather that a piercing shriek. This is just suspicion. But the robin hears it and attends.

This robin doesn't have any easy time of it. Just because you can hear a worm doesn't mean you own it. These worms of mine fight back. They are hard to subdue.

When the robin fetches up one end of them, the other end is about a foot inside the State of Maine, and they hang on. The robin will stretch one of them some, and gain, but they frequently retrench. When they do, they snap the robin in ahead so his forehead plunks the ground with a thwock, and often the robin gets punchy and lets go.

Then, I seem to hear a subterranean ha-ha, but probably I imagine it. The robin will stagger around some, and seem to have lost his bearings and will twitter.

But I've noticed if my robin manages to last through the sixth round, he'll usually take the fight. He'll have his feet braced like a heifer in the first halter, leaning far back with his head held high, yanking away, when the worm will lose his tail-hold, and everything lets go with a twang.

The robin pitches over backward in a heap, and the worm lashes like a bullwhip. Then the robin jumps up and down on the worm and refers to him in terms I cannot publish here. Then he winds him up for transport.

I've been watching this so closely I'm late in my commitments, but I'm sure of my conclusions. I never heard anybody advance the theory that earthworms make a noise, and if it is important I should like to be the first.

Mirabile dictu!

To say that one opposes unnecessary federal spending is to repeat a cliche. To do so when it means turning away a federal expenditure in one's own community is unusual enough to be recorded for posterity.

We so do, here and now, in reporting the rejection of Postmaster Arthur E. Summerfield's offer to give Mount Taber, N. J., a new $10,000 post office.

By way of documentation, we offer the item that 264 of the 365 families which use the old post office petitioned their opposition. This was indeed a rare day in June — Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat and Chronicle

Know your businessmen—

Ed Riggs quitting after 39 years as barber

Ed Riggs is getting in "just under the wire" as the subject of a "Know your businessmen" feature, for he is winding up 39 years of barbering and will retire within the next week or two. On Sept. 1, Ed will reach age 65. With the combination of Social Security, a pension as a World War I veteran and a bit he's laid aside, he figures he can take it easy the rest of the way.

He and Mrs. Riggs will move to Arkansas, where they plan to build a small home on an acreage near Forest City (about 50 miles west of Memphis, Tenn.) that is owned by their son-in-law and daughter, Charles and Lela Faye Lindsey.

A farm boy until after he returned from military service in June of 1919, Ed was born at Mount Vernon, Ill., but came to Clarion in 1914. He left in the first Army draft from Clarion in 1917. After his discharge, he again worked briefly as a farmhand before coming to Belmond in 1920 to work the fall and winter "campaign" at the sugar factory.

Ed admits, "I never dreamed I'd ever be a barber." But he enjoyed shooting pool, and spent quite a bit of time at George Brady's combination pool hall and barber shop. One day George asked Ed how he'd like to be taught the barbering trade. Ed took some convincing that he would ever be able to develop the skill, but finally agreed to give it a try.

He recalls that Maurice "Barney" Dillon was his first haircut customer and the late "Duffy" Rierson was the first person he shaved. Ed says, "I cut Duffy nine times!"

If Ed has his way, "Barney" will be the LAST man whose hair he cuts before he lays down his clippers and shears for good.

When he started in as an apprentice barber, Ed received $10 a week in salary. He'd worked up to $17 when he got married in 1923 to Verna Jones, and at that time his pay was boosted to $20. He was making $25 or a little better on a commission basis when he decided to launch out on his own after 7½ years in George Brady's shop.

With a rueful simle, Ed recalls that in the depth of the depression the local price of haircuts sank to 25 cents for about six months. But the barbers then decided that if a fellow could scrape up two-bits, he could manage the previous price of 40 cents.

Electric clippers were introduced to the barbering trade about the time Ed started, and the only time he ever used hand clippers was when the electricity failed — which was fairly often back in the 'twenties.

Shaves, he says, were really the backbone of the barbering business until the electric razor dealt this source of income the death blow right after World War II. The safety razor didn't rob the barber of nearly so many customers as the electric razor, Ed declares.

"Belmond businessmen used to get shaved just about every day. And quite a few farmers would drop in for shaves a couple of times weekly. But a haircut was an every two or three weeks proposition," Ed points out.

Almost always when a man got a haircut, he got shaved at the same time, Ed remembers. Also, shampoos, facial messages and even mud packs were supplementary sources of income. Ed adds that he didn't much care about giving mud packs (which had the purpose of giving a face a very thorough cleansing), because they took an hour to administer and brought the till only a dollar. Shaves and haircuts were appreciably more profitable.

ED RIGGS SHOWN CLIPPING A "TOUGH CUSTOMER"

When he first started in at the trade at Brady's, Ed and George used to work every night of the week — and on Saturdays, sometimes until 1:00 or 2:00 o'clock into Sunday morning.

Because farmers couldn't get into town so conveniently then, when they dropped in for a harcut or shave they wanted nothing to stand in the way. That's why in the days of frequent power failure, Ed and George more than once wielded hand clippers by the light of car headlight beams directed through the front window in order to accommodate those awaiting attention.

Ed says that, though he saw bad times as well as good, barbering has treated him very well and that he's had no regrets over his rather strangely selected occupation. And he knows that down in Arkansas he will sometimes miss Main street and the many good customers he served there for almost four decades.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Two Hollywood actresses have won rave notices for outstanding achievements in depicting a fair-skinned mulatto trying to "pass" as a white person — Jeanne Crain in "Pinkie" and Susan Kohner in "Imitation of Life." It's a difficult role for a Caucasian to attempt, but is exceptionally rewarding if the job is done right.

Great things are now predicted for another young actress who has tackled the same dramatic challenge in "This Rebel Breed," Diane Cannon. It's showing Thursday through Saturday.

Of this sociological problem, Prof. Guy Johnson of the University of North Carolina, says, "The 'passing' of Negroes is more widespread in America than most people know. Undoubtedly several million white Americans have a 32nd or 64th or less of Negro blood and don't even know it." Rita Moreno and Mark Damon star in "This Rebel Breed."

In the same vein as "No Time for Sergeants" and "Mister Roberts," Sunday through Wednesday's "Wake Me When It's Over." It's the story of how a U. S. Air Force outfit on a Pacific island transforms their domain into a colorful resort by almost unbelievably imaginative conversion of GI equipment. Cigar-smoking Ernie Kovacs gives another of his uproarious performances, with able assistance from Robert Strauss, Dick Shawn and Jack Warden — with Margo Moore and Nobu McCarthy tossed in for youth and beauty.

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Occupying all to herself a page in "Chicago Life," rotogravure section of the Chicago Daily News, Carole Christensen appeared in the News picture magazine on July 23 representing 85 Young Republican hostesses who made life pleasant for delegates to the National Republican Convention. She is a daughter of Mrs. Rex Elphic and sister of Sharon Christensen, who will be a BHS senior this fall.

Carole remained in Hampton to finish out her senior year in high school when her family moved to Belmond. It was while at Hampton that she became interested in the Young Republicans' organization.

After getting her high school diploma, Carole went to Chicago and enrolled in a school of modeling. She was subsequently employed by a Chicago advertising company, and in that capacity she's had occasional opportunities to appear on television. Continuing activity in the Young Republicans after going to Chicago brought about her chance to serve as hostess — and get a first-hand view of the recent GOP convention.

Driving through the southeast part of town recently, Ye Ed approached a tiny bicycle rider (both the rider and the bicycle were tiny, so apply the adjective where you will) who caught our eye by very distinctly signalling an intended turn. He indicated a right turn, and then actually turned to the left; but we forgive him the technical error in admiration for his conscientiousness as a "driver." If all parents would get across to the bike riders in their families the importance of using hand signals, it would save motorists some white hairs.

We've had several instances lately in which parties have wished some element of a news story intentionally omitted. In such cases, we always try to convince our news source that, barring VERY good reason to the contrary, it is highly advisable to leave the reading public NO leeway for jumping to conclusions.

An example of what can happen (though no censorship was requested in this case) was offered by the leg injury suffered last week by young Nikki Killius while detasselling. Her mother, Mrs Cecil Killius, called us to inquire if the relatively minor nature of her daughter's injuries would be clearly stated in a story regarding the mishap. She was relieved to learn they would be, for she said she had been receiving phone calls commiserating with her daughter over the necessity of "amputating her leg" . . . because "200 stitches" had been required to close the wound . . . and other well-intentioned remarks of sympathy that had no basis in fact.

By the end of the week, Nikki had been released from the hospital and is recovering nicely. But her experience emphasizes that where a "news vacuum" exists, rumor will inevitably fill the void. And you can always count on the rumor greatly exaggerating the facts. Bear this in mind when you ask that something be "left out."

What a pity it wasn't discovered earlier in the season what was required to get a good rain in this sun-parched area. Picnics and family reunions hadn't been able to turn the trick. Cars were washed with blithe abandon, without bringing a drop. Then came the summer recreation midget all-star game last Friday. Game called on account of rain! And on Monday night, the peewee all-stars were to have at it. They got just one inning played, then the rains came! One of those all-star games could just as well have been scheduled three or four weeks earlier, had their influence on the weatherman but been known.

We took two pictures of Don Hoppel presenting the Most Valuable Player awards prior to Monday night's peewee all-star game. Because of the floodlights overhead, a freak shadow in the first one — combined with the broad grin on his face — made "Hoppy" look like he had two sets of teeth. In the second one, which appears in the columns adjoining Main Street, a similar shadow gives him the appearance of having two noses. We want to assure any who might wonder, that Don HAS only ONE schnozz.

If you want to order an enlargement of your favorite peewee or midget baseball team from those that appeared last week in The Independent, do get your order in before the end of this week. A 7x5-inch print is $1.00 (plus two cents for the governor). We'd like to place all the orders at once.

Remember?

This seven-year-old tyke of a decade ago has developed into a versatile athlete at BHS who has shown skill in three varsity sports. He'll soon be out for football practice — for he has one more year of high school competition ahead of him. Besides his skill in athletics, this young chap appears consistently on his class honor roll as a scholar. You'll find his identity on Page 7.

Sheriff's clerk will soon retire

Mrs Lillie Culbertson, who has served as clerk in the county sheriff's office since March 7, 1951, has submitted her resignation to Sheriff Robert Blecker to be effective the end of this month

During her nearly 9½ years of service, she has acted as a radio operator, bookkeeper and matron, as well as performing the duties of desk clerk In addition to serving as matron in criminal cases involving women, she has served in the same capacity when the county has delivered female patients to state mental hospitals.

Now 83 years old, Mrs. Culbertson spent the years of her young womanhood in Clarion, later moving to Washington state with her husband. She was a teacher in Wright county rural schools in her younger days. She returned to Clarion after the death of her husband in the late 'forties

Sheriff Blecker says Mrs Culbertson will not be replaced immediately, although her presence in the office has made it possible to keep the office manned throughout the day and give the public prompter service than might otherwise have been possible

He adds, "Mrs. Culbertson has been of great service to myself and my deputies in fulfilling her various duties and we are sorry to see her retire."

Wright's Safety-Check again first

Announcement was received last week by Sheriff Robert Blecker that the board of judges for the National Vehicle Safety-Check for 1960 awarded top honors in the nation for counties of 10,000 to 25,000 population to Wright county. This is the fourth year in a row that Wright has had no peer among counties in its population category in this safety event.

Sheriff Blecker received from M R Darlington, Jr, of Washington, D C, director of the National Vehicle Safety-Check, a letter containing the following words of praise

"The Auto Industries Highway Safety Committee, LOOK Magazine, and the Association of State and Provincial Safety Coordinators join the National Board of Judges in extending sincere congratulations to all who contributed to the success of your program Best wishes for continuing success in your traffic safety efforts."

As in previous years, the county Vehicle Safety-Check was a project of the Wright County Peace Officers association The officers were assisted by Boy Scouts of the participating communities and by service station and garage personnel, who gave time in helping to check the vehicles.

Whereas in the three previous years, Wright county's award was designated a National Award of Excellence, its citation for 1960 was a State Award of Excellence.

Sheriff Blecker could not explain the difference in classification, considering that Wright's was the only award in the nation going to a county in the 10,000-25,000 population bracket It was the only Iowa county to earn an award

State Awards of Excellence went to Ames, in the class for cities of 25,000 to 100,000 population; and to Sumner among cities of less than 10,000 population

All entries were judged and winners chosen on the basis of effective community efforts encouraging motorists to have their vehicles Safety-Checked for 10 points affecting safe driving condition. Th national board of judges considered the quality of the Safety Check program, as shown in scrapbook entries submitted by the communities and counties, as well as the total number of vehicles checked, rejected, and rechecked in relation to the area's population.

Sponsors of the program at the Auto Industries Highway Safety Committee, LOOK Magazine and the Association of State and Provincial Safety Coordinators.

OMVI fine costs C. Johnson $300

Calvin "Bud" Johnson, 30, pleaded guilty in district court at Clarion on Tuesday of this week to a charge of operating a motor vehcile while intoxicated Judge J M Schaupp fined Johnson $300 and costs, it being the defendant's first OMVI offense

Johnson was arrested early last Friday morning after a hit-and-run accident as he was driving north on Third avenue NE. According to Officer Marvin Miller, who made the arrest, Johnson — driving a truck owned by Kennedy Furniture, but whom he is employed — ran into the auto of Rev. M L. Jones parked in front of the Methodist parsonage

Impact of the collision jolted the Jones car a distance of 134 feet The rear left end of the minister's car was damaged and the rear window smashed out. Both headlights and the windshield on the truck were broken and the front end considerably bent.

After the crash, the truck continued across two lawns to the north of the parsonage, crossed Second street NE and finally came to rest on the lawn of the Trinity Lutheran parsonage

Johnson turned the truck around, retraced Third avenue NE to First street and had gotten as far as Fourth avenue heading east when Officer Miller caught up with him.

In a statement to the Belmond policeman, Johnson said he had had several glasses of beer at a local tavern. Several bottles of beer were found in the truck.

In accordance with a new state law applying to defendants accused of OMVI, Johnson was notified on Saturday by the state department of public safety that his driver's license had been suspended for a period of 60 days

F. V. Kelly joins Doughboy staff

Francis V. Kelley, former BHS vocational agriculture instructor, has accepted a position with Doughboy Industries, Inc., as a hog specialist for the Ames Formula Feed division of that company.

Since leaving Belmond several years ago, Mr Kelley was employed by Foxbilt Feeds He was most lately serving Foxbilt as a manager of some of the company's farms.

1959 Wright "ag" census shows—

Fewer farm units; value going up

A drop of 147 in the number of farms in Wright county between 1954 and taking of the census of agriculture in 1959 is shown in the preliminary report of the census bureau released last week. Eleven of those farms were eliminated by change in definition; but the others simply were consolidated with other farms.

In 1954, Wright county farms numbered 1,855; last year the total had slipped to 1,708 These farms encompassed a total of 362,797 acres of land, averaging 212.4 acres in size in comparison to an average farm size of 190.6 in 1954.

Average value of farms in Wright county last year was set at $75,849 which was $23,254 more than five years ago. Per-acre value went up from $270.02 to $346.71, according to the census report.

Of the county's farm operators 492 owned their farms; 293 owned part of the land and rented additional acreage; and 920 were tenant farmers In the five years since the preceding census, there was a drop of 79 in the number of farmers with full ownership of their land; but the number owning at least part of the land they farm increased by 56

There was a decrease of 120 in the number of tenant farmers in Wright county and the percentage of tenancy decreased from 56.1 to 53.9

Average age of the farm operators was a bit higher than in 1959, being 46.1 compared to 45.2 five years earlier. However, the number age 65 or over at 134 was 25 less than the 1954 census showed

Livestock numbers were generally higher on Wright county farms in 1959 than in 1954, although the percentage increase in beef cattle was quite small — up from 46,977 to 47,965 Total of hogs and pigs was up from 148,916 to 162,700; and sheep and lambs totalled 27,189 compared to 16,316 five years before

While the number of cows and heifers that had calved came to only 10,833 in comparison with 15,155 in 1954, the latest census showed an increase in heifers and heifer calves from 14,839 to 17,426 Milk cows diminished in number from 7,016 to 5,209

Rather surprisingly, the number of horses and mules showed an increase from 935 to 996 although only 248 farms reported animals in this classification compared to 338 in 1954.

There was a moderate decrease in the number of chickens (four months or older) as compared to 1954, the total being down to 352,981 from 364,358.

The trend to larger farms was indicated by the fact that those consisting of 500 to 999 acres went up from 24 to 43; those of 260 to 499 acres increased from 354 to 414; and those from 220 to 259 acres increased from 246 to 264.

In all size categories of less than 220 acres, there were fewer farms in 1959 than in 1954.

Detailed statistics on crops, livestock, equipment and like matters are presented in the 1959 preliminary report, with comparable statistics for 1954. Copies of the Wright county report may be obtained for 10 cents each from the Census Bureau, Washington, D. C.

ELLIOTT PREACHES AT RENO

Dick Elliott, who is serving a ministerial internship at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Sacramento, Calif., preached at the Lutheran church at Reno, Nev., last Sunday. In the letter to parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Elliott, telling of this assignment, Dick did not explain how he happened to be traveling so far afield. It was his parents' conjecture that his internship may entail serving as substitute pastor during vacation absences of regular ministers in the far western area where he's located.

A $10 LETTER of credit will be presented next week to the first person successful in identifying the Main street merchant in the mop of blonde curls pictured the past three weeks in The Independent. Several guessers HAVE turned in "her" identity. "She" is rigged up for Ridiculous Day, a week from Saturday; and it might be noted that "her" costume is strictly orthodox compared to some that will be worn when "the main drag" goes ridiculous.

French doctor visits Belmond clinic as example of A-1 medical center

Steele Memorial clinic was one stop on the itinerary of Dr. Jean Vacher, professor of legal and occupational medicine at the School of Medicine, Tours, France, who is touring Iowa as a guest of the University of Iowa's Institute of Agricultural Medicine.

Dr. Vacher is visiting SUI as a participant in the foreign specialist program of the bureau of educational and cultural affairs of the U. S. Department of State.

He visited the local clinic as an example of the A-1 medical facilities to be found today in top-flight, rural medical centers After his inspection of the clinic and Belmond Community hospital, his party went to Meservey to inspect the Fashion Farm "cow pool."

Last week, the French educator toured University of Iowa laboratories and discussed various aspects of legal and medical problems which are peculiar to the rural population He also visited the plant and research center of John Deere and company at Waterloo, made field trips to farms in the Grinnell area and to Iowa State university at Ames.

Yesterday he was to tour the Oscar Mayer meat packing plant at Davenport and visit the Johnson county fair at Iowa City. Today he planned to visit the Quaker Oats plant at Cedar Rapids and other food processing plants there.

Dr Vacher was guided to Steele Memorial clinic by Dr. Franklin H. Top, director of the Institute of Agricultural Medicine at SUI, and Clyde Berry, its associate director.

They have acquired a close acquaintanceship with Dr. S. P. Leinbach through his association with the institute, in an advisory capacity. Dr Leinbach was one of the men influential in preliminary planning that led to establishment of the Institute of Agricultural Medicine.

HELLO WORLD

Mr and Mrs Clarence Carlson of Livermore are parents of a 7 lb. 9 oz baby girl born Aug 6.

Belmond township failed to approve special fire levy

S. N. Hinman, clerk of Belmond township, informs The Independent that he was advised by County Auditor Myron Price some time after the June primary election that that township's vote on a tax levy for fire protection didn't meet the state requirements for passage.

It had been the initial understanding of those favoring the levy that the 40-to-31 majority for the special issue was sufficient for its approval. But Auditor Price revealed that a 60 per cent favorable vote is required for passage; the June vote figured only 58.25 per cent

Because the support of Belmond township is essential to the Belmond Fire Department's plan to purchase a new truck for rural use, the proposition will be presented to the voters of the township again at the general election on Nov. 8.

J. C. Brady takes job at Iowa Falls

J. C. Brady, former Belmond postmaster, the first of this month accepted a position with the Iowa Falls Advertiser as a solicitor of advertising and job printing and salesman of office equipment.

In accepting the new job, Cleon resigned from the staff of Capital City Commercial College of Des Moines, on which he'd been serving as vice president and administrator of the school.

The Bradys left Belmond in 19 when Cleon accepted appointment as personnel assistant in the Des Moines district operations office of the post office department.

Now Mrs Brady and four of their children—Mary Ann, Joseph, John and Patricia Ann—have joined Mr. Brady in Iowa Falls. The Bradys' eldest son, James, is an Air Cad stationed at Bartow AFB, Florida.

New teacher has served as aide to IFYE visitors

Linda Kay Haenny, whose photograph was not available at the time she was signed to a teaching contract in the Belmond schools last spring, is pictured below.

She has been spending an interesting summer assisting with the orientation of foreign young people in this country under the International Farm Youth Exchange program and helping to distribute them to the homes in which they are staying as guests.

Miss Haenny has spent most of her time in New York City, where all incoming groups make a one-week stop-over for a period of orientation She has also brought some youth groups to midwestern distribution points, from where they continue on to their assigned homes.

Junior high and grade school music instructor is the position Miss Haenny will fill on the Belmond Community School faculty. She graduated in June from St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn. Her home is Minneapolis.

LINDA KAY HAENNY

H.B. "Hi" Vanderlip has served ASC, predecessors since 1934

It requires a more than normal amount of dedication to the public interest to serve in unpaid public office It follows that more than a quarter century of service in such a position represents a degree of dedication that is rarely to be found

And that puts H B "Hi" Vanderlip of Dows in a very exclusive class among public servants in Wright county When he was elected recently to the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee it marked the 26th time that he has been chosen to serve on that body, and for about 20 of those years, he has served as the committee's chairman

It was when the original "corn and hog program" was set up by the New Deal in 1934 that "Hi" was first chosen by his fellow farmers to serve on the county committee

Officially known as the Triple-A program (Agricultural Adjustment Administration) until 1943, the AAA in that year became the PMA (for Production and Marketing Administration) and then in 1950 was converted to the ASC.

From start to finish, its objective has been to defend the farmers' economic interests; and as a farmer, "Hi" has felt under obligation to help implement the changing program as best he could.

How nearly a unique position Mr Vanderlip holds in the Iowa ASC today is to be appreciated by the fact that last year only one other man in the state could boast having been a county committeeman from the program's outset. Whether he, like "Hi," was reelected this year, the Wright county veteran doesn't know

Mr Vanderlip admits that "in 1934 like a lot of other Wright county farmers, I was in pretty bad financial shape Introduction of the corn and hog program meant a great deal to me Its corn loan, and other features, were no less than a life-saver for the many farmers in my position."

He recalls that when the Triple-A was introduced in Wright county, more than 500 farms were held by insurance companies One major company, alone, held title to more than 100 farms in this county; another held possession of some 65.

"Today," Mr Vanderlip says, "the insurance companies are close to being entirely out of the farm business in this county Perhaps they don't hold a single farm today; I don't know of one."

What made that earliest AAA program so valuable to the farmer was the availability of a loan on his corn crop so he didn't have to sell in order to meet obligations put off until right after harvest time When he'd HAD to sell, the end result was further depression of farm prices because of the dumping of large amounts of grain on the market right after harvesting.

While none of the farm programs have approached perfection, by a long sight, the government leadership they provided DID enable the farmer to protect himself against ruin Much of the time, he's been enabled to do a good deal better than that

HIS 25TH ANNIVERSARY as an ASC official was marked last year by presentation to H. B. Vanderlip of the Certificate of Service which he is shown examining below.

Abetting the farm program was the almost simultaneous introduction of hybrid corn and the Commodity Credit Corporation, which together did much to improve the farmer's lot, "Hi" observes.

Emphasis that has been placed on general conservation, soil saving and crop management by the ASC has greatly improved the outlook of all agriculture, the long-time committeeman declares.

The continuing achievements of the succeeding farm programs have kept Mr Vanderlip happy to serve among the county administrators, so long as that was the wish of the farmers participating in those programs. He insisted this year that he was not seeking membership on the county committee again, but consented to accept if it was the will of the farmers voting

Now he says this is to be his last year on the committee. But that declaration may or may not hold good a year hence "Hi" has acquired quite a habit of serving when service is asked of him (he also was on the county board of education as a director for 16 years).

What is the idea of a program administrator of Mr. Vanderlip's experience as to what slant the program should take for greater effectiveness. "Hi" doesn't profess to be smarter than those who have devised the programs to date; but he does have his own opinion as to what might be an improved approach.

He suggests a guaranteed price on so many bushels of corn, oats and soybeans, in relation to the farm's size — with sliding supports governed by the amount of land NOT planted to a cash grain crop He definitely would not have a noncompliance guaranteed price such as brought the wrath of complying farmers down on Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson in 1957

Mr Vanderlip says enforcement of compliance has been a problem, but only a minor one throughout the life of the farm program. He doubts that over one per cent of Wright county's participants have deliberately violated their agreements.

Mr Vanderlip has lived for 48 years on the farm he presently operates northwest of Dows. Its 245 acres were bought by his parents — originally Missourians — in 1912 after they had moved north as far as Ellsworth in 1904. Only 175 of the farm's acres are tillable.

"Hi" is convinced that even though not always wholly successful, the efforts of the varying farm programs to aid the farmer's situation have meant a great deal to the H. B. Vanderlip farm and its occupants.

Tigers post 11-9 win in play-off

Championship of the PTA midget baseball league was won Monday afternoon by Neal Waddington's Tigers in a play-off with Craig Boller's Indians Regular season play had ended with the two teams in a tie for first place. It was a six-run third inning that gave the title to the Tigers.

Waddington's crew chalked up two runs in the first inning when Bob Flanagan was walked and Waddington then lashed out a home run. A triple by Terry Armour was instrumental in putting the Indians ahead, 3 to 2, in the bottom of the frame.

In the second inning, the Tigers tallied three runs — all unearned — as Armour had trouble locating the plate. But Waddington had little more success with finding the strike zone and the Indians also gathered in three more runs to regain a lead of 6-5.

Although the Indians connected for a pair of hits — off the bats of Terry Roberts and Jeff Kessler — in the third inning, a high foul nabbed by Waddington and a couple of strike-outs kept Boller's gang from scoring.

At hit by Neal Kalkwarf was combined with four walks and an Indian fielding error to put the Tigers out in front 11-6 in the last half of the third.

An error and a cluster of walks permitted the Indians to reduce the margin to 11-9 in the top of the fourth; but the scoring for both teams ended there.

All-star peewee game ends in tie

Rain Monday night shortened the peewee all-star game to a single inning, making it a tie ball game between the Reds and the Blues, 3 to 3. That was one inning more than the midget all-stars were able to get played the preceding Friday night. The midgets didn't even get started, that game having to be cancelled because of rain.

Some excellent fielding plays featured the brief game Monday night. Four runs tallied by the Reds, for whom Ronald Ginapp and Craig Boller formed the battery, were wiped out by the downpour that prompted play to be stopped during the top half of the second inning. There were two out at the time.

Donnie Havens and Fred Whipple were hurling and receiving, respectively, for the Blues.

Riehm shooting for Coad post—

GOP drafts 6th district strategy

Republicans of the 6th District held three meetings last Thursday at Hotel Warden, Fort Dodge, to the specific purpose of enhancing the chances of Curtis G. Riehm in his campaign to unseat Congressman Merwin Coad and to the general purpose of getting majorities in the district for all GOP office-seekers this fall.

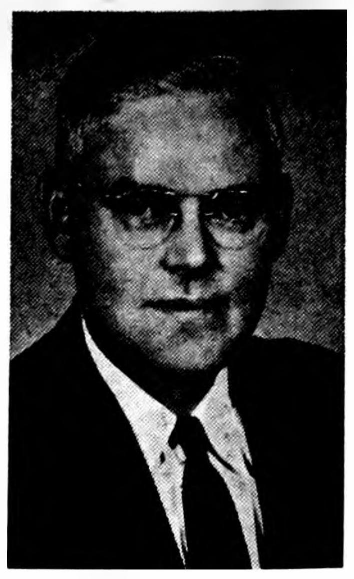
At noon, about a dozen and a half selected party personnel from over the district gathered for a luncheon meeting at which over-all plans for the general election campaign were discussed. Editor J. R. Gallagher of The Independent was among those sitting in on this session.

Inspiration for the day's meetings was Attorney Riehm's determined declaration that he intends to do everything personally possible to recapture the 6th District Congressional seat for the Republicans.

Sent by the national GOP organization to assist the Garner lawyer in his fight to become U. S. Representative were Fred Schwengel of Davenport, Congressman from the 1st Iowa District and member of the National GOP Congressional committee; and Raymond V. Humphreys, field representative for the same committee from Washington, D. C.

Mr. Schwengel and Mr. Humphreys — along with Mr. Riehm — in the afternoon addressed representatives of the Iowa Council of Republican Women from throughout the 6th District; and in the evening, following a dinner, spoke to the district's county chairmen and vice chairmen.

Mr. Schwengel told his listeners that the Republicans gained two of the "musts" for party success in November when the recent national convention provided them with an outstanding leader in Richard M. Nixon and issues worth working hard for as set forth in the party platform.



CURTIS G. RIEHM

In his remarks, Mr. Humphreys emphasized that leadership and issues cannot carry an election without organization. He cited the GOP success in the 4th District, where John Kyl defeated C. Edwin Gilmour in a special election earlier this year to fill a Congressional vacancy.

While Riehm backers were planning strategy at Hotel Warden, Congressman Merwin Coad and his Democratic adherents were similarly occupied at the Wahkonsa hotel next door — suggesting that neither party is inclined to take for granted the outcome of the 6th District Congressional race.

Film Highlights

COMING ATTRACTIONS

A childhood classic known to a good many movie-goers, "A Dog of Flanders," is brought to the screen in Thursday through Saturday's feature starring David Ladd and Donald Crisp. Son of famed parents — Alan Ladd and Sue Carol, a popular star of the silent movies — David, on the strength of this role, appears destined for a long Hollywood career of his own. This is the first U. S. motion picture ever to be filmed entirely in Holland. Good all-family fare, this one is.

Former child star Luana Patten demonstrates effectively in "Home from the Hill," showing Sunday through Wednesday, that she's now a "grown up woman." She's been missing from the screen for four years, but is now making a notably successful "comeback" at the ripe age of 21. Sharing acting honors with her in this story of the deep south are Robert Mitchum, Eleanor Parker and a handsome newcomer, George Hamilton.

TB case search soon will start

A search for possible but as yet unknown cases of tuberculosis begins soon in Wright county, according to Mrs. A. B. Parsons of Eagle Grove, president of the Wright County Tuberculosis and Health association.

The program will be directed by Mrs. Alice Alleman, R. N., public health nurse. She will call on the physicians in the community who will advise her of any persons known to have been in contact with an active case of tuberculosis.

These persons, plus any others the family physican refers, are to be visited by the public health nurse. Each contact will be advised to have a tuberculin skin test to be done by the family physican to screen out those not needing the chest X-rays.

Those who react to the test will receive a letter with an appointment to report at the state mobile X-ray unit for a 14x17-inch chest film. (Reaction to the tuberculin test does not necessarily mean a person has tuberculosis.)

The contact program, which has the approval of the Wright County Medical Society, the Iowa Tuberculosis and health association and the Iowa State Department of Health, has been credited by public health officials as finding the greatest number of cases of tuberculosis of any case-finding program in the state.

The program is financed from the sale of Christmas Seals.

R&T conservation certificates given

Winners of Des Moines Register and Tribune Conservation Awards for Wright county were presented by Farm Planner Bob Locke in conjunction with the recent "Queen of Conservation" contest at Clarion. Certificates were awarded by Mr. Locke. The 1960 winners were selected by the 1959 winners, Herman Hiemstra, Roger Toft and Paul Thul.

Winner of the owner-operator award was Clifford Meyer, who owns a quarter section and whose outstanding features were land use and fertilizer program as well as an extensive tile system.

Tenant operated certificate was awarded to Wynn Mechem, tenant, Lee Mechem, owner. The farmer's work consists mainly of erosion control practices such as strip cropping and waterway development. He also is carrying on a land use and fertilizer program.

The certificate for new cooperator was awarded to Amzie Yoder, who has recently purchased his 160 acre farm. He has completed several practices in lesser amounts such as contouring, waterway development and tile drainage. He has established a land use program and has started on a fertilizer program.

Social Security reaches its 25th birthday Aug. 14

"Twenty-five years ago — on Aug. 14, 1935 — the Social Security Act was made a law," Clifford W. Swedlund, manager of the Fort Dodge Social Security district office, reminded this week.

"At that time the words 'Social Security' meant nothing," he recalled, "and today there is hardly a family whose lives have not been helped by social security payments."

According to Swedlund, monthly payments are now being made to more than 14 million men, women and children. These payments include retirement, survivors and disability benefits.

Despite the widespread interest in social security, Swedlund believes there are many people yet who do not realize their rights and the benefits to themselves and their families. He said members of his staff are always glad to answer questions about social security.

They also have a good supply of free informational pamphlets. For information as to how social security may effect you and your family, he urges you to write, telephone or call at the Fort Dodge Social Security district office.

PEACE PARTY

Republican accomplishments in the area of foreign policy are typified by the single word "Peace." In 1953, the Republican administration began by bringing to an end the 142,000-casualty Korean War, which the preceding Democrat Administration was unable to settle.

Since 1953, the Republican administration has settled other situations which could have flamed into war if a weak foreign policy had been followed.

Republicans have developed a strong, firm, foreign policy, which prevents a potential enemy from misunderstanding America's intentions. Such miscalculations helped bring on all three wars we have fought in this century.

Republican strokes for U. S. leadership of the world in development of tension-easing advances have included: Atoms for Peace program; increased exchange of educational and cultural elements; patient, imaginative negotiation toward agreement on nuclear test suspension.

Also, the President's friendship tours, the Vice President's tours of Russia and Poland, following up earlier journeys for peace through Asia, South America and Africa.

PUBLIC FORUM

Letters to the Independent are welcomed. Please try to limit to 100 words or less.

Belmond, Iowa

Dear Mr. Editor,

In reply to your article of "John Q. Public being a sucker for Democratic inflation . . ."

I happen to be John Q. Public and have several million brothers who go by the same name. We suckers of the majority party are "willing to be suckers" if it benefits our other brothers from Maine clear to China or from space men to the coal mine.

Surely there would be a greater debt increase during 20 years than in eight years, plus the fact that orignators and progressive people DO things. The next time we enjoy the freeway four-lane highways, we should say "thank you, national debt!" Or when a father dies and the family exists on Social Security we should say "Thank you, God, for the national debt."

The following items you listed in criticism and disgust; I list the same with pride and thankfulness:

1. Higher parity to farmers (with minimum controls).

2. Low cost elderly medical aid and hospital protection (socialized medicine? certainly not — just Christian-"ism").

3. School aid for buildings and even for the most important part, our teachers. (Regulations? Maybe — but would you like $50,000 enough to fill out some forms and follow a few rules, or NOT $50,000 and be free to go it alone with no modern equipment?)

4. One promise you overlooked. It was made by Roosevelt and in the Democratic platform for 20 years. Nixon finally repeated it almost to a quote. "We must be a friend to the whole world."

In closing, we should all read Roosevelt's Four Freedoms again, then all bow our heads and ask forgiveness for being deaf so long to God's Prophets, Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt.

P. S

You may print this as a paid Democratic ad if you wish. I still have some Animal Rescue League money left and WE NEED to be rescued.

(Ed's note: "Ginny" is just kidding about embezzling that Animal Rescue League money, folks. And since local Democrats are not so well fixed as their presidential candidate, we're putting this letter "on the cuff.")

Youths reminded of need to sign for draft at 18

The thousands of young men who reach age 18 each year have a special and most important obligation, they are reminded by the Iowa State Selective Service headquarters. Federal law requires these young men to register with their nearest Selective Service local board on their 18th birthday, or within five days thereafter.

The obligation to register is a personal one and is mandatory for every male citizen, with the general exception of members of the armed forces on active duty, and certain aliens The Universal Military Training and Service Act, as amended, states the procedures for such registrations, and establishes the various classifications and categories in which individuals are liable for service.

Young men who reach the age of 18 and fail to report to their local board offices for registration, ignore the law, or postpone their appearance before the board, become delinquents. They are subject to prosecution or immediate induction into the Armed Forces. Violation of the provisions of the act is punishable by fine of $10,000 or five years in prison, or both.

A young man residing away from home at the time he is required to register may register at the local board office located nearest him, using his permanent home address in determining his place of residence The record of his registration will be sent to his own local board

Registration may be accomplished by personal appearance only. The original registration papers must be signed by the registrant It is not possible to register by mail or telephone.

No young man, upon reaching age 18, may be excused from registering by virtue of membership in the National Guard or any organized reserve unit.

Ry. engineer to piano teacher—

Belmond native switched careers

Belmond old-timers will find of some interest a story that appeared in an issue of the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune this summer regarding a Belmond native who combined railroading as a vocation with the distinctly unrelated hobby of music.

His hobby became the overriding interest in his life when he was 36 and he quit his job as a railroad engineer to devote his full time to teaching piano.

George Brewsaugh is the ex-Belmondite's name and he now lives at Superior, Wis., which has been his home for the past 50 of his 69 years The Sunday Tribune article by staff writer Trygve Ager does not say how long Brewsaugh lived here, but states he began railroading on the Soo Line when he was 13 or 14 years old, helping first in the shops.

Since he would have had to have left Belmond to join up with the Soo Line, he apparently did not live here for very long. He is nevertheless remembered by some of his contemporaries.

Wrote Reporter Ager: "As if to insulate himself from all modernism he (Brewsaugh) has two heavy doors at the entrance to his second floor bachelor apartment above a women's apparel store in the heart of Superior's business district.

"You move a couple of steps to your left and suddenly discover you've stepped right back into the 18th century — or as close to it as you'll ever come in northern Wisconsin.

"You're in Brewsaugh's studio — a large and high-ceilinged room, some 25 by 45 feet. Close by, and side-by-side, stand two concert grand pianos. The floor is covered with oriental rugs of varying sizes

"The furniture, including a half-dozen sofas and numerous tables and occasional chairs, is in all the styles of past generations. There is no radio, no television set."

Brewsaugh explained as the purpose of intentional "insulation" from present day affairs that "it's hard to find a spot where you can make all the noise you want and not get any in return"

He pointed to the two big pianos and to a record player and huge stacks of long-play records Their owner commented, "There are two 15-inch loudspeakers in this cabinet to insure true reproduction of bass tones, which you could never get in a room smaller than this. And there are 10 other loudspeakers."

The result is the Brewsaugh apartment is as much a concert hall as it is a studio. Here each Wednesday evening, with 10 to 20 friends or acquaintances gathered about it, the former engineer conducts an informal "music history course."

Each Saturday night he holds open house — "no lecturing, just listening to good music." Both the lectures and concerts are free to anyone wishing to attend, as Brewsaugh dips into his collection of 2,100 long-play records and 7,000 of the old-fashioned 78 rpm type.

His interest in music stemmed from piano lessons he'd taken during his Belmond boyhood. The lessons continued into early manhood, but were never supplemented by any formal musical training at a university or college.

Gowdys in crash escape injuries

R H. Gowdy, co-publisher of The Independent, his wife and son Mike escaped injury Saturday afternoon when involved in a two-car crash at a rural intersection a mile north of Chapin.

They were en route to Waterloo to visit in the home of Mr. Gowdy's sister, Mrs. C. L. Hecklinger, and to witness play in the Waterloo Women's Open Golf tournament on Sunday.

Traveling east, the Gowdy station wagon had almost gotten through the intersection when it was hit at the rear left fender by a car driven by Mrs. Ed Nelson of Hampton.

Both cars suffered damage but Mrs. Nelson, like the Gowdys, was fortunate in escaping injury.

A car voluntarily supplied by Sheldon Chevrolet company, when Mr Gowdy called for a tow-truck, enabled the Gowdys to continue their trip.

MR. AND MRS. KAY BURK

Meet the newcomers . . .

Among Belmond newcomers are the attractive young couple making their home in the Leslie Smith apartments at 116 Fourth ave. NE, Mr. and Mrs. Kay Burk. They came to this community last spring when Kay went to work for Ris-Van, Inc. A month later, Mrs. Burk (Gloria) joined the Ris-Van staff as a secretary.

Kay shares his work time at the Ris-Van shop and at the production plant where liquid fertilizer is made, also working in occasional trips to farmers or dealers delivering fertilizer or equipment.

The Burks are the umpteenth example among Belmond newcomers whom the Independent has interviewed that, when romance is involved, suggests that the grass is always greener in the next town that at home.

Gloria is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hansen, who farm near Kanawha, and she is a 1958 graduate of Kanawha High school. Kay's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Burk, who farm near Goodell, and he graduated from Klemme High school in 1957. They were married in June of last year.

Gloria says her major hobby is sewing — a very useful one for a young housewife — and that she also enjoys reading when she can find the time. Kay's favorite pastimes are hunting and fishing.

Most of their first year of married life they lived at Garner, where Gloria was employed by the Hancock County National bank. During that period, Kay worked at the Klemme Co-op Elevator. With no reflections on their former employers, both the Burks agree that Ris-Van is a very fine outfit to work for.

NOTICE

TO BELMOND RESIDENTS

Arrangements have been made by the city for removal of stumps at the Belmond City Park during the week of August 15th.

Anyone in the city who has stumps on his property that he wishes removed at the very reasonable rate of $5 per stump should call the City Clerk's Office not later than next Monday, August 15th and leave his name with the City Clerk.

Some people sure are lucky!

Lady Luck smiled anew on two seekers after Cash Gift Day gold Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Laura Waltzing, one of the winners of $25 at 2:00 o'clock, had similar good fortune quite some time back. The other holder of a prize-winning number was Rev. Park E. Miller. His winning number was in a Buyers Guide. The Millers' paper had on July 12 borne a number worth cash, which was claimed by Mrs. Miller. That makes $150 that has been claimed from the CGD fund in the past two weeks. The committee neverthless is again posting $400 worth of numbers next Tuesday — eight worth $25 apiece at 2:00 p.m. and four $50's at 3:00 o'clock.

Blessed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and blessed shalt thou be when thou goest out. — Deut. 28:6

Proving that having things too easy can be fatal

Listening to a radio report on the farm crop situation last weekend, when corn fields were becoming in serious jeopardy for lack of moisture, it struck us that a very close analogy could be drawn between the drouth stricken corn and far too many elements in our American population today.

A county extension director was explaining that, because of the ample moisture made available to the corn early in its growing season — due to the late spring rains — the plants had not extended their roots to the depth normally attained.

His story was that the corn roots were vainly searching for life-giving moisture at a level three feet below the surface, but had no roots penetrating to a five-foot depth where ground moisture WAS to be had.

"Ordinarily," he observed, "those roots would have been sunk to a depth of five feet. But the corn had it too easy early in the summer. Adequate moisture was to be had at three feet — and the plants sank roots only to that depth. Now, with moisture within their normal reach, they're dying because they quit growing roots too soon."

How many elements of our American civilization today might not find themselves in the same situation if the going got "tough"? Nature was good to the corn this spring (almost "too good," some farmers will say, who dispaired of getting their crops in because of the continuing rainfall). Sustenance was available to the growing plants without the usual effort; and the "easy living" bore with it a grim threat of destruction.

We couldn't help but contemplate how many of our people have shortened their roots of self reliance in blithe confidence that the Great Rainmaker in Washington will forever defend them from disaster stemming from their own inadequate efforts.

The laws of nature are merciless. The weak and shiftless die, and nature sheds no tears. Could it be that a very important message to us all is bound up in the tragedy of the corn that quit sinking its roots too soon?

County government will be changing with times

Last week's county budget hearing stressed the necessity of keeping an eye on changing times where county government is concerned. Caught in the act of not paying attention to the future was the Wright County Bar association, in its proposal to undertake rather extensive (and expensive) remodelling of the second floor of the courthouse.

As has been publicized, it was proposed by the attorneys that the south staircase in the courthouse be blocked off to produce space upstairs for a room where jurors might assemble for their deliberations. What the lawyers did not take into account (and they can hardly be blamed, for most of the county's citizens would have been no better informed) was the fact that a large portion of the second floor now occupied by the office of county superintendent of schools will very soon be available for other purposes.

Within the next two or three years, at the most, the position of county superintendent will have been relegated to that limbo of obsolete offices occupied by the lamplighter and the town crier. His purpose will have been completely outgrown.

When the incumbent superintendent, Claude Sankey, first was appointed in 1936 Wright county had 122 rural schools operating. This year he is "superintending" six rural teachers — two in Grant township, two in Wall Lake and two in the community of Galt. His responsibilities in recent years have been concerned mainly with supervision of school reorganizations.

It had been Mr. Sankey's intention to retire instead of accepting reappointment this year; but the county board of education urged him to remain in office during the transition period that will within a breif time see his position written off the books. That time will have arrived when all territory in the county has been reorganized.

Ten years ago, most counties in Iowa had 75 to 100 one-teacher schools. This fall will see 34 of the 99 counties without a single one-room school; another 34 will have five or less; and only 12 will have 20 or more.

What is contemplated by the state department of education in lieu of the obsolete county superintendent system is a set-up of intermediate units throughout the state. These will consolidate the efforts of counties to provide their students with such special services as speech and hearing therapy, special education for the mentally and physically handicapped, and guidance and counselling.

At this point it appears likely that a county like Wright may affiliate with three to five other counties in one of these units to work out problems of mutual concern. But the need for a county superintendent, to serve as a liason between the state department and the numerous, small independent schools, will no longer exist.

This will not be the last basic change in county administration, by any means. Rather, it presages others that are likely to come about before too many years have passed. Consolidation of some county offices for greater efficiency and economy may be expected. In this county, the wisdom of placing administration of soldiers relief under the general welfare office has become increasingly evident — this being a step made permissable by a recent general assembly and one already taken by several Iowa counties.

It might be regarded that the bar association members did their fellow Wright countians a favor by emphasizing the transitory character of county government that at present exists. The space soon to be vacated by the county superintendent points up an inevitable trend, rather than representing an isolated instance of change.

Farm Bureau leader talks sense

In the last days of the recessed Congress, the debate on the defeated farm bills and the tabulated roll-call vote indicate that the South and Midwest have learned few lessons from the agricultural legislative history. Unless there is great change, the nation may face an even costlier farm program in 1961 with new versions of subsidy and control.

Just a few voices are being heard raised against the old schemes and in favor of an idea that is still nebulous This idea revolves around a sort of do-it-yourselves-together scheme with some change in law to relax the "monopoly" and the "restraint of trade" theories as they apply to farmer associations as well as marketing cooperatives.

IT IS BEING ARGUED THAT IN the thirties, Organized Labor sought and secured national legislation which practically gave them rights to set up their own bargaining power and to make it stick while farmers made the mistake of asking Government to do the job for them.

The danger lies in the possibility that both parties will try to outpromise each other to win the farm vote.

We confess to no great hope from any of the political schemes that operate directly on the farmer to influence his production and his price

The best course would be to provide the farmer the kind of world in which he and his family could be assured of a reasonable chance to succeed by his own decisions. Beyond this Government might let him keep more of what he earns and get off his back the rules, regulations, controls and orders now hampering him.

POLITICIANS, EDITORS, AND the nostalgic public, could help by realizing that farming is a business and not just a way of life [illegible] to some bucolic souls [illegible] to be satisfied with less of this world's goods and gadgets in exchange for the fresh air, the birds, the bees, and the picturesque scenery.

The family farm of yesterday is extinct. It ranks with the family shoe shop of New England's earlier days.

The bulk of all our farms are still owned by families, managed by families, and support families, or are sold for building lots. But they are business enterprises and the competition is tough. Nobody is about to legislate prosperity for the farm that can't or won't meet change. (Carleton I. Pickett, Executive Secretary Massachusetts Farm Bureau Federation, Inc., in letter to members) — Christian Science Monitor

Farmers unagreed on best program

Here we are, right in the center of the farm belt, and we have a few acres of farm land ourselves, and we are at a loss to know what plan of farm aid is best. And we don't believe that there is unity among the farmers as to what plan would be best.

During the formation of the farm plank in the Democrat national convention several of the delegates, farmers themselves, said that they were opposed to any sort of farm aid but they thought some sort of farm aid plank should be inserted into the platform because some farmers wanted it.

DURING THE PAST SEVERAL weeks we have asked many farmers what they wanted in the form of aid from the government. It came as a surprise to us to have so many different opinions stated.

Some were emphatic in demanding parity prices that would guarantee them a profit. Some wanted only small controls. Some wanted no government handouts or any sort of government controls. There was not the least bit of unity in their opinions, and neither do we have an opinion.

WE KNOW JUST ONE THING, that anyone who lives in an agricultural community should be and is, vitally concerned with farm prices.

Benson has been cussed and discussed. Some farmers believe he is on the right path. Some say he is crazy and is ruining the farmers. We can't make head nor tail of the many opinions when it comes to the point of settling on any one plan.

We would sure hate to be in the position of trying to arrive at a plan. Would you like to be Secretary of Agriculture? Maybe the position will go begging because of the difficulties it presents — Humboldt Independent

Political quips

You can take your choice of whether it was a Democrat or a Republican who started this one. But it is a good one and we pass it on. "F.D.R. proved that a man can live a lifetime in the White House. Harry Truman proved that anyone can live in the White House and Ike proved that no one needs to live in the White House."

The next two political quips won't take any guessing as to which side they came from.

"It is reported that Kennedy will have to put the White House in his wife's name to avoid the tax. He already is paying more than his share of the taxes."

Also: Taxpayers should get ready for a major overhauling and enlarging of the White House if Kennedy is elected. It isn't big enough for all the Kennedys. — Eagle Grove Eagle

SCANNING THE HORIZON

WITH YE ED

WE'VE GOT NO MONOPOLY—

We're sure that sometimes people calling our attention to errors that have appeared in The Independent think that our reaction is not nearly so apologetic as it should be. They wonder if we even "feel sorry" about it.

Well, let us tell you — we feel plenty sorry. It's simply a case of laughing or crying; and it would look a little silly for a grown man to go around with a tear-stained face all the time.

You don't expect a doctor to go around in mourning every time a patient dies. He knows he can't save them all; and the booby hatch awaits the physician who can't be philosophical about losing a patient now and again.

The same applies to an editor and the errors in his newspaper. He bleeds every time a real bloopgets into print. But unless he can staunch the flow with a philosophical resolve that it shan't happen again (he knows darned well it WILL), he's destined to be an anemic, gibbering wreck in next to no time.

If a merchant discovers that an item he's purchased is a "dog" . . . or inadvertantly short-changes a customer, who departs before his identity is known . . . or "gets took" by a rubber check artist — he can keep the booboo to himself.

An editor's error shouts itself to the world, on the other hand; and he has a hundred thousand or so opportunities every week to let a mistake of one kind or another — ranging from an error in fact to a typographical transposition — get into print.

Consequently, when on is embalmed in ink, we let it be known that we're sorry. But we can't don sack cloth and ashes each time, or we'd have the reputation of being one heck of a dowdy dresser.

"The Brotherhood of the Blooper" is an organization to which all editors belong. Every now and then, one pushed a bit too close to the brink by a real wowser is inspired to poesy.

What drove some anonymous scribe to the following doggerel, we don't know. But it's a well-expressed commentary on editors and the errors of their ways . . .

As you say, "She may be empty, but I'll tell the world she's clean!"
But when the sheet is printed and out upon the mail,
On its way to the subscribers I have never seen it fail—
In the center of the front page, in a most conspicuous place,
Some typographical error fairly kicks you in the face.
For the typographical error is a slippery thing and sly,
You can hunt 'till you are dizzy,
but it somehow will get by.
Till the forms are off the press
it is strange how still it keeps,
It shirks down into a corner and it never stirs or peeps.
That typographical error too small for human eyes,
Till the ink is on the paper, when it grows to mountain size.
And you see that blasted error,
far as you could throw a dog,
Looming up in all its splendor,
like a lighthouse in a fog!
That glaring blunder juts out like an ulcerated tooth,
Where it dodged the eagle vision of a napping comma sleuth.

SEE WHAT WE MEAN?—

A good demonstration of the sort of booboo the man's talking about is one that slipped through on us last week. We were sincerely sorry about it. We meant no harm. . . . That is, we DID mean HARM — but not the Harm we mistakenly chose.

This is getting pretty confusing. You see, trying to finish up some writing between 10:00 and 11:00 o'clock Monday night so we'd be able to attend the county budget hearing Tuesday morning, we must have gotten a bit groggy toward the tag end.

As a result, when we wrote the engagement announcement of the Meservey miss betrothed to Ronnie Vanness, we stupidly put down that Lois was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harm Pals. She IS the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harm DIRKS — as we full well knew.

We must say that both of the young people were most gracious in their acceptance of our apologies.

OH, HAPPY DAY!—

Recently Ye Ed's middle son showed up downtown, a glittering smile on his face. Striding up to his dad, he announced, "This is really my luck day!"

To explain the statement, he held open his pants pocket so we could peep in. There was Percy, a pet garter snake that had escaped from his young owner about a month earlier. A broken-off tail served to make the correct identity more or less certain.

It was, to the satisfaction of his master, the young fellow's long-suffering mother and Yours Truly, undubitably Percy. . . . That'll give you an idea of what adds up to a really "lucky day" at the Gallagher abode!

We're made happy pretty doggone easy.

ATTACKED BY ROBBER—

George Hall brought a vicious looking insect in to Ye Ed last weekend to be submitted to the Gallagher Bug Identification Service. Without much trouble the critter was located in "A Guide to Familiar American Insects." It had lit on the back of George's neck while he was driving his car, from which landing place George had removed it with dispatch.

It proved to be a "robber fly," which is reputed to grow to a length of 8-10ths of an inch. This on must have been a grandpa, for it beat that by several 10ths. The robber fly attacks other insects for its food and has a stinger that looks like a carpet tack. What interest it had in the back of his neck, George knoweth not.

Know your businessmen—

Mennenga has been "Sinclair man" 27 years

Al Mennenga holds a place among the small handful of Belmond businessmen who can point to more than 25 years "at the same stand" on Main street. In fact, there probably isn't even a handful that can claim a quarter century at the same location.

An equal or even greater distinction held by the local Sinclair dealer is that he operates a fine, modern service station that is NOT located on a "gasoline alley." That is, it's not on a busy highway or similar channel of heavy traffic. It is right on Main street, where Al has been in business since 1933.

Born and bred a farm boy, Al decided early in "the great depression" of the 'thirties that he'd had enough of farm work. He got a job at one of Belmond's earliest filling stations, the Standard Service operating on River avenue.

For three years he served as relief man at the Standard gasoline emporium, when an opportunity to lease the Sinclair adjoining (then) Case Hotel presented itself. This had been built a few years earlier by B. O. Kinseth and had then been owned for several years by Adolph Wenzel.

While Adolph conducted the bulk oil business, his brother Jack had been in charge of the station. Adolph had sold the station to Sinclair before Al Mennenga became lessee in '33.

It was not a mere coincidence that the station had been built adjacent to a hotel. This fact, plus that of proximity to two thriving eating places — Belmond Cafe and the Town House restaurant — has to quite a degree accounted for the station's success in surviving despite its obsolete location.

Al says he does quite a surprising amount of transient trade, considering the distance of his business from the highway. For that, he thanks the two eateries and the hotel.

Another factor that has kept the station operating and enabled it to provide a comfortable living for Al and his family is the loyalty of quite a sizeable group of customers who have remained faithful over the long span of years Al has been dispensing gas and oil.

About two years ago, Al bought the station from Sinclair and became wholly his "own boss." He enjoys this status — although he adds that Sinclair Refining company was "always a good outfit to work for" and that his relations with the firm were always pleasant.

With ownership of the station came the necessity of making a very big decision. The combination of having what might be regarded as not an A-1 location, AND out-of-date facilities (the same built in the 'twenties by B. O. Kinseth) made a successful operation increasingly difficult to achieve.

Al decided the only answer was to "go modern," with an up-to-date station with a couple of generous-sized service bays and a service drive of ample proportions. Although the new station went into use less than a year ago, Al is already convinced that it has "panned out."

While he concedes that there have been times of discouragement during the nearly three decades that he's been proprietor of the Sinclair station, he'll tell you that he's been satisfied with his choice of occupations.

Al takes pride in the quality of service that his station provides its customers, and the confidence they have developed in him is one of the major satisfactions of his business.

"When servicing a car, I always keep a sharp lookout for mechanical defects that may have escaped the owner's attention. If I spot something that I can't repair at the station, I at least advise the owner to get his car to a garage so it CAN be put in safe driving condition," Al says.

A new adjunct to the service station business in recent years has been the credit card. Al says that not only does he do credit card business with transients, but that quite a few of his regular customers take advantage of their use.

They are a convenience to the customer by providing a detailed record of purchases and allowing extra time for settlement on major items bought. They are a decided convenience to the station operator, too; for all credit card business is like "cash in the bank, at the end of each month," when applied to purchase of petroleum products and supplies from the parent company, Al observes.

Cards take peewee title; two midget teams in tie

Captain Jim Dickson provided the heroics as his Cardinals clinched the PTA peewee baseball title last week in a key game with Wayne Smith's Pirates. His team was trailing, 7 to 9, going into the last half of the the final inning when Jim smashed out a home run with two team mates on base and one man out to plate the deciding runs for a 10-9 victory.

The loss left the Pirates tied with Keith Boller's Cubs for second place in the final peewee standings.

Close as the peewee finish was, it couldn't match the wind-up of the midget league title race. This ended in a deadlock between Neal Waddington's Tigers and Craig Boller's Indians.

Here, again, the captain of the victors played a major role in the vital game. In the third frame, Waddington cleared the bases with a lusty triple and later tallied himself to give his Tigers an 11-7 lead. The Indians made a good try at overcoming the deficit, but could not get the job done, losing 11 to 10.

Waddington fanned eight batters, but his wildness from the mound put two men on base by being hit and 11 more via walks. He allowed four hits.

Terry Armour, pitching for the Indians, also struck out eight, allowed six hits and walked seven. A pair of errors by team mates helped to get Armour in hot water in the Tigers' big first inning, which was worth five runs to the winners.

Of the four finalists, all three of the Clarionites — McConaughey, Holthaus and Mueller — have been contenders in the past but this marks the first time Mrs. Olsen, a Belmond club-swinger, has advanced so far.

Only two other women's flights had by last weekend reached the final round of play. In both the 3rd and 4th flights, Belmond opponents are matched for title action. Jo Mariga will meet Maxine Dorr in the 3rd, while Mary Dorr and Mildred Anderson will have at it in the 4th flight finals.

Sharon Kay Morris became bride of Vernon Schmale on July 24th

Sharon Kay Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Morris of Meservey, and Vernon Schmale, son of Henry Schmale and Mrs. Norman Floy of Thornton, were married in a double-ring ceremony performed Sunday, July 24, at the Meservey EUB church. Rev. V. E. Shickell officiated.

The chancel was decorated with baskets of gladioli and white candelabra. Organist was Mrs. Richard Halfpop of Thornton. She accompanied Carroll Morris, brother of the bride, who sang "Just a Closer Walk With Thee" and Mrs. Carroll Morris, who sang "Prayer Perfect."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of white rosepoint lace over satin with a scoop neckline outlined with scallops. Long sleeves tapered to a wrist-length point. Her fingertip veil of nylon tulle fell from a pearl tiara and had been worn by her cousin, Bonnie Braga of Wahkon, Minnesota, at her wedding, in June. The bride carried a white Bible with an orchid. Her only jewelry was a string of cultured pearls, a gift from the groom.

Mrs. Harlan Buseman, only sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Bonnie Lou Suntken, Lois Dirks and Janet Messelheiser, all former classmates of the bride. They wore identical dresses of navy chiffon over taffeta and carried a white gladioli on a white Testament, gifts from the bride.

LuAnn Kay Morris, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a white and navy sailor dress and carried a basket of rose petals. Michael Buseman, nephew of the bride, carried the rings on a Navy and white satin pillow. He wore a navy and white sailor suit.

The groom, attired in his white Navy uniform, was attended by his brother, Robert Schmale of Thornton. The groomsmen were Glenn Greer, Jerry Meints and Rickie Morris, all of Meservey. They wore dark suits with white boutonnieres.

Candlelighters were Nancy Pals of Meservey and Pamela Willand of Joice, both cousins of the bride. They wore white nylon taffeta dresses.

The bride's mother was attired in a pink lace with white accessories and the groom's mother wore a white with gray print silk with white accessories. Each wore a corsage of roses.

Ushers were Larry Braga of Mason City and Gary Braga of Des Moines, cousins of the bride, and Harlan Buseman of Thornton, brother-in-law of the bride.

A reception following the ceremony was held in the church parlors for some 300 guests. The bride's colors of navy and white were used throughout the decorations. Mrs. H. C. Fischer and Mrs. Earl Lage served as dining room hostesses.

Guest book was in the charge of Janice Pals and Marcia Moore served the punch. Mrs. Marvin Morris, aunt of the bride, baked and cut the three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. She was assisted by Mrs. Clarence Willand of Joice, also an aunt of the bride. Pouring were Mrs. Leslie Pals of Meservey, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Irvin Moritz of Thornton, aunt of the groom.

Flowers were in the charge of Mmes. Marvin Morris, Gordon Greer, A. Fred Sprau and Richard Nissen.

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

We have on good authority that a big league scout covered the peewee all-star game Monday night on the lookout for promising material for his club's farm system. When he left, he said, "I'll be back in 10 years to have another look at several of those kids; but I got me one man right now."

"That guy behind the plate (he referred to Recreation Director Donny Jumpel, who was plate umpire) is of big league calibre right now," declared the scout.

"Either that skinny fellow with the butch cut should be umping in the big time, or he should get himself a tin cup. It's been a long time since I've seen anyone with such a natural talent for calling 'em wrong." Told of this praise, Jumpy declared modestly, "Some have it and some don't — that's all."

Thought we had a real news scoop the other evening. Saw a young couple riding down Main street, he behind the wheel (where else?) and SHE clear over leaning against the right-hand door. First time this summer we'd seen two teen-agers of opposite sex occupying more than half of a front seat. We followed them several blocks trying to figure the thing out when an oncoming car lit their faces and let the air out of our story. . . . A brother and sister, yet!

Chief of Police Tom Rayson says that, because of the lateness of the season, the city council is delaying until next year the purchase of summer uniforms for members of the local police force. The city fathers did, however, approve the action at the latest council meeting as Chief Rayson and Officers Millard Marvin and Vern Scoopel sat in the front row of seats at the council chamber and panted in unison. With the arrival of warm weather next June, Bermuda shorts, calf-length hose and appropriately inscribed T-shirts will be official uniform of the day.

Here's a story dating clear back to the All-Vets celebration, but good enough to bear repeating even though a little old. A friend of ours overheard this conversation between the fellow who ran the strength-testing concession (where you try to ring the bell with the sledge hammer) and the one who operated the photograph concession.

Henry Wilson wandered by and the fellow with the sledge hammer gazed sadly after him.

"See that heavy-set fellow with mustache?" he asked. The photographer nodded. "First time it's ever happened to me," his companion continued. "Darned if that guy didn't bust my bell!" The man with the photo studio watched Henry amble down the midway then spoke as forlornly as his friend: "You should kick. He broke MY camera!"

We hear Larry "Butch" Kramer ALMOST lost his track scholarship down at Iowa U. Seems the coach [illegible] told Larry to "run down and see me the first week in August and I'll show you around the campus and introduce you to some people you should know."

Larry went down last week. Coach Francis Cretzmeyer looked him over and asked, "You feel all right? Looks like you've lost about 15 pounds; and you don't seem to have any pep." Larry sort of had a feeling that scholarship was slipping.

"Gosh, coach," he complained, "you told me to run down and see you — and 190 miles in this hot weather isn't any body-building exercise!" Coach Cretzmeyer held his head a minute, then shrugged his shoulders and said, "OK, next time you should drive, maybe."

Fire Chief "Prof" Johansen asks a bit of cooperation from the public, which he promises to return in kind. Anxious to please the many fire buffs who race to every blaze, "Prof" agrees to hold up the fire trucks for 20 minutes after the fire siren sounds in order that those wishing to attend the fire can find parking spots without being inconvenienced by fire-fighting apparatus. In return, he asks persons having fires to please let the department know a day or so ahead in order that arrangements can be made to handle the affair with proper ceremony.

New dept. store for Belmond—

Nickel will open super emporium

Announcement was made this week by L. Satevepost, secretary of the Belmond Chamber of Commerce, that this community will soon see location here of one of the nation's largest chains of department stores. J. C. Nickel Company has leased Main street property just south of George's Auto Electric and will erect there a modern, two story edifice to house the new business.

A picture of the proposed building accompanies this story. It will be given an airy appearance by large windows above and below and have the latest in exteriors — tin sheathing attractively painted in contrasting colors. It promises to be a distinct addition to Main street.

Innovations promised

Oscar H. Tubits, field representative for the Nickel company, says that the new emporium will introduce a number of innovations that have heretofore been available to shoppers only in larger metropolises.

In the spacious shoe department, footwear will be equipped with a new style of fastener that has delighted users from coast to coast. It is comprised of a round button of secret composition that is cleverly drawn through a corresponding grommet on the opposite side of the shoe. A hook-like contrivance is provided the purchaser to facilitate drawing the button through the hole.

"Deliberate" coffee

The grocery department will offer a number of new departures in the food field. One is "deliberate" coffee, a distinct improvement upon the old-fashioned "instant" coffee, in the opinion of Mr Tubits. He says that "deliberate" coffee is manufactured right before the shopper's eyes as brown beans are ground in a hand-propelled mill that creates a delectable aroma from the choice valley-grown coffees browned in Nickel's own roasters.

For men of fastidious habit, Nickel's will offer plastic shirt collars that can be dismounted at the lunch hour and returned to complete cleanliness with the swipe of a wet cloth.

Gentlemen will also find available a clothing item for the oncoming fall intended to keep the instep of the foot warm. Referred to as "spats," they come in pairs and are affixed over the shoe by the same button devices as accommodate the Nickel line of shoes. Mr. Tubits says that in the cities men of good taste would no more be seen in public sans spats than with shirt cuffs dangling in slovenly fashion against the back of the hand.

To obviate such an appearance of dowdiness as over-extended cuffs, Nickel's features gay sleeve supporters of elasticized material which, secured around the biceps, keep cuffs at all times at stylish wrist level.

Asked if the J. C. Nickel chain is associated in any way with the once well-known J. C. Penney store network, Mr. Tubits advised that Nickel absorbed Penney some years ago He added with understandable pride, "Today we're five times the size Penney ever was."

Throng attends council meeting—

Demand pushes paving project to 150 blocks

Overwhelming sentiment on the part of Belmond's property-owners favoring the city council's announced intention of paving some two and a half dozen blocks of city streets next year has prompted expansion of the project. It now appears that no less than 150 blocks will have to be included in the program in response to popular demand.

"I've never seen anything to match it," said Mayor "Sonny" Droffart after last Monday night's council meeting, for which the council chambers were filled to overflowing and a P. A. system had to be set up so people thronging on the city hall lawn could hear the proceedings.

"We're pretty used to having a lot of interest in our council meetings," Mayor Droffart admitted, "but the response to this paving thing almost bordered on the unusual It's been a long while, to be completely honest about it, since more than 500 people have turned out for a council meeting."

What evoked the upsurge of interest in Monday night's meeting was the advance announcement that anyone wishing paving in front of their property would have to make that wish known, either in person or by a representative, to be included in the 1961 program.

Among typical comments heard from home-owners clamoring for inclusion in the street-surfacing program were the following:

Loras Cain, "My wife says, whatever the price, it'll be worth it to see what the top of the buffet looks like again. She hasn't dusted downstairs between the first of June and the first of September for three years now. She says dusting with that dirt raceway in front of the house is about as sensible as trying to carry water in a sieve."

Abraham Sprat, "When a friend in a sports car visited me the other day he had to get out on the street side There's such a hole in the street where I park that he couldn't get the door open on account of the curb."

Fritz Spevak, "Sure it'll cost a bit of money. But I've had enough stuff shook off my car bouncing from pot hole to pot hole to pave in front of my place and put in a drive to boot."

Gertrude Gretchel, "We got this hole in front of the house, see; and the kids use it as a wading pool. Land sakes, another year or two and we'll need a life guard or have to make the kids not play there."

Arbor Elmsford, "My kinfolk — and goodness knows me and the missus got a lot of 'em, who always seem to stop by at meal time — are forever saying, 'You sure got a nice little town here; but you'd think they'd do something about the streets.' . . . So I'm all for 'em DOING something!"

Mayor Droffart says, "We'd been a little doubtful of starting this paving thing, for fear there'd be a lot of kicking. The kicking's there all right, but it's coming from folks who are afraid we WON'T pave in front of THEIR home.

"It's almost spooky the way this thing's worked out. But you can say it for me," he adds, "that come cold weather in '61, we're going to be all through apologizing for Belmond's streets!"

Tattoo "artist" buys Riggs' shop

Cap'n Moby Richard announces in today's classified section the opening of a tattoo parlor on Sept. 1 in the quarters being left vacant by the retirement of Barber Ed Riggs.

Belmond's newest businessman comes here from Galena, Ill., where he has plied his profession for the past 55 years. He says, "I don't believe a feller should stay in one spot too long."

According to Richard, the Mississippi river trade dropped off quite abruptly about 1928 and he says, "I was beginning to get pretty tired of waiting for it to come back."

He bought Mr. Riggs' barber equipment and tells that he just might try his hand at hair-cutting if the tattoo business is a little slow in working up, observing, "Ain't never done any, but it never looked to me like there's much of a trick to it."

Too powerful for loop foes—

NIC boots Broncos; to join Big 6

Two moves that developed simultaneously during the summer will have the end result of making the Belmond Broncos members of the Big Six conference with the start of the 1961-62 school year, Athletic Director Jack Bergstein announced this week.

"We're being bounced by the North Iowa conference," he told The Independent. "Guess our NIC opponents got resentful when we won everything but the badminton and marble championships last year.

"During the summer, it seems that the other schools held a secret meeting for the purpose of ousting the Broncos from the conference. A BHS sympathizer tells me the vote in favor of going it without Belmond was six to one, with only Osage willing to stay in the same league with the Broncos."

Bergstein said that Belmond will make no issue of the ouster because an offer has been received from the Big Six conference to make a place in that league for the Broncs. Elmer Satellite of Mason City, Big Six commissioner, wrote to Bergstein, "In our plan to expand the conference, it was agreed that one more strong north Iowa school was needed to balance the loop. A couple of the schools leaned a bit toward Webster City; but all except East High of Des Moines was happy to accept Belmond in preference."

The East High athletic director, it is reported by an authoritative source, commented, "It's going to be downright humiliating to get whittled down by those Broncos. But so long as Bergstein and Hotback are coaching there at Belmond, they ain't going to be no patsies."

Entering into the actions of the two leagues was, of course, the school reorganization annexing Clarion and surrounding territory to Belmond Community School district.

This consolidation will about double the enrollment of Belmond High school when it takes effect next fall. Athletic Director Bergstein says, "We feel quite sure we'll be able to pick up a Clarion boy or two in each varsity sport who'll be of some use to us. And of course the Clarion candidates will give us depth, if nothing else."

Double parking charge appealed by Herk Chums

There seemed good prospect this week that a case originating several months ago in the justice court of Cyril Loosmaller may be carried clear to the supreme court.

Herkimer Chums, the defendant, told The Independent, "I'll take this thing clear to the United Nations if I have to."

He was found guilty by Justice of the Peace Loosmaller of double parking on Main street. An appeal of his conviction and accompanying fine of $5, plus costs, has already been lost in district court.

Chums says, "I had to drop my wife off at the grocery store, see. Already two of my kids got broken arms getting out of the car on the run so I don't double park.

"But this is my missus. She does the cooking and the cleaning. I can't boil water. I'm not going to have her busting an arm, so I come to a dead stop long enough to let her out. Whammo! This cop's got me!"

Asked his opinion of the case, Mayor "Sonny" Droffart said, "The main drag oughta be a one-way street. If it was a one-way street these things wouldn't happen."

"Maybe if Mr. Chums wins his case in supreme court, people will view this thing different. Actually," said the mayor, summarizing his viewpoint "we're plenty big enough to have a one-way street. And Main oughta be it."

Gettem to have excursion boat on Susan's Bay

Gee Gettum has resigned his job as station agent with the Minneapolis and Small Northern railway to devote full time to his excursion boat business. He has leased Susan's Bay and is conducting boat tours of its expanse at dusk each day, when the surrounding lights are at their prettiest.

His excursions up the Iowa river to Miller have become increasingly popular — so much so that he has in mind further expansion of his river tour business next summer.

On the drawing board are plans for a boat canal that will link the Iowa river with the Winnebago, running just south of Miller. Since the Winnebago joins with the Shellrock and that with the Cedar, which in turn joins with the southern reaches of the Iowa at Fredonia in Louisa county, Gee sees the possibility of Grand Circle Tours that will cover hundreds of miles.

Plans of Craftsman Motors to dredge the Iowa river south of here to make it navigable make the prospect for Gettum Excursions all the brighter.

His most immediate concern, though, Gee confesses, is for a pilot well acquainted with the rather tricky waters of Susan's Bay to relieve him one day a week on the excursion trip there.

Drucilla Rizen and Ludwig Chums married by JP in simple ceremony

Drucilla Rizen became the bride of Ludwig Chums in a simple wedding performed at 2:00 a m. Saturday at the home of Justice of the Peace Cyril Loosmaller. She is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jupiter Rizen and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herkimer Chums.

The bride was attired in a gingham frock The groom was nattily garbed in an Oshkosh tuxedo.

They had no attendants. As the bride explained to JP Loosmaller, "we're both young and healthy and don't need nobody to stand up for us."

A bouquet of Tomco tassels caught by a bow of baling twine was carried by the bride. A boutonniere of buttonweed adorned the shoulderstrap of the groom. He said the buttonweed had been there since he chawled through a fence earlier in the day, was why it was kind of droopy.

It was a single-ring ceremony, but Ludwig admitted confidentially to the press, "I don't know yet just what I said that got me into this. It was kinda unexpected, so Drucy won't get her ring till I can get a catalog postcard off."

The mothers of both the bride and groom were attired in nighties, because they didn't know about the wedding and both were home in bed

After the vows had been spoken, the wedding party enjoyed hamburgers and coffee in the northeast booth at Texaco cafe.

The newlyweds took a short trip to the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. Chums remained while her husband repaired to his parental home.

Mrs. Chums says, "Lud'll probably move in here, 'cause the Chums got so many kids there aint no extra bedrooms. But with no ring an' all, we didn't want to start no talk till a piece comes out in the paper."

If arrangements are satisfactorily made, the newlyweds will be "at home" at the Jupiter Rizen farm now that this issue of The Independent has gone into the mail.

Editor pays fine for not having car under control

Editor J. R. Gallagher paid $10 and costs in the court of Justice of Peace Cyril Loosmaller last Saturday afternoon after pleading guilty to not having his car under control.

The charges were filed by Officer Millard Marvin after Gallagher had driven five feet through the west wall of George's Auto Electric shop the day before in the process of parking.

When pressed by Officer Marvin for an explanation of how the accident occurred, Gallagher's enigmatic reply was, "I never saw a shorter pair of shorts!"

While he refused to elaborate, it was doubted that he referred to two short circuits in an electric motor that Proprietor George Cussoff was working on at the time of the accident. Cussoff wasn't within the editor's range of vision until Gallagher had crashed through the shop wall.

R. W. Courson, the newspaperman's insurance agent, says, "Gallagher is getting one break, anyway. While he didn't carry collision insurance, under the circumstances it looks like we might make a claim stick under his vandalism rider."

Because you can believe only half of what you see, and less than that of what you hear, the stories on this page are to be taken somewhat less than seriously. We hope you'll enjoy this "Ridiculous" front page. It's all in fun — so don't be trying to read some deep-dyed significance into any of the nonsense. Gowdy takes it on the lam just before big issue

A search was launched this week for R. H. Gowdy, co-publisher and advertising manager of The Independent, who disappeared Thursday of last week and has not since been seen.

He and his wife and son had been involved in a minor auto crash the previous weekend, and it is conjectured that they may have suffered mass amnesia from the head-knocking that occurred at that time.

Gowdy's backshop partner, Duane Anderson, who has had to perform the duties of advertising manager in his senior partner's absence, stated today, "If a knock on the head doesn't explain his absence, he's liable to get a right good knock in the head when he gets back.

"This is the largest issue we've put out in three months, I've been working like a dog, and I candidly suspect that that louse Gowdy simply took French leave."

Some of Gowdy's friends have come to his defense and insist that he wouldn't disappear just to avoid a job of work, though they concede that it's the first time they ever heard of an entire family suffering simultaneous amnesia.

On the other hand, at least an equal number of the missing newspaperman's friends say succinctly, "He skipped!"

When Gowdy's second partner, Editor J. R. Gallagher, was asked his opinion as to whether there was a madical explanation for the ad man's disappearance, he replied, "Ridiculous!"

Lovemor-Nimble debate off; Gov. gets 'cold feet'

There will be no debate between Gov. Hurshell Lovemor and State Senator Jack B. Nimble in the Belmond city park on Labor Day, despite the urging of local Democrats that Lovemor take up the challenge issued him last week.

It was the hope of the Belmond Community Hospital Auxiliary that the two candidates for the U. S. Senate could be brought together for a toe-to-toe debate as a highlight of Hospital Appreciation Day.

Governor Lovemor, who had previously maintained he had no intention of "drawing crowds for Nimble's benefit" admitted in a letter to The Independent that this was not the actual explanation of his reluctance.

Wrote the Democratic bell-wether in a burst of frankness, "In 1958 I tried making several speeches without my ghost writer beside me and ended up with my big toe scratching my tonsils.

"If that Sioux City smoothie thinks he's going to euchre me into getting on a platform when I don't know ahead of time what I'm going to say, he's got another guess coming!"

Prominent Belmond Democrats expressed disappointment when shown in black and white the timidity of their candidate.

Said Mrs. R. E. Misner, "Well! For pity sakes!"

Grumbled Supervisor Ed Kennedy, "I though the guy had more guts."

Mrs. R. W. Courson changed the subject with, "We have an awfully good man to vote for in Coad."

THIS IS GETTING ridiculous! The same picture on the front page for four issues in a row! We don't blame Lloyd Lewis for hiding his face. Yes, that's Lloyd, co-proprietor of Belmond Hardware, with the Antoine coiffure. Mrs. Ted (Henrietta) Kaduce was first to see through the Ridiculous Day disguise and identify ol' Mophead. She can pick up at The Independent a $10 letter of credit good at any local business place for purchases in that amount.

Craftsman Motors will lease rendering plant from city as nucleus for auto factory here

An automobile plant for the production of Craftsman cars is to be established at Belmond before the snow flies, Z. K. Schmoe, Craftsman field investigator, informed the Chamber of Commerce this week.

Negotiations will be launched with the city council at its next meeting for a long-time lease on the old rendering plant southeast of town, which Craftsman plans to remodel and expand into its initial factory.

This site was chosen over a number of others studied because of the river transportation it offers. Said Mr. Schmoe, "While Belmond's industrial development brochures place much emphasis on the community's transportation facilities, we almost decided upon another location before discovering Belmond's actual, No. 1 transportation asset — the Iowa river."

He explained that with a tiny grant from the government of $237 million to dredge the river channel to satisfactory depth from Belmond to the Iowa's junction with the Mississippi about five miles from Toolesboro, Craftsman can be equipped with low-cost transportation that will make it competitive with the auto industry's giants. He seemed to think that no trouble should be experience in getting the necessary subsidy, "if we just work fast and get the matter through before the November election."

Two models inspired by entries in the 1960 Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild model car contest will be put into initial construction. Mr. Schmoe offered the opinion that the same features attracted Craftsman Motors as impressed the Fisher judges — one of the models emphasizes a fishtail and the other plays up rear fender fins.

Following the modern precedent of naming cars after creatures of the air, Craftsman will call higher priced car the Bat and the lower priced model the Snipe.

Since the higher priced Bat is equipped with opaque canopies on the driver area and that occupied by his companion and the vehicle must be driven by radar control (see illustration), Craftsman executives reached a prompt agreement that a better name couldn't be found.

It was also born in mind that the name "bat" is already closely associated with speed in the public's mind. Commented Mr. Schmoe, "Who, at some time or other, hasn't been passed by another car and almost involuntarily observed, 'that son-of-a-gun was sure going like a Bat . . . '?"

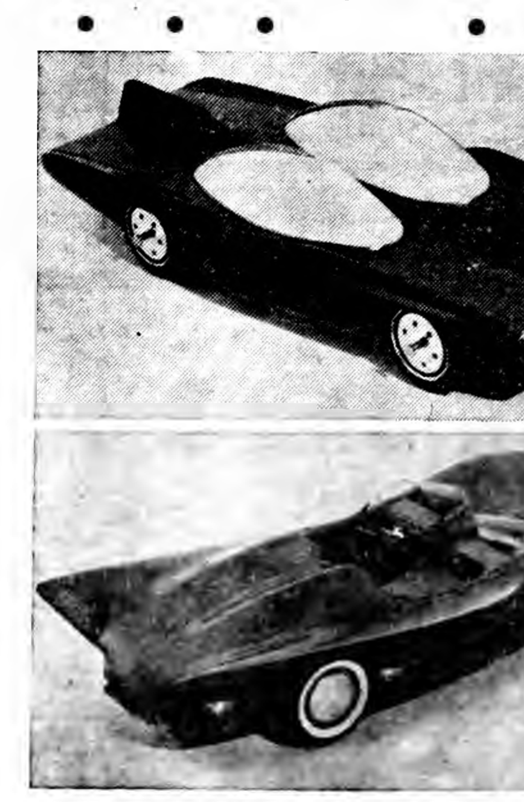
Target of the lower priced Snipe as sales market are the multitude of individuals who have either (1) taken someone on a snipe hunt, or; (2) been taken on a snipe hunt.

The jolly good humor that these occasions evoke will, by association, put millions of Americans in a buying mood, Craftsman believes.

An amply financed concern, Craftsman Motors is determined to produce three thousand Bats before the end of the year — if "tooling up" can be accomplished on schedule — and not less than nine thousand Snipes. If public acceptance comes up to expectations, Craftsman will double its production schedule for 1961.

"By 1962," said Schmoe, confidently, "we expect General Motors and Chrysler to be looking to their laurels."

• • • • • •



CRAFTSMAN MOTORS' two sensational new models that will go into production at their Belmond plant in a matter of weeks are pictured above. At top is the Bat, and below, the Snipe. Craftsman's slogans for the two cars are "A Bat in Every Garage" and "A Snipe by Every Front Curb." Craftsman expects to draw its labor supply for the new factory from as far away as Mason City and Fort Dodge, and possibly from Albert Lea and even farther.

Corporation to raze eyesore; erect parking ramp

This eyesore that has blighted Belmond's main thoroughfare for many a year is soon to be razed to make way for a 1,000-car parking ramp to be constructed by Brighter Tomorrows, Inc. This Minneapolis corporation, which has made millions by brilliant guesses as to where tomorrow's metropolises will arise, has bought the property upon which this crumbling structure stands and already has plans for the ramp off the drawing board. "We feel," says B. Elzy Bubb, production vice president for BTI, "that our faith in Belmond will prove fully justified. True, it takes a city of 25,00 to make a ramp of this size pay off. But with Belmond we feel confident it will be '2,499 today; 24,999 tomorrow'. And while we're waiting for Belmond to gain that additional 22,500, you can bet your bottom dollar that that li'l ol' ramp will sure whip the parking problem."

Three candidates for Red Cross Senior Life Saving and 24 for Junior Life Saving certificates successfully qualified for those awards during the water safety course conducted this summer at Luick Memorial Pool by Jean Brogan, life guard.

Meeting the Senior Life Saving requirements were Sam Johnson, Bill Heinzig and Judy Gordon.

Also, Jerry Mennenga, Neal Waddington, Janice Porter, Gary Luick, Cindy Musselman, Candy McClenahan, Lora Howell, Kristine Thompson, Norma Jean Gabrielson and Dick Nordman.

In addition, 53 taking Red Cross water safety instruction met the requirements for classification as swimmers. They were:

John Dickson, Ted Berns, Molly Hruska, Mary Jo Dana, Glenda Cunningham, Doug Greenwood, Neil Gabrielson, Mack Gabrielson, Patricia Dorr, Mike Sheriff, Kathy Proeger, Eddie Olson, David Moe, Mickey Ketchum, Lynn Ferguson, Jean Hauge, Paul Hauge, Glenn Gabrielson and Merry ' Bamford.

Miss Brogan explains that the requirements for Life Saving certificates are strict — especially for the Seniors. She says, "The Senior Life Savers must do the following very well, or in a life saving attempt they would endanger their own lives as well as that of the person they are endeavoring to rescue."

Life Saving candidates must: perform four carries — tired swimmer, cross chest, head, and hair; two shallow-water carries — saddleback and fireman's; perform three approaches — underwater, rear, and front surface.

Also, they must be able to make a good surface dive, to disrobe in the water, to perform required life saving strokes, and to release themselves from five different holds a drowning person may get on his rescuer.

Final judgment on a candidate's qualification for a Life Saving certificate is based on the practical aspects mentioned; on knowledge of the subject displayed in a written examination by Seniors and oral test by Juniors; and by how hard he or she works during class periods.

"These trails would shake the cab off an ordinary truck...but not our Chevy"

Few trucks are subjected to the body-wracking beatings that are part of a day's work for this Chevrolet Series 60 pulpwood hauler. It's owned by J. E. Fox, North Carolina logging contractor. As Bobby Fox, a partner in the business says, "Loaded with pulpwood, we drive over stumps and potholes you'd think would tear the truck to pieces. These trails would shake the cab off an ordinary truck, but not our Chevy. We can average an extra load a day . . . make $15 to $50 a day more with this Chevy than we can with the others."

In every weight class these Chevies are doing more work at less expense than trucks have ever done before. Drive one at your Chevrolet dealer's. It's an experience that could pay you big dividends.

◀ "That 6-cylinder engine really performs," says Bobby Fox. "It's got the lugging power we need in the woods and walks right along with a full load on the highway."

Payments on wool Brought to county Sum of $28,108

A total of $28,108.87 has been paid to Wright county wool growers in the form of payments earned in the national wool program for the 1959 marketing year, according to Jack G. Masters, manager of the Wright county Agricultural Stabilization Conservation office.

The payments made were earned on marketings of wool and unshorn lambs during the year from April 1, 1959 through March 31, 1960.

On shorn wool the rate of payment is 43.2 per cent of the grower's net proceeds from wool marketings, or $43.20 per $100 received. For unshorn lambs, the rate is 75 cents per hundredweight for the liveweight of lambs sold.

There is a deduction from each grower's payment to provide a fund used in promoting the sale of wool and lamb. This deduction, authorized by growers in a referendum, amounts to one cent a pound for shorn wool and five cents per hundredweight for unshorn lambs.

The wool program, authorized by the National Wool Act, is designed to increase the annual wool output of the United States to a total of 300,000,000 pounds. This is done by means of incentive payments which bring the average price received by growers for wool to 62 cents per pound.

Payments have been made on applications received up to May 1, 1960. The 1960 marketing year will continue until March 31, 1961, and payments for marketings during that period will be made next summer.

Blessed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and blessed shalt thou be when thou goest out. — Deut. 28:6

Ending GOP lethargy is Riehm's key to election

Why Curtis Riehm of Garner regards he has a very real chance of unseating Congressman Merwin Coad in the 6th Congressional District and has convinced the Republican Congressional Campaign committee that it can be done is evident in a survey that recently appeared in the Midwest Journal of Political Science.

Entitled "Urbanization and Party Competition: The Case of Iowa," it was written by David Gold and John Schmidhauser, assistant professors at the State University of Iowa. While the point of their dissertation — that urbanization and sharper political party competition do NOT necessarily go hand in hand — has no bearing on Lawyer Riehm's optimism, some of their data DOES.

Gold and Schmidhauser's investigations covering Iowa voting trends during the decade of 1946-56 give the 6th District's Republican Congressional candidate very real reason for hope — IF normally Republican voters can be induced to GO TO THE POLLS in larger numbers than in 1958. There lies the crux of the campaign, Curtis Riehm believes; and the National GOP Congressional Campaign committee is sufficiently convinced that it has promised the Garner attorney bona fide, active support.

The SUI writers discovered that out of the 15 counties in the 6th District, only TWO (Kossuth and Carroll) showed Democratic predominence during the period studied; close, two-party competition at all office levels was found in one (Palo Alto; and a more or less consistent tendency to split ballots at the state level of candidates was shown by one other (Boone).

All of the other 11 displayed a distinct preference for the Republican party. Hancock, Winnebago and Wright counties (remember, this was for the period 1946-56) were "straight Republican" and five more — Calhoun, Emmet, Greene, Hamilton and Humboldt — tended very strongly toward the Republican side of the ballot.

"Generally Republican" was the description attached to Crawford, Pocahontas and Webster counties. These findings of Gold and Schmidhauser strongly suggest that a hard-working Republican candidate, given solid party support, SHOULD find the 6th District his "oyster." Examination of the voting in 1956 and 1958 that put Coad in Congress and kept him there bears out this assumption.

It clearly was not switch-voting by Republicans, or desertion of the GOP ticket by large numbers of "independent" voters that cost the Republicans the 6th District seat in Congress. It was utter indifference on the part of a crucial number of habitual Republicans that kept them away from the polls altogether.

In 1956 in Wright county, for example, Eisenhower out-polled Stevenson 5,512 to 3,866 as about 9,400 voters cast ballots. Hoegh nipped Loveless 4,756-4,526 and Dolliver (who didn't find other "Republican" counties equally faithful) had a 4,969-3,883 edge over Coad.

The off-year election of '58 found about 2,400 Wright county voters staying home, who had exercised their franchise in '56. "Who" was staying home was made quite apparent by the 3,664-3,335 margin that Loveless posted over Murray and Coad's 3,641-3,133 margin over Wagoner.

Those Democratic totals were not high enough to cause defeat to Republican candidates in Wright county — IF GOP voters had gone to the polls in respectable numbers.

This situation was, without a doubt, duplicated in the other normally Republican counties in the 6th District.

Riehm has promised an all-out campaign, personally. Party leaders of the district, whose complacence was jarred into non-existence by the Congressional defeats of '56 and '58, are pledged to lend full support to their candidate.

It's going to be the job of Riehm and the party leaders to convince the traditionally Republican voters of the district that important enough principles are at stake to justify the "bother" of going to the polls. If they CAN do this, they are convinced the Republican strength is present to send our neighbor from Garner to Washington, D. C.

County should be grateful for Safety-Check project

All Wright county should take pride — and something MORE than that — in the peace officers' achievement of once again leading the nation with the best Vehicle Safety-Check conducted in a county of our size (10,000 to 25,000).

Besides the recognition that Wright county has won through this annual safety project, a good-sized handful of motorists undoubtedly have been saved from costly accidents — or worse — by learning through the Safety-Check of mechanical defects of which they were unaware.

In the four years that the Wright County Peace Officers association has won top honors in this nationwide program, more than 3,000 vehicles passed through Safety Lanes here and at the other inspection points. It is a virtual certainty that some of the drivers were safeguarded from serious trouble.

Just who might have been in those potential mishaps, unaware of the danger they were exposing themselves and their families to, we'll never know. But the price of a mechanical failure, such as described in the adjoining "Scanning" column, can be tragic — and all in Wright county who had their autos inspected should be sincerely grateful to the law enforcement officers, service station and garage personnel who gave of their time to conduct the Safety Check.

Special credit should go to Sheriff Bob Blecker as the innovator and guiding spirit behind Wright's award-winning Safety-Check program. It should be kept in mind that such things don't just "happen." They are inspired by capable leadership.

Loveless scared of Miller debate?

Jack Miller, republican nominee for U. S. senator, has Governor Loveless, the democratic candidate, backing away rapidly from any kind of a public debate.

Miller challenged Loveless shortly after he was nominated by the republican convention. Loveless replied testily that he wasn't going to draw any crowds for Miller.

The governor is bragging a bit on that crowd-drawing business. It seems Miller has been able to draw comfortably large crowds on his own.

The fact is Loveless is well aware that he is not even in the same league with Miller when it comes to a debate on the issues.

THE GOVERNOR HAS MADE a habit of not getting into anything but the shallow water of controversy without a life-saving crew on tap to bail him out.

Senator Kennedy and Vice President Nixon have agreed to debate as in the best interest of the nation. Neither of them is too scared to get into direct contest.

It would be most benefical to Iowans to have Loveless and Miller debate the issues in direct contest so the voters can make up their minds which will better serve Iowa and the nation.

Of course, maybe that's what Loveless is afraid of.

IF A MAN ASPIRING TO BE A U. S. senator in the greatest debating forum in the world is afraid to get into a debate to determine ability for the post, then what kind of a performance can we expect of him in the U. S. senate?

If Loveless is convinced he's better than Miller then it would be smart for him to draw the biggest crowd he can get to show up his opposition in direct contrast. That "crowds" talk is scared talk, and indicates Loveless knows which one would be best. — Algona Advance

No Cabinet Picks Now

Reports that Gov. Herschel Loveless is being considered for agriculture secretary in a Kennedy cabinet and Dr. Wm. G. Murray, his 1958 opponent, for the same post in a Nixon cabinet, should be thoroughly discounted at this stage of the campaign.

Candidates Kennedy and Nixon each made it quite clear in news conferences immediately after the Democratic and Republican conventions that they will not consider cabinet possibilities until after the campaign; that the campaign must be won first.

MOREOVER, NO PRESIDENTial candidate in his right mind — and these candidates definitely are — is going to risk the chance of offending other prospective cabinet appointees, and thereby the chance of losing their active support in their own states, by selecting his cabinet in advance.

That would be an exercise in extremely poor politics and you can bank on it that neither Kennedy nor Nixon will be caught in such a trap knowingly. So let's forget about cabinet appointees, except for purely speculative purposes, until after Nov. 8. — Cedar Rapids [illegible]

"They" need help

A common remark in most communities goes like this "why don't they do something about getting an industry to come here?"

Those who make such a remark seldom have any definite group in mind as "they." It is just a catch-all to affix the responsibility for action somewhere.

Martin Miller of the Iowa Development Commission, who spoke here last week, in commenting on this often used question said the "they" is everyone in the town.

HE WENT ON TO EXPLAIN that Britt has successfully attracted two new industires in the past year because everyone in Britt was salesminded. The traveling men with headquarters in Britt, the merchants in daily contact with salesmen from out of town, vacationers from Britt, all were eager-beavers when it came to extolling the merits of this community.

STRANGERS VISITING BRITT could not help but catch the virus, so enthusiastic were all Britt people in spreading it.

Whenever anyone heard the slightest rumor of a possible business for Britt he personally saw to it that the rumor was explored to the fullest. Of course, most of the rumors went down blind alleys but not all of them.

So if you are interested in the progress of Manson then it is up to you to help it, not they. — Manson Journal

MECHANICAL FLAWS DO KILL—

To give you some notion what sort of favor you may be doing YOURSELF when you drive your car through Safety Lane during one of the Wright County Peace Offficers' annual Vehicle Safety-Checks, we give you this eye-witness story of a fatal accident. It was written by George Young, assistant publisher of the Marion Sentinel. This accident, last summer, was caused by failure of the ball-joint suspension system in a right front wheel; the victim, Joyce Benton, 15, Davenport. Wrote Mr. Young:

You're driving along on old highway 30, now 150 just west of Mt. Vernon on a rainy Sunday afternoon. The paving glistens in the rain and appears to be slippery.

About 300 yards ahead of your car you notice a grey sedan traveling at what appears to be moderate speed. The next few seconds will leave an indelible mark on your memory, but you are just thinking about your driving.

The car ahead of you appears to be turning into a driveway, and you think to yourself that it looks like it's going too fast for such a maneuver.

Suddenly you are shocked, the car turns in the air and flips end over end, coming to rest on its top. Your only real memory is seeing the bottom of the car as it stands on end during its roll.

You accelerate, then slam on your brakes coming to a quick stop; jump out of the car and tell your wife to head for the nearest phone and call the highway patrol and an ambulance.

Then run over to the wrecked car, you see the wheels make their final revolutions. The scene is too much to take in one glance. First you see a woman running toward you gesturing wildly and apparently near hysteria.

Next you see another woman lying in a ditch — still. Then you see a small boy, about three. Two of the car's passengers appear uninjured so you jump into the ditch trying to remember what you learned about first aid in the army and from the Red Cross.

One look at the injured teenager and you know what you learned will do no good. Blood streams from her nose and ears. Dirt encrusts her nose and one eye. One side of her head is grotesquely swollen out of shape.

You feel for her pulse, and you find it. You take time to hope By this time other motorists have stopped. You yell for a blanket or something to cover her with, and look for other injuries. The only thing you see is the injury to her head.

You cover her and try to find some sign of consciousness — you find none. The girl is covered with a blanket and a rain coat, and the rain begins to wash some of the dirt from her face.

You can do no more — turn your attention to the other occupants of the car. The other woman asks you to find her billfold, you see it where the rear window of the car popped out and retrieve it.

You go down into the ditch to check on the condition of the injured girl. Her pulse is still beating, you see her shoulder twitch, You still hope.

By now there is a large crowd. You ask if there is somebody who has more knowledge of first aid than you possess — no one comes forward.

So you go again to check on the girl in the ditch. She has stopped any noticeable movement and you can't find a pulse. You try again, still no pulse. You don't say anything — because you can think of nothing to say.

Now an ambulance, operated by a funeral home, drives up. The mortician follows. He looks at the girl and you both agree that she is now dead. The other woman and the child — both apparently uninjured — are loaded into the ambulance and are taken to a Cedar Rapids hospital for examination.

By now traffic is pretty well tied up. Two truckers help direct the traffic and soon the highway is pretty much clear. They put up flares and leave.

You are wet through. Up to now you hadn't thought about it, but now you start to get cold. You have a cigarette with the funeral director and wait for the highway patrolman to arrive.

He does, and you tell him your story. He takes your name and address and says you can go. You walk back to your car and take a final glance at the accident scene.

You get to your car and strip off your wet shirt. Your wife offers to drive your car home, and you let her.

How do you feel now — completely empty, devoid of any feeling.

What was the cause? — Failure of the suspension system in the car's front end.

You think just another name to be added to the state's highway death toll.

Who were they, three strangers whose names you never learned until you hear a newscast later that day.

Where were you driving when all this started, just about 40 minutes ago, — you were on your way home from a picnic.

Know your businessmen—

Loats entered insurance to "be own boss"

A. W. "ANDY" LOATS — HE'LL INSURE YOU

Going on 12 years ago, A. W. "Andy" Loats was a disturbed man. He had been employed for 22 years by Farmers Grain company. He was assistant manager of the elevator; his relations with the management and all the staff had been very satisfactory, and he had no kicks. But he'd given into a a yen to become his "own boss" and had bought an insurance agency from Albert Schmidt.

Andy had been in possession of the insurance business for two days before he finally worked up nerve enough to inform his boss, George Elder, that he was quitting.

Despite his pleasant association with Farmers Grain, Andy has had no regrets over the switch. He adds that his wife should be given a generous amount of credit for the shift, saying, "She practically had the insurance business bought before I'd entirely made up my mind."

"Having a business of your own gives you a good opportunity to starve if you don't work at it," Andy concedes. "I put in long hours at building up my clientele during the first five or six years I was handling insurance. In recent years, I've been able to take it a bit easier; but I still cover quite a wide territory looking for prospects."

He says his territory extends from west of Clarion to the Thornton area, and from around Kanawha southeast as far as Latimer. Some of his policies are renewed annually by the policyholder, himself, and Andy has to pay no attention to them unless the renewal premiums fail to go in on schedule.

Some customers who have been on his books since before he bought the business he hasn't even seen in 12 years time. But each year when they pay, his commission is automatically forwarded by the insuring company.

Andy adds that an insurance man who has an office gets quite a bit of what he calls "walk in" business. This is most apt to be in the form of fire or auto insurance. On the other hand, some types are gotten exclusively by direct selling. Life, accident and health, and hail insurance are examples.

"Farmers just won't come to you and buy hail insurance," Andy says. He writes a good deal of hail insurance; enough that he not infrequently gets more in a single township than one company will accept. Then he has to start writing on another firm's contracts, for the insurer doesn't like to be exposed to too large arisk in a limited area.

While he writes all sorts of insurance, Andy says the larger part of his business is in fire, auto and farm liability policies. The farm liability is relatively new. Time was when a farmer's livestock was not considered responsible when hit by an auto. But in such cases, now, the farmer is most liable to have to pay for damages.

He personally recalls seeing a motorist driving at high speed hit a steer in a road near Meservey, badly damaging the front of the car and killing the animal. Apparently not knowing that the farmer would have been held responsible, the fellow hurriedly left the scene instead of looking up the steer's owner.

Andy's first business experience was as a grocer. He was born and raised a farm boy, east of Belmond, but didn't care much for farming. If he learned anything from the grocery experience it was the fact that there are tricks to the trade if you're to be successful.

After five years he decided he wasn't cut out for a grocer and sold the business to a Mrs. Bump, who later resold to A. W. "Doc" Johnson. Andy observes, "Doc obviously knew more about the business than I did. Under his guidance and that of his brother Harold, it developed into a super market!"

It was after selling his store that Andy joined the staff at Farmers Grain.

Andy's community service has included a term as mayor of Belmond during the early 'fifties. He was not a candidate for re-election. He explains, "One term at that job was plenty."

A bit regretfully, Andy says, "Time was, I knew the name of everybody in Belmond. But the town's getting too big for that now."

He admits he now has trouble sometimes remembering names as well as he should. But customers and prospective customers seem to keep his well in mind. And that, after all, is the important thing.

Private-eye pinches 'Melon Head' Dorr

For some time Cathy "Melon Head" Dorr has been watching customers pinching fruit and vegetables. Now it is her turn. Authorities finally caught up with her and pinched her.

"Melon Head" is accused of trimming vegetables and prices. She denies both charges on the advice of her lawyer "Cabbage Head" Porter.

"MELON HEAD" DORR
Caught in the act by private eye

Dorr had the authorities fooled for a long time until "Bloodshot" Wilson, a local private eye, discovered a clue. He noticed that large shipments of fruits and vegetables were leaving the P&G each night after dark. Knowing that Dorr is a vegetarian, he decided to follow the deliveries. When he noticed they were being delivered to a secluded spot in Tyrrell's Park southeast of Belmond he became suspicious. Investigations showed that his suspicions were well founded. Authorities captured "Melon Head" Dorr there.

Dorr denied she had been hiding out. She said she was there to pick watermelons. As proof of her statement, Dorr is advertising watermelons as a P&G Ridiculous Day special for 39c each, Saturday only.

If they don't want these lovely watermelons for only 39c each, 20 lb. average, I hope they will at least come in and drool over them."

GOP Has Aided Education

The Republican party expands educational opportunities. More classrooms have been built under the Republicans since 1953 than were built in the preceding 20 Democrat years.

The so-called classroom deficit has been cut in half by the 501,800 classrooms built since 1953 (329,000 classrooms built in 1932-52)

The rate of classroom construction over the past five years has trimmed 25,000 classrooms a year from the so-called deficit. At this rate, the deficit will be completely elminated in four or five more years.

In 1959, 65% of the population aged 5-29 attended school as compared with 56% attending in 1952.

In 1959, colleges and universities conferred 67,000 more degrees than in 1952.

Asks letters to Congressmen—

FB urges action on conservation

A letter-writing campaign designed to bring action in Congress got off to a flying start as more than 60 farmers attended a meeting last Friday in the First National bank building at Clarion under Farm Bureau sponsorship. As a result, over 70 cards or letters were written at the meeting and around 25 cards or letters were to be written later.

These letters, all written voluntarily, called for action on enlarging the Conservation Reserve immediately.

Olaf Watne, Wright County Farm Bureau president, introduced Jack Burt, chairman of the county Farm Bureau national policy committee, who discussed the merits of a Conservation Reserve as a production reducing plan.

Open discussion was held with those attending the meeting participating.

Those wishing to add their voice to a statewide and nationwide movement to push the Conservation Reserve are urged by Mr. Burt to write their Congressmen and inform them of their wishes.

Their addresses are as follows: Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper and Senator Thomas Martin, State Office Building, Washington D. C; Rep. Merwin Coad, House Office Building, Washington D. C.

Both political parties in their campaign platforms pledge their support to the Conservation Reserve and so do all major farm organizations, Mr. Burt observes.

Persons wishing additional information are asked to contact either Olaf Watne, Galt; Jack Burt, Rowan; or the Farm Bureau office at Clarion.

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

A Clarion woman hailed one of the Mainstreeters down the other day and asked, "What's this about Belmond being such a friendly city?" She referred to those Cheerful Charley signs on Highway 69 on each side of town telling travelers that 2,499 friendly people wait to welcome them.

We assured our questioner that we're all just as friendly as can be. She expressed doubts.

"Driving through Belmond recently we decided to put the sign's message to a test. We waved at people, nodded our heads and shouted 'hello' — and everybody looked at us as if we were nuts!" . . . On your toes, folks! If any more take the signs that literally, let's be ready for 'em!

Dave Kennedy brought in to Ye Ed last week a "press release" regarding a recent jaunt taken by himself and Mrs. K. to Minneapolis to take in the semi-annual market week of upper midwest furniture dealers. It descended to Level No. 3 on our desk before we'd gotten an item written up from it.

That's probably going to happen from time to time, since vacation time is annual desk-cleaning time for the front Mainstreeter. And since Ye Ed is not getting a vacation this year, he'll probably have a Ph. D. desk (piled higher and deeper) before next summer rolls around.

Anyway, we wanted Dave to know he wasn't the victim of a plot; simply the victim of a pile-up. There's a deep stack on the northeast corner of the desk that we're going to HAVE to sift through one of these days. That's where Dave's blurb got submerged. Probably some other good stuff in there, too.

That handsome new patrolman-about-town is our old friend Jerry Kramer. After having his good looks marred for several years by a caved-in nose (the result of a crash in line of duty), Jerry recently had the battered proboscis returned more or less to its original lines by plastic surgery performed at University hospitals, Iowa City. Jerry says (we're told) that it's not only an aethetic improvement, but that he can now breathe easier than any time since the accident that did the damage.

Those cra-a-azy drivers who flirt with disaster down at Wright County Raceway will be shooting at a thousand-buck purse Sunday afternoon — which suggests some grimly determined driving will highlight the occasion. Sounds like the race promoters have caught the Belmond merchants' "Ridiculous Day" spirit — since the price of admission for the special Sunday afternoon program (including qualifying for the night's regular races) will include free eats for one and all. . . . The Raceway's been drawing "biggest crowds ever" this summer — from over a wide geographic area.

We note in publicity on Britt's annual Hobo Day (next Tuesday) that Scoopshovel Scotty, self-acclaimed King of the Hoboes, has reached the ripe old age of 88. That shows you what clean living and not worrying about making out income tax blanks can do for you.

Ye Ed doesn't for a minute doubt Scotty's age. We can remember him as a "knight of the road" 30 years ago, when he had long, flowing beard and his favorite footwear was devised out of tire casings.

Those memories go back to depression days, when Scotty had a lot more company in his carefree life than nowadays. Ye Ed can also remember seeing Scotty selling the Hobo News on 14th street in New York City back in the mid-'thirties. . . . . S'pose YOU'LL make it to 88?

AID CLAIMS TWO DATES

Women of the St. Olaf Ladies Aid have chosen Thursday, Sept. 15, as the date for their annual bazaar and Tuesday, Sept. 27, for their annual chicken supper.

Sturgeon funeral held on Saturday

Funeral services for Mrs. Florence Sturgeon, 75, were held Saturday afternoon at the Methodist church, Rev. M. L. Jones officiating. Johnston Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements and burial was in the cemetery at Dows.

Pallbearers were: Lincoln Trowbridge, Iowa Falls; Mitchell Trowbridge, Osage; John Trowbridge, Des Moines; Lloyd Blankenship, Dows; Lawrence Blankenship, Sheffield; and Russell Anderson, Waterloo. All are nephews of Mrs. Sturgeon.

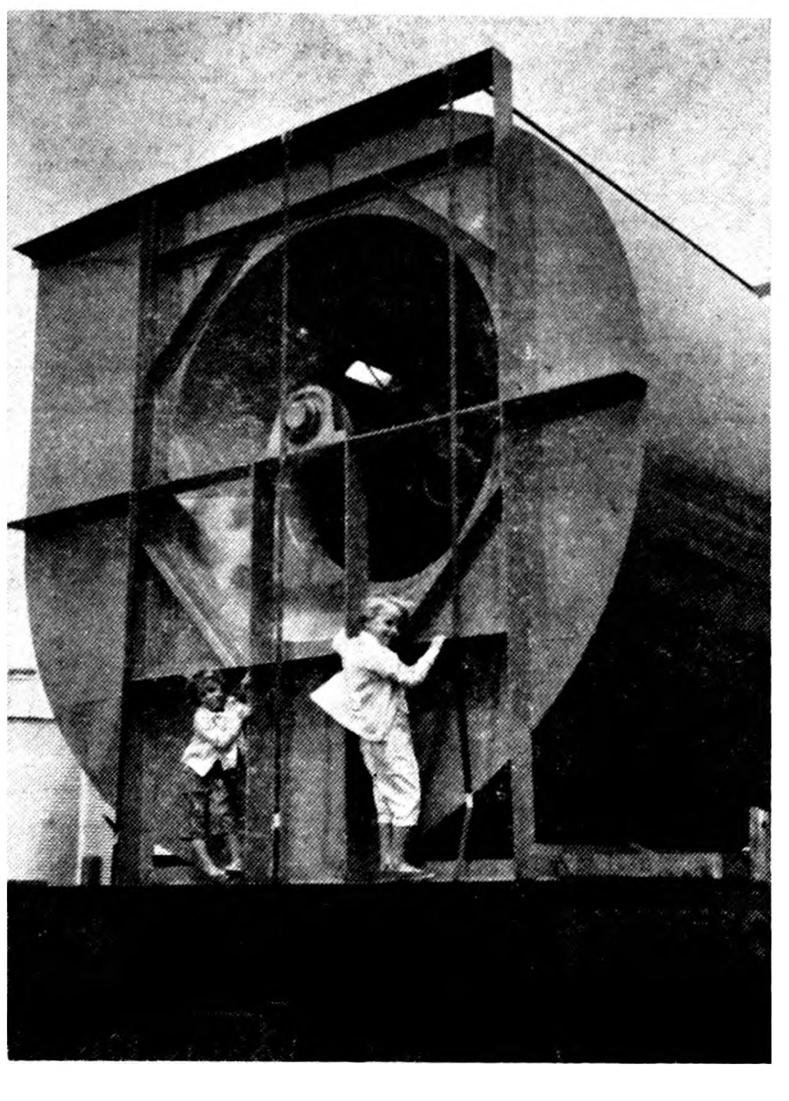
Several months of illness preceded Mrs. Sturgeon's death at her home last Thursday morning.

Florence Trowbridge Sturgeon was born March 11, 1885, near Dows, daughter of Thomas and Henrietta Trowbridge. After her marriage to Elmer Sturgeon, they farmed near Dows until 1937. In that year they moved to a farm 2¼ miles north of Belmond, which they continued to operate until 1949. Mrs. Sturgeon had lived in Belmond since 1949.

A son, Dale, preceded his mother in death but the Sturgeons' other son and six daughters survive: Eugene Sturgeon, Dows; Mrs. Marjorie Wallace, Benton, Ill.; Mrs. Elizabeth Langland, Des Moines; Mrs. Lucille White, Austin, Minn.; Mrs. Henrietta Jenison, Belmond; Mrs. June Deiser, Medford, Minn.; and Mrs. Delores, Johnson, Kanawha.

In addition to her husband and the one son, Mrs. Sturgeon was preceded in death by two sisters and a brother.

Survivors, besides the children, include 19 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.



Big fan blows either warm or cool

"Just the thing for a hot day" might be the thought of a heat-beleaguered Belmond resident seeing the blower unit that will be the "heart" of Tomco's new corn dryer. The king-sized gadget has been sitting on a flatcar on the M. & St. L. tracks since last week, waiting for progess on the dryer's construction to reach the point where it can be installed.

To give a notion of its size, the blower is pictured above with the two little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Don Bunnell, Bobbi Lu (left), who is four; and Patty, age five.

About 12 feet in height, as shown, the blower weighs six tons, is operated by a 75 horsepower motor and will move 200,000 cubic feet of air per minute. The actual fan is eight feet in diameter. Its companion heating unit is rated at 15 000,000 BTU's per hour (which is a lot of British Thermal Units).

Design of the dryer building is such that the fan can pull warm air either up or down through the corn — or cool air down through the grain. In fact, the blower will be able to draw warm and cool air simultaneously through different bins.

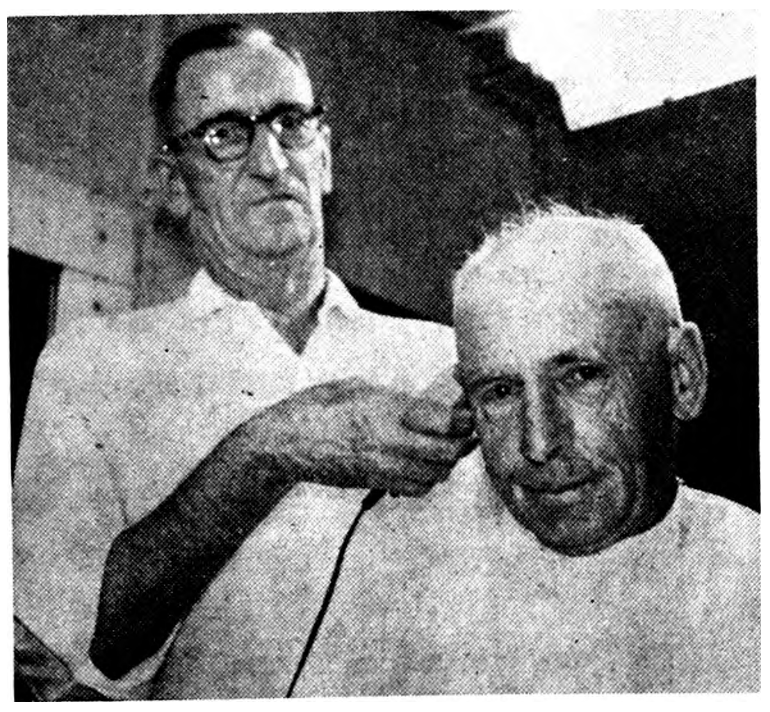
K. LERDAL BUYS STATION

Kenneth Lerdal a week ago last Saturday purchased Van's Standard Service station at Eagle Grove from Russell Van Sickle. Although for the past year or so, Mr. Lerdal has been an agent for life, accident and health insurance, he was for 3½ years employed by his father at Lloyd's Standard Service and is experienced in that line of business.

J. Granzow buys Hummel interest in Ford agency

Jack Granzow this week announced purchase of the interest of his partner, Ron Hummel, in Belmond Motors, Inc. The transaction became effective as of Thursday of last week. The two men have been partners and in active management of the Ford-Mercury agency and garage for the past three years.

Mr Hummel's plans are indefinite for the time being, but he says he hopes to remain in the automotive field. He and his family will remain in Belmond for the balance of August, and possibly through September, while Mr. Hummel continues with Belmond Motors temporarily on an employee basis.



LAST CUSTOMER of Ed Riggs, before he laid down his barber shears for the last time Saturday night, was "Barney" Dillon — who 39 years ago got the first haircut administered by Ed. Taking of the above picture had to be delayed, because as "Barney" was awaiting his turn the fire siren sounded and Mr. Dillon, forgetting he's officially "retired" from the fire company, shot out of the shop to ride a truck to the blaze (it involved a car that had gone in a ditch and caught fire). "Barney," himself, will be retiring — from his job with the state highway department — next April after passing his 70th birthday. Ed Riggs called it "quits" after giving his old friend a final haircut "on the house."

Runs three days, starting Monday—

See 4-H Fair one of county's biggest, best

Wright County District Junior Fair will be held at Eagle Grove's Greenwood Park next Monday through Wednesday. Fair officials, including Director W. P. Tyrrell of Belmond, confidently expect the 1960 edition to be one of the biggest and best in Wright county history.

Judges will include: Gerald L. Parks, beef cattle superintendent for Iowa State university, beef judging; Gaylord Joe Lyons of Toledo, dairy; Emmettt Haynes of Iowa State university, sheep; Lee McGrane, pony show; Mrs. Wray Winter, Kamrar, vegetables and flowers; Mrs R. R. Bateson of Eldora and Mrs. George Heald of Ames, home economics division.

Style Revue Wednesday

Wednesday afternoon's 4-H Style Revue will be on of the fair's major highlights. Each girls' club had the privilege of selecting entries in the senior, intermediate and junior divisions, though all did not pick a complete list of three.

Contestants from this area are: senior division — Faye Homervold, Belmond Busy Bees; Lynn Arends, Iowa U-Go-I-Go; intermediate — Rochelle Fuller, Belmond Busy Bees; Diana Andrews, Iowa U-Go-I-Go; Mary Drury, Grant Go-Getters; junior — Kathy Jenison, Belmond Busy Bees; Lennea Groom, Iowa U-Go-I-Go; Leah Reimann, Grant Go-Getters.

A senior girl will be chosen by Mrs. Bateson to represent Wright county at the Iowa State Fair. Entrants must wear garments they themselves have made, with slip, shoes, hose, undergarments and accessories made or personally selected by the girl.

Judging factors will include personal grooming, posture, appropriateness of costume, color combination, amount of snap and style, and thrift.

650-700 individual exhibits

Between 650 and 700 individual clothing exhibits will be shown by the girls, all of the garments having been pre-judged at club achievement shows. Winning entries to go on to the State Fair will be selected from each of the following classes:

Skirt, blouse night gown, pajamas, housecoat, jumper, play clothes, school dress, dress for better wear, party dress, slip, child's dress, boy's sport shirt, work apron, 4-H uniform, head scarf, sewing box and equipment, and garment either purchased or made by the girl plus a folder telling how it fits into her wardrobe now, in the future, and on different occasions.

Another highlight of the Wednesday afternoon program will be a concert at 2:00 o'clock by the county 4-H girls' chorus, directed by Mrs. Roy Crawford. Singers from this area include: Belmond Busy Bees — Jane Studebaker, Faye Homervold, Marcia Stoltenberg; Iowa U-Go-I-Go — Mary Kapka, Leola Hill, Patti Smith, Bonnie Vestweber.

Norway Jolly Joy Makers — Janice Rietema, Bette Krause, Joan Mathre; Grant Go-Getters — Donna Lindsay.

Extension Associate Gerald Anderson reminds all livestock exhibitors in both 4-H and FFA divisions that livestock health certificates, record books, and purebred registration papers are to be checked at the fair secretary's office Monday morning.

Besides judging of swine, dairy cattle, baby beeves and sheep, there will be a horse and pony show. Also, there will be judging of flowers and vegetables, a tractor rodeo and evening stage entertment.

Dr Orin Emerson is president of the fair, Roy Larson the vice president and Richard Randall the secretary-treasurer. All are from Eagle Grove.

School election slated Sept. 12

Due to a change in school election laws passed by the 58th General Assembly, the 1960 Belmond Community School district election will be held on Monday, Sept. 12. Filing of nomination papers for candidates was permissable from last Saturday until Friday, Sept. 2.

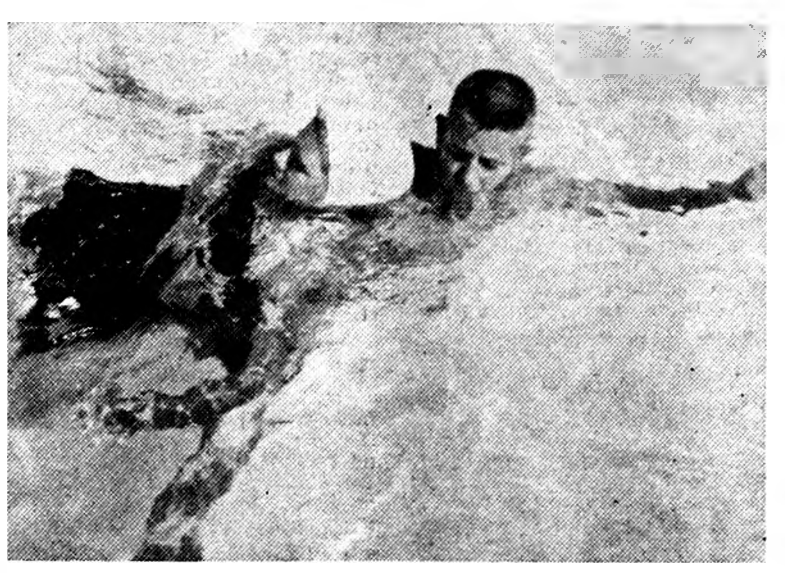
There will be one board position to fill, that of Carl Green of Goodell; and Claude Benson's term as treasurer is also expiring.

Mr. Green has consented at the urging of school patrons in his area to run for a fourth term on the board.

Although by law, the school directors are all candidates at-large, a "gentlemen's agreement" has existed since Belmond Community School district was formed that Goodell should have one representative on the board, the rural area surrounding Belmond two, and the community of Belmond two.

In fairness to all of these areas, an effort has been made to see that they retain the representation agreed upon.

Mr. Benson, like Mr. Green, has consented to run for another term. He has served as treasurer three terms.



HOW TO TOW a swimmer in distress is demonstrated above by Sam Johnson, with Judy Gordon as the damsel he's aiding. These two, and Bill Heinzig, earned Senior Life Saving certificates during the Red Cross course in water safety at Luick Memorial Pool this summer. Names of others who became Junior Life Savers, and those who qualified as "swimmers" will be found on page four of the second section.

Seems the well ran dry!

Though the pump was well primed by the outpouring of $150 on the two Tuesdays preeding, Tuesday afternoon of this week found "nothing in the bucket" for Cash Gift Day money-hunters. Not one of the dozen numbers worth a total of $400 brought forth a winner. The same sum in prizes will be put up for grabs on Tuesday of next week divided into eight $25 awards at 2:00 p.m. and four $50's at 3:00 o'clock.

New barber buys shop of Ed Riggs

Sam Shoemaker, a native of New London, Wis., but most lately from Clinton, on Tuesday of this week become proprietor of the former Ed Riggs barber shop. Mr. Riggs retired from the occupation last Saturday night after more than 39 years of barbering.

A graduate of New London High school in 1949, Mr. Shoemaker got in 3½ years of military duty in the U. S. Air Force during the time elapsing between his graduation and enrollment in barber school in 1958.

He was a mechanic in the Air Force and saw two years and five months of duty in Germany, where he was stationed at Frankfort.

In the winter of 1958 Sam graduated from LaMar Barber college in Detroit, Mich., after completing a nine-month course. Since then he has worked at shops at Maquoketa and Clinton. This will be his first experience as a shop owner.

Mr. Shoemaker is married and has three children — two sons, Chris, age four, and Kevin, 2½ years old; and a daughter, Cyndee, who is eight months of age. The Shoemakers are living at 1007 First street SE. They attend the Lutheran church.

Local FFA gets third in judging, North Iowa Fair

Belmond High school's FFA livestock judging team competing Tuesday at the North Iowa Fair, Mason City, achieved the highest ranking that any local Future Farmer judging team has ever attained.

Third place was awarded to the team composed of Lynn Slining, Lynn Ruka and Dennis Barkema, on which Dustin Johnson served as alternate. Nineteen teams were entered.

Bringing further honor to Friendly Service chapter of the FFA was a third place in the individual judging won by Lynn Slining. His score of 312 out of a possible 350 put him ahead of all but two of the individuals judged.

Hampton's FFA, long a power in the livestock judging field, won first place among the teams with a composite score of 898 — just two points more than their Franklin county rivals from Franklin Consolidated. Belmond's team score was not far off of the leaders' at 889.

The Belmond team was coached by Darrell Staley, new BHS instructor in vocational agriculture. He had had only a week to work with the boys in advance of the fair, but admits that they put in some concentrated training sessions during that time.

MRS. LUICK HAS GUESTS

Harry Glidden of Gaylord, Mich., and his daughter, Nina, of Columbia, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Glidden of Des Moines were visitors in the home of Mrs. Chester Luick over the weekend. Harry and Lynn Glidden are Mrs. Luick's nephews.

Has headed Conrad operation—

Clarke, Tomco exec', to move here

It was announced today by R. B. Thompson, Tomco, Inc. president, that Hugh H. Clarke, Tomco vice president and president of Clarke Hybrid Corn Company, Inc. of Conrad, will move to Belmond from Conrad next Monday. Mr. Thompson stated that the rapid growth of the Tomco organization makes Clarke's residence at the headquarters of the company desireable.

The Clarke family has long been active in hybrid seed corn production. John L. Clarke, Hugh Clarke's father, first produced and sold hybrid seed corn in 1932. After his father's death in 1943, Hugh assumed the complete management of the Clarke company.

In 1952, Mr. Clarke was made vice president of the Tomco organization when the sales of the Clarke company and those of Thompson Hybrid Corn Company, Inc. were combined in forming the marketing organization now known as Tomco, Inc.

Since 1952 Mr. Clarke has been active in the management of the combined operation. As vice president he has been, and will continue to be, responsible for the operation of the companies' plants at Lexington, Ill., and Conrad.

In addition, Mr. Clarke has taken charge of many of the companies' recent expansion projects, including the new ear corn dryer now under construction here at Belmond, a new warehouse recently completed at Conrad, and a new processing building under construction at Lexington.

In addition to his many company activities, Mr. Clarke is a director of the Iowa Seed Dealers association; serves on the board of directors of the United States Feed Grains Council and is serving on a committee currently working with the federal government to enlarge foreign markets for feed grains.

His other activities include the American Seed Trade Association Machinery committee and the Iowa Corn Yield Test committee of the Iowa Corn and Small Grain Growers association. Mr. Clarke is also a member of the Masonic lodge, the Lions club at Conrad and the Methodist church.

Mr. Clarke, his wife, Frances, and his daughter, Jeanne, have purchased the Pete Daniels home, located north of Third Street in east Belmond. Jeanne will be in the seventh grade this fall.

School fuel bids of Barry Oil Co. win new contract

Highly favorable bids for fuels required during 1960-61 by Belmond Community School district were received at the first board meeting in August, Helen McClure, secretary to the board, reports.

Barry Oil company of Goodell, which handles DX-Sunray petroleum products, was awarded the contract to provide gasoline and oil for the school busses and fuel oil for the Goodell grade school.

This firm had the low bid in all three classifications. Its bid on gasoline was 14.3 per gallon, plus whatever tax the school is required to pay. At present, the six-cent gallon state tax must be paid but not the three-cent per gallon federal tax.

That would make the effective price on gasoline 20.3 per gallon, which was six-tenths of a cent per gallon under the next best bid.

On motor oil, Barry's bid was 74 cents per gallon, which was eight cents below the next best bid. On fuel oil, the successful bid was 11.4 per gallon, one-tenth of a cent less than Barry's nearest competitor.

Five firms entered bids.

Five-lot addition accepted by city

Dedication of a new real estate development as an official addition to the corporation of Belmond was accepted at a meeting of the city council Monday night.

It consists of five lots, facing on First street SE and adjoining the swimming pool grounds on the west. It will be known as O'Larry Addition.

Plat and specifications for the addition were filed by Neil Flanagan.

TERRY JOHNSON DISCHARGED

Terry Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Johnson, arrives home today (Thursday) from Bad Adding, Germany, where he has spent the past two years in army security. He received his discharge at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., after three years in service.

Board soliciting school bus bids

Thanks to the favorable bids received on construction of the new high school building, the Belmond Community School board of education is finding it possible to buy a needed new school bus.

Solicitation of bids had been delayed, due to question whether the purchase could be made during the current fiscal year if construction bids on the high school ran as high as anticipated.

In this issue, bids are asked on a 48-passenger bus, either six or eight cylinder, meeting specifications of the state department of public instruction. Separate bids are invited on body and chassis.

Bids must be submitted prior to 8:00 p.m. on Sept. 6, at which time they will be considered by the school directors.

Work begins on new school—

Foreman Art Petersen in charge

Arthur Petersen of Clear Lake will, for the next two years, be a commuting resident of Belmond as he oversees construction of the new high school and Luick Community Center. He is serving as foreman of the general construction job for Petersen Construction company of Clear Lake, which is owned by his brother Peter O. Petersen.

Foreman Peterson has been in the construction business throughout his adult lifetime and for the past 14 years has been associated with his brother. He gained his first experience as a builder under the training of his father, George Peterson, who was then head of Petersen Construction company. That was in 1922, when Arthur had just graduated from Clear Lake High school.

Mr. Petersen later took three years of engineering at the State University of Iowa, then returning to the building trade. He takes a great deal of pride in the numerous buildings Petersen Construction has built in Mason City and in the Clear Lake area and considerable territory surrounding. The company built the new Clear Lake High school, which was finished early this year and first occupied by the students in April.

Work was started here by a small crew of Petersen employees last week. Mr. Petersen says that, at the peak of the construction work some 50 to 75 men in all crafts will be working on the school and adjoining community center.

It is Petersen Construction's intention to work the winter through, laying brick under heated shelters. Only a siege of sub-zero weather would interrupt this plan, according to the foreman; and in such an event, work would be resumed promptly upon a turn to milder temperatures.

An intensive work schedule of this sort will be required to assure completion of the school and community center by the contracted completion date of Aug. 1, 1962.

Post as teacher in 5th grade goes to Mason Citian

Mrs. Josephine McCoun of Mason City has been hired by the Belmond Community School board to fill a vacancy on the faculty left by the belated resignation of Beatrice Gripp, who was to have taught fifth grade.

During the past year, Mrs. McCoun has attended Mason City Junior college to meet requirements for renewal of her teaching certificate, since she has not taught since the mid-'thirties.

She was graduated from Holy Family High school at Mason City in 1930 and then took a two-year normal training course at Yankton (S. D.) college. She taught in rural schools near Yankton for two years after completing her college work.

Bowling meeting scheduled Friday

Cecil Winbigler, president of the Belmond Bowling association, has called a meeting for this Friday night at 7:30 o'clock which all men's league bowlers and others interested in bowling on a team are urgently requested to attend.

"Enlargement of Bowl-Mor Lanes to eight alleys, plus the new bowlers attracted by installation of automatic pin-setters, has created a number of problems that must be threshed out," Mr. Winbigler says. "The only way this can be done to the satisfaction of the majority is if a majority of the league bowlers attend and make their opinions known."

He emphasized that all men who enjoy bowling should be present, whether they have been contacted to become members of a team or not. There will be openings, President Winbigler assured, and the meeting will serve to place bowlers in contact with teams needing additional members.

Gene Pearson, proprietor of Bowl-Mor Lanes, says the AMF pinsetters were being installed the early part of the week and should be in operation Friday night. To introduce them to his clientele, he will offer free bowling following the association meeting.

Grid drills start next Wednesday

Coach Rich Koolbeck has issued a call for all senior and junior candidates for the Belmond High school football team to draw equipment tomorrow (Friday) at 8:00 a.m. and the sophomore and freshman candidates at the same hour on Saturday.

By a ruling initiated this year by the Iowa High School Athletic association, start of practice will not be permitted until Wednesday, Aug. 24 This will give squads only 2½ weeks to prepare for their opening games, instead of the three weeks previously allowed.

Two-a-day drills will be started on Aug. 24 and continue through Friday, Aug. 26; and one practice session will be held the following Saturday. Daily after-school workouts will open on the first day of school, Monday, Aug. 29.

Coach Koolbeck has issued to all candidates a conditioning program to be followed daily to toughen the boys up in advance of their opening practice.

'Ripper' Gabrielson finally captured

Ed Gabrielson, alias "The Ripper" was the first of "Squint Eye" Pals and the "Ripper's gang to be apprehended.

Gabrielson admitted that he was guilty of slashing prices on the P & G's Top Quality Pork Liver. He cut the price down to only 1c for a full pound, (if eaten in the store), 10c if taken home.

"RIPPER" GABRIELSON
Lowest-liver in town

The "Ripper" confessed that he sneaked a lower price on liver so he could take it easy while other members of the meat department were slaving. "Everybody knows our pork liver is so delicious that the crew can't keep up with the demand at regular price. What will they do now at 1c a pound?" Gabrielson asked. "I'll have the laugh on them because you don't need no saw for liver," the "Ripper" added.

When contacted at their hideout, the ringleader of "Squint Eye" and "Ripper's" gang admitted they would sell liver for 1c a pound (if eaten at the P & G), for Saturday even though Gabrielson had no right to mark it down to that price. (15c if take home.) Adv.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Even kids (and adults) who got poor grades in history have heard of Hannibal crossing the alps. That was 2,200 years ago, when the bow-and-arrow, spear and broadsword were the primary implements of war.

You might say that Hannibal foresaw the armored tank when he employed a battalion of elephants in his successful assault on Rome.

Victor Mature plays the title role in "Hannibal," which brings this stirring historical episode to the local screen Thursday through Saturday. Forty-five elephants were assembled to duplicate the Alps bit.

Jean Kerr's best selling book of fun on the family plan, "Don't Eat the Daisies," comes in film form to the New Belmond Sunday through Wednesday. It stars Doris Day and David Niven, two masters of comedy, backed by an excellent cast. With condensations, reprints and all, it's estimated that well over 100 million have read the book. If you're among 'em, you won't think of missing the movie version. If you DIDN'T read it, here's your chance to see what the hullaballoo is all about.

Back here in the middle west, school busses converted for family vacation travel are no particular rarity. But apparently in Indiana such utilization of former school busses is distinctly on the unusual side. When Ed Gabrielson and his family visited Mrs. G's sister, Mrs. Martin (June) Ewing and family at Tell City, Ind., recently, the Gabrielson "Greyhound" caused quite a stir.

The Tell City Daily News sent forth a reporter to gather all the facts regarding this strange mode of family travel, and its Aug. 12th edition carried a feature story plus a three-column picture of Ed and Doris, Mrs. Ewing and a covey of the Gabrielson-Ewing cousins.

How Ed has rebuilt the bus to bed down his whole family, provide living and cooking space "aboard" was told by the News in considerable detail. It reported how Ed had bought it a year ago and after outfitting it taken his tribe on outings to Lake Mille Lacs (the News — or Ed — spelled it Malac) and Wisconsin's Dells.

Father (Rev. R. A.) Ormsby will leave Saturday of this week on his delayed tour of Europe — a gift from his St. Francis-St. Mary's parishoners. He'll land in Spain, but fly from there to Rome and be there for 12 days. He's passing up a nine-day tour of the Holy Land in order to have more time in Rome, he says. There, the padre will have the privilege of an audience with the Pope. Due to the delay in his plans, he will also have an opportunity to take in a portion of the Olympic Games, which will be in progress at the time.

What happened to the go-carts we can't say, but the Iowa State Fair board has appealed to the state press to help them out of a situation. Seems that tomorrow (Friday) afternoon's grandstand race program was to have involved go-carts; but as things have turned out, it isn't. Instead, greyhound races have been substituted. Forty of the lanky pooches will engage in a 10-race program. So if you go to the races expecting to see buzz-buggies — take our word for it, they're going to look a lot like greyhounds.

Local bowling enthusiasts were pleasantly impressed with the new facilities displayed by the Bowl-Mor Lanes at the meetings of men's league members last Friday night and keglers of the women's leagues Tuesday evening. The sparkling new alleys and mystifying AMF Pin-Spotters put the local pin emporium on a par with any like establishment you could find. A good season was augured by Cecil Winbigler, president of the Belmond Bowling association, who sent the first ball down the maples for a solid strike. Duan Thompson won himself five free lines of bowling by having Friday night's high game, a nifty 244. Darlene Busick did the same Tuesday with a 190.

Last week's Clarion Monitor carried a picture of a house being moved from just northeast of the courthouse square to make room for a parking lot to serve the new B&W Fine Food store, which will occupy the former Samson Motor company building. The aged structure was built (according to the Monitor) in 1870 by W. C. "Cap" Tyrrell, grandfather of Preston Tyrrell and of Bill Tyrrell.

The year 1870 would have found the Wright county seat just five years old. It was platted in 1865 and the first home was built there in 1866 — so the Tyrrel residence must have been one of the very oldest still standing in the community. It was not until 1870 that Clarion BECAME Clarion. Until that year it went by its platted name of [illegible].

Mr. Tyrrell was the fifth county treasurer to occupy that office at the "new" county seat; also, the [illegible] to hold that office exclusively. From 1855 to 1864, the offices of treasurer and recorder were combined. "Cap" succeeded Henry Parker, who served for a year by appointment when J. H. Rowen resigned after holding office five years. He was elected in '79 and served six years.

Would you believe it? Exactly one-third of the guesses submitted in the Ridiculous Day "mystery woman" — whom we identified last week as Lloyd Lewis — were right as rain! Twenty-one guesses were mailed in, and seven of them looked through the disguise and saw the hardwareman.

We must confess that, had we not been "in" on the secret, we suspect very much that we wouldn't have been able to guess who "she" was if our lives had depended on it.

Names of 11 other businessmen were submitted by the guessers. Three of them — Dave Kennedy, Claire Hildman and John Thompson (Lloyd's partner) — were each the guess of two readers. One of the correct guesses, from Mrs. Roger Boyken, was mailed in all the way from Titonka!

Shirley Johnson will get diploma

Mrs. Roy (Shirley Pals) Johnson of Belmond will be among the 59 members of the 1960 graduating class of Iowa Methodist School of Nursing, Des Moines, to receive their diplomas at annual commencement exercises Friday night, Sept. 9.

Students will be given their diplomas by C. Orval Clark, hospital president, at the 8:00 p.m. ceremonies in First Methodist church.

More than half of the members of the class plan to join the Iowa Methodist Hospital nursing staff [illegible]

RiDiCULOUS dAy

THE WINNAH (above left) in Hattel Super Valu's best lookin' legs contest was — in the opinion of Duane Anderson, at least — Linda Bonte. Proprietor Tom Hattel nevertheless seems openly proud of his gams . . . and probably voted for himself. Duane told Tom he thought he could stand an eyebrow-pluckin' job; but Tom was so busy posing, he couldn't spare time to let his feelings be hurt. Attracted by a specimen of driftwood at Jim's Paint and Wallpaper's curbstone gift center, Mrs. William R. Johnson (yes, that's the new hubby with her) stopped to inquire about price of Mrs. Jim Cairns. The comely Mrs. J. did a bit of attention attacting herself, it might be observed, as she inspected the Ridiculous Day wares.

FOUR SIZES TOO BIG was the decision of Terry Armour (lower left), after being fitted with a pair of boots from a counter in front of Ted's Shoe shop. That's Mary (Mrs. Stanley) Moe trying to convince Terry that a bit of paper tucked here and there where it'd do the most good would make the brogans fit slick as a glove. That's Jim, better known as "Werewolf" Waddington (lower right) smiling prettily for Juanita Norris. Jim's bloodshot optics, pyorrhea-ridden lower incisors and buxom waistline (not here visible) made him just about the most horrific looking sight on Main street. Many a by-passer had trouble indentifying him — until he started to talk business; then the master merchant was promptly recognizable beneath the disguise.

Local first quarter retail sales in '60 best ever for that period

Belmond had its biggest first-quarter retail sales total in history during the period of Jan. 1-March 31 this year, data released last week by the state tax commission indicates.

Taxable sales for the period came to $1,204,000. This compares to $1,179,735 last year and $1,194,875 in 1958. These figures include taxable sales of Ris-Van equipment, which cannot legitimately be regarded as local merchandising business.

These equipment sales came to: $37,830 in the first quarter of this year, $49,207 in 1959 and $42,930 in 1958. With these amounts deducted, the adjusted retail sales totals for the three first quarters stand at: $1,166,170 for this year, $1,130,528 for 1959, and $1,151,945 for 1958.

Belmond's actual retail gain of more than $65,000 over the January-March quarter of 1959 was better than shown by competing trade centers of this vicinity. Clarion, Eagle Grove, Garner and Forest City all showed declines in sales.

Clarion's first-quarter retail sales total of $1,500,700 was $21,600 less than a yer ago; Eagle Grove's $1,495,350 was below 1959's by the small margin of $1,750.

Garner's January-March sales of $1,028,800 were $9,150 below the Hancock county seat's first quarter of '59; and Forest City, with retail sales of $1,241,600, experienced a drop of approximately $12,000.

Rural Wright county, which encompasses all sales outlets except those in Belmond, Clarion and Eagle Grove, enjoyed a modest increase in taxable retail business over the first quarter of 1959. The January-March figure for this year was $781,250, up $15,260.

Thanks mainly to Belmond's gain, Wright county's total retail sales for the first quarter were $17,050 more than in the first quarter of '59. That made the aggregate $4,983,500. Auto sales in the county — not included in the retail tax figures — showed quite a drop. The $511,200 paid for new vehciles was $168,050 under the sales total for the same period in 1959; and the number of units dropped from 244 last year to 206 this year.

Master's degree to Daryl Boelman

Daryl Boelman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Will J. Boelman, received his Master's degree in education Thursday evening of last week during the commencement exercises at Colorado State college, Greeley, Colo.

Daryl's mother and his sister Ruth went to Greeley on Tuesday evening of last week to be present for the exercises. Mrs. Boelman returned home Saturday. Ruth accompanied Daryl, his wife and two daughters to Albuquerque, N. M., to visit Mrs. Daryl Boelman's parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. I. Candelaria.

They will return here this week and then Daryl and family will return to Austin, Minn., where he is a grade school teacher.

RELATIVES SEE PAT SMITH AS PROFESSIONAL DANCER

Mrs. Clifford Johnson, Jack Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Quigley went to St. Louis, Mo., Wednesday and Thursday of last week to visit Pat Smith. Pat is now a professional dancer with the St. Louis Municipal Opera company and has been performing since the first of June. The local group saw the operetta, "Red Mill," in which Pat had a part.

MONOLOGIST COMING

Beatrice Swanson Chesebrough, author and professional monologist and humorist, will present a performance next Monday in the library basement under the auspices of the Federated Women's club. Members of the club's American Home Group will serve as hostesses. Mrs. Chesebrough will appear in a skit, "Laughter with a Lift," presenting original character sketches in costume.

$25 makes sunshine bright

Bright as the sun shone for everyone Tuesday afternoon, the sunshine was a bit brighter for Mrs. Eugene Nelson — for she was the happy winner of $25 in Cash Gift Day currency. She said she had missed having a winner by just a digit or two on several occasions, but this was the first time an award had actually come her way. Another 11 lucky numbers were in circulation but weren't turned in. The same amount of $400 in CGD prizes will be available Tuesday of next week, divided into the customary eight $25 prizes at 2:00 p.m. and four $50's at 3:00 o'clock.

Soldier arrested on OMVI charge

Sgt. James A. Brown, 39, a soldier stationed at Fort Riley, Kans., was arrested here Friday night by Patrolman Jerry Kramer and charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

He was hailed before Justice of the Peace Cecil Winbigler for preliminary hearing, who bound the defendant over to the grand jury and set his bond at $500.

Brown was held in the county jail at Clarion until Monday evening, when bond was arranged for him and he was released. He was scheduled to appear before Judge Harvey Uhlenhopp in district court yesterday, but was expected to enter a plea via counsel.

ATTENDS CHURCH PARLEY

Howard Pals, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick D. L. Pals, last Tuesday through Sunday attended the constituting convention of the Luther League of the newly-organized body, The American Lutheran Church. He attended the parley at Milwaukee, Wis., as a delegate representing the young people of St. John Lutheran church.

Found not guilty in JP court case

Justice of the Peace Cecil Winbigler returned a verdict of "not guilty" when Mrs. Nellie Just was brought before him last Saturday morning on a charge of selling beer to a minor.

Because of the number of witnesses involved, it was necessary to hold the hearing at the city hall instead of Mr. Winbigler's business quarters. Statements were received from 10 persons, none of whom testified they had seen the proprietor of Nell's Place sell beer to the minor in question.

Charges had been filed by Chief of Police Ray Thompson a week before the hearing after finding a young man under the age of 21 at Nell's Place allegedly under the influence of alcohol.

City Attorney Roy Henderson was counsel for the prosecution. Attorney for the defense was Louis Schuler of Clear Lake.

Partial fair results reported—

Dows boy has champion baby beef

Roger Story of Dows showed the grand champion baby beef Tuesday at the Wright County Junior Fair, Eagle Grove, on a fine calf that earlier had been named champion of the Hereford breed. The reserve champion was a Shorthorn exhibited by Dean Eckstrom of Woolstock.

As is customary, Eagle Grove FFA boys monopolized swine honors at the fair. Grand champion market pig was entered by Kent Eckstrom, who like Dean has a Woolstock address but attends Eagle Grove High school. Reserve champion was the entry of Dean Spangler, Eagle Grove.

Champion market litter was shown by Gary Stapp and reserve champion by Gary Nerem; while the champion pen of three was shown by Kent Eckstrom and the reserve champion pen by Doug Moser — all of Eagle Grove.

Only Larry Kurtz, Clarion, broke into the Eagle Grove string of breed market pig championships with the best Landrace entry.

The other breed champions were as follows: Poland China, Dean Spangler; Hampshire, Doug Moser; Chester White, Jim Hilyard; both Berkshire and Yorkshire, Kenneth Hamer; Duroc, Kent Eckstrom; Spotted Poland China, Carroll Spangler, Jr.

In the pen-of-three competition, Dennis Hauge of the Belmond FFA won two blue ribbons and Dwight Hinman one. Dennis also had two Duroc market pigs that won blues, while Paul Hauge and Dwight Hinman each showed one blue ribbon winner.

Belmond entries won a number of blue ribbons in the baby beef show but failed to pick off any championships. Dennis Pastour and Neil Gabrielson won blues in the Shorthorn breed; Paul Rokke and Gayle Gabrielson with Herefords; Steve Hinman, Arlyn Boelman, Dave Suntken, Dwight Hinman and Neil Gabrielson with Angus entries.

Dave Suntken was one in the final field of eight selected to compete for baby beef showmanship honors.

Top showman in the swine show was Mike Moser of Eagle Grove, but winner of the beef showman championship was not yet known at press time.

Only very incomplete results were obtainable on girls' 4-H judging at the fair in time for reporting in this issue. Among honors coming to members of the Belmond Busy Bees club, however, was first place in the intermediate demonstration team contest.

On this team were Sue Wilmarth and Rochelle Fuller, whose demonstration was entitled, "Press as You Go."

Additional fair results will appear in the next issue of The Independent.

Classes will take up next Monday—

1,150 school enrollment foreseen

Approximately 40 more students than entered the classrooms of Belmond Community School district a year ago are expected to be on hand when classes for the 1960-61 year take up on Monday of next week. Predicted enrollment is 1,150, compared to 1,111 a year ago — making this year's the biggest to date.

This year's kindergarten class will be the largest individual class ever enrolled in the district, comprised of 106 first-year students.

Supt. Don Faris notes that, though the enrollment has increased, the faculty will remain the same in number as last year. Ernest Doeringsfeld will again be principal of the high school; Paul Buck, junior high; Mrs. Frances Quenett, Ramsay Elementary school; and Mrs. Lucille Chapman, the Goodell grade school.

Eleven newcomers have joined the teaching staff for the coming year: Mrs. Barbara Lancaster, whose home is Tripoli, and Beryl Tjaden of Lakota, 2nd grade; Karen Lee of McCallsburg and Mrs. Shirley (Roland) Pals of Garner, 3rd grade; Mrs. Mary Louise (William R.) Johnson, Stanhope, 4th grade; Mrs. Josephine McCoun, Mason City, 5th grade.

Linda Kay Haenny, Minneapolis, grade vocal music; Donna Bock, Shelby, girls physical education; Donald Lancaster, Dows, driver training; Darrell Staley, Hampton, vocational agriculture; and Mrs. Clair Finn, Goodell kindergarten.

Mr. Faris reports that classrooms have been refinished during the summer. Also, the school board had new windows put in six classrooms on the east side of the high school building and the brick pointed on the same side.

Other changes include the laying of blacktop on the parking lot to the north and east of the high school and extension of the sidewalk from the east entrance. The summer improvement program also saw the football stadium given a coat of paint.

Rock Island has new agent here

Russell "Buck" Beasoner, lately of Crystal Lake, on Tuesday of last week was transferred to Belmond by the Rock Island railroad to serve as station agent here. He and his family have moved into the home at 703 Fifth avenue NE.

Mr. Reasoner is a brother of Ed Reasoner ad a long-time friend of Kay Ketchum, Great Western station agent here. "Buck" and Kay 20 years ago learned telegraphy at the same time from Dale "Curly" Farran, CGW station agent at Rowan.

The two friends went to St. Paul together to take their examinations to qualify as telegraphers. After an unsuccessful wait of several months to get a CGW assignment, Mr. Reasoner accepted employment with the Rock Island.

For two years, while serving on the extra board, "Buck" served as relief operator at a number of Rock Island stations in Iowa and Minnesota. In 1942 he became station agent at Crystal Lake, a position he filled continuously until his assignment here.

His wife is the former Margaret Emerson of Rowan. They have one child, a daughter Pamela, who will be 14 next month and will enroll this fall as a Belmond High school freshman.

Master's degree to Wm. Coulson

William F. Coulson last Thursday at the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, was awarded a Master of Arts degree in mathematics education after completing a year of study there. He attended the university on a scholarship granted him by the National Science Foundation in the form of an Academic Year Institute Fellowship for high school mathematics teachers.

Witnessing the graduation ceremonies were Mr. Coulson's mother, Mrs. Robert Coulson, and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hograbe of Dows.

Mr. Coulson is a 1944 graduate of Belmond High school. After serving two years in the U. S. Navy during World War II he enrolled at Iowa State university, Ames, receiving a Bachelor of Science degree there in 1949. For three school years ending in June of 1959 he taught algebra at Bellflower High school in California.

Today (Thursday), Mr. Coulson with his wife and three sons were to leave for Edmondton, Alberta, Canada, where he has accepted a position as assistant professor of mathematics at the University of Alberta.

SUI scholarships to 'Dean Obrecht, Bill Halfwassen

DaDean Obrecht, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Obrecht, is among 62 students at the University of Iowa who will receive Activity Scholarships for the 1960-61 academic year. Also in the group is Bill Halfwassen, BHS alumnus and son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Halfwassen of Meservey.

These scholarships, according to Charles Mason, coordinator of student aid at SUI, vary in amount and are given only to a limited number of undergraduate students with above-average academic records. Both DaDean and Bill received grants of $120.

Besides high grades, the recipients must have been outstanding participants in an area of extracurricular activity, which requires special aptitude. DaDean and Bill were two out of 56 receiving awards for music. Another six got scholarships for forensics.

Desire to continue, while enrolled in the university, participation in the activity for which he has received recognition is an important consideration when a student is chosen for an Activity Scholarship.

Drake U. degree to Mrs. Chapman

DES MOINES — Lucile Chapman of Belmond is among the approximately 340 senior and graduate students scheduled to receive bachelor and master degrees from Drake University at the school's 1960 summer commencement Friday evening in the Drake fieldhouse.

Mrs. Chapman is a candidate for the bachelor of science in education degree in the college of education. Her major area of study at Drake has been social science.

She teaches in the Goodell grade school of the Belmond Community School district.

Hearing slated on re-routing 35

Luin Cox reports that a hearing is to be held Tuesday of next week before the Iowa Roads Study committee, an interim body of the 58th General Assembly, in regard to the proposed re-routing of Interstate Highway 35.

This hearing will be conducted in Room 1 of the state capital at Des Moines, starting at 1:00 p.m. All persons either for or against the proposed re-routing will be heard at that time, and Mr. Cox is hopeful that Belmond can have a good representation to support local sentiment in favor of the original route passing about 2½ miles east of this community.

At an organization meeting held earlier this summer attended by persons from Belmond and 13 other cities and towns sharing the viewpoint held here, Mr. Cox was elected as the group's secretary. Chairman of the so-called North Iowa Towns committee is H. L. Ollenburg of Garner.

Purpose of Tuesday's meeting will be to discuss re-routing of Interstate 35 to extend diagonally from its junction with Highway 20, southeast of Blairsburg, to a point slightly west of Highway 65, between Mason City and Clear Lake. The new interstate would then pass into Minnesota just west of Northwood at a point some 10 to 15 miles east of the originally planned intersection of the Iowa-Minnesota line.

No information has been supplied the North Iowa Towns committee as to how the route change would affect existing plans for routing the super-highway through Minnesota.

Mr. Cox says, "It is important that each community represented on the North Iowa Towns committee have a delegation at the hearing next Tuesday. Men from Belmond who attended the committee's organization meeting, and any others who would find it possible, are urged to go to the hearing."

He adds that transportation arrangements will be coordinated through him, and that anyone interested in accompanying the Belmond party to Des Moines should get in contact with him.

Senator D. C. Nolan of Iowa City, chairman of the roads study committee, has been advised that no less than 75 persons will attend the hearing in behalf of the North Iowa Towns committee. It is hoped that a minimum of 10 will represent Belmond.

Other communities that participated in formation of the committee protesting Interstate 35's rerouting, in addition to Belmond, were: Kanawha, Klemme, Garner, Rowan, Clarion, Dows, Forest City, Eagle Grove, Lake Mills, Goldfield, Britt, Corwith and Algona.

Break-in artists enter clinic here

Steele Memorial clinic was broken into between 2:00 and 3:00 o'clock Tuesday moring. The intruders apparently did not find what they were seeking as nothing was found missing.

Time of the break-in was quite accurately fixed by a patient in near-by Belmond Community hospital, who saw two men lurking around the south door to the clinic between the hours mentioned.

Because she was in severe pain, the patient was not alert enough to be suspicious and reasoned that the men were possibly looking for a doctor. They ripped open the south door with a crow bar to gain entrance.

Once inside, they pried open several filing cabinets, doing considerable damage to them. They did not discover the safe's location, if that was the object of their search; and the doctors' satchels were not opened. The drug room was left untouched, also.

Chief of Police Ray Thompson suggests that the intruders either gave up in disgust, or may have been frightened off when Night Officer Marvin Miller made a pass down the adjoining alley in the police ear.

The break-in was discovered by office personnel when the clinic was opened about 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning. Chief Thompson says there was little in the way of clues that might point to the interlopers' identities. They were described by the hosiptal patient as being close to six feet in height and rather slender.

CHICKEN SUPPER TUESDAY

The Women's Guild of the Reformed church at Alexander is serving a chicken supper next Tuesday evening, beginning at 5:30 o'clock.

Hospital Auxiliary seeks new goal since air-conditioning now assured

Final touches are being put on plans for the annual Hospital Appreciation Day project of the Belmond Community Hospital Auxiliary, which will be held on Labor Day. It will, as customary, be conducted at the city park.

Because of developments in the past year, the auxiliary will have a new objective for its fund-raising instead of the hospital air-conditioning that has been it goal for the past several years.

Approximately $2,000 was raised by the auxiliary to apply toward the air-conditioning project. Then some months ago, a gift of $3,500 was pledged to the hospital for the same purpose by Oscar Jacobson, for many years a Belmond merchant; and the Luick Memorial trustees agreed to cover the balance of the project's cost of an estimated total of $8,000.

By the time the funds for air-conditioning were assured, it was too late in the season for installation this year. Present plans call for letting contract at a time early next year that will permit installation of the air-conditioning next spring.

This train of events leaves the auxiliary with the need for selecting another worthwhile purpose for which it can spend its funds in the hospital's behalf. Thought is being given to the matter, but the choice of a new objective has not yet bee made.

As was done two years ago, General Mills employees are coordinating their annual Labor Day celebration with the Hospital Appreciation Day plans. This assures excellent support of the auxiliary's various concessions as well as providing the GMI families with ready-made fun for the day.

Members of the auxiliary will be asked to supply food and other items essential to carrying out the day's program. An important element in the day's success will, as in the past, be the contribution of food or prize items or cash donations by non-members. Mrs. P. A. Rietz will be glad to discuss with non-members what they might do to help out.

Mrs. Selma Hanson has offered her home as a collection point at which Goodell members may leave items they are contributing toward the Appreciation Day program.

Further details regarding the fund-raising fun event will be published next week.

St. Olaf church holds Nelson Day

The St. Olaf church members on Sunday observed "Herbert Nelson Day." This is an annual affair to raise money for the support of the Nelson family in the mission field. This day is usually held in November; but since the Nelsons are in this community on furlough the day was held now.

The morning sermon was preached by Mr. Nelson.

Church members and friends met together for a pot luck dinner at noon.

A reception service was held in the afternoon.

Final rites held for Mrs. Whelan

Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Methodist church for Mrs. Tom Whelan, who died Sunday at the age of 70. Rev. M. L. Jones officiated and burial was in the Belmond cemetery. Fulton Funeral Home was in charge.

Pallbearers were Otis Nelson, Harold Shobe, Lawrence Gealow, Gordon Hildebrand, Alfred Stadtlander and Ernest Doeringsfeld.

Grace Crystal Hartwig was born Feb. 26, 1890, at Meservey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hartwig. She attended school and grew to womanhood there. On Oct. 30, 1915 she was married to Thomas Whelan.

They became the parents of three children: Loren, now of Clear Lake; Mrs. Luther (Mary) Proger, Jr., and Dwight of Belmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Whelan moved to Belmond after their marriage.

In addition to her husband and the three children, Mrs. Whelan is survived by a stepson, Roy Whelan of Long Beach, Calif; also four grandchildren and one great granddaughter.

Besides her parents, she was preceded in death by three brothers.

THAT JAUNTY PLUME in Ellis Elliott's aluminum chapeau (above left) was an accurate barometer of the hardwareman's spirits as business at his sidewalk emporium maintained a satisfactorily brisk gait throughout the day Saturday. Making a purchase is attractive, young Mrs. Steve McLaughlin as her 10-month-old son Shawn looked on. Transacting a jewelry sale is Russell "Cuddles" Dougherty (above right), his customer being a traveler through Belmond who was so intrigued by the strange antics on Main street that he felt compelled to stop and investigate.

CHICAGO'S MAXWELL ST. never did a livelier business then Main street's sidewalk merchants on Ridiculous Day. While most merchandise moved well, in a few cases very extra-special bargains — for some strange reason — found few takers. These tables in front of Anthony's (below left) were a popular shopping oasis throughout the day, being well lined with customers most of the time. Policewoman Kathy Dorr (below right), at P&G grocery, occasionally had to straighten out a customer for pawing the merchandise, Larry Ackerman being the offender here.

Bronco drills began yesterday—

61 grid candidates issued suits

• • • • • •

Sixty-one football candidates, including seven returning lettermen, drew equipment last Friday and Saturday in preparation for the start of BHS gridiron practice that was to get underway yesterday. A year ago, squad personnel numbered 51 in all and an even dozen veterans were back.

Players available to Coach Rich Koolbeck who lettered last fall are Dennis Anderson, Mike Armour, Jerry Jenison, Bob Stadtlander, Bob Finn and Bob Lee, all seniors; and Vernon Pastour from the junior ranks.

Seventeen seniors are on the initial squad roster, but only 11 juniors. Because of the limited talent available from the junior class, Coach Koolbeck predicts that several sophomores will stand a chance to get in considerable varsity action if they prove ready for it.

This year's sophomore class, with 21 candidates, accounts for one of the largest turn-outs from a single class in BHS history. Twelve freshmen were issued suits.

Seniors, in addition to the lettermen, are Robbie Courson, Bob Whipple, Miran Kling, Jay Mennenga, Kirk Cunningham, Roger Meyer, Robert Sheriff, Richard Henn, Ronnie Schroeder, John Dannewitz and Tom Middleton.

Koolbeck predicts that several of these boys may "come into their own" this fall and prove of real help in the building of a respectable team.

Juniors besides Pastour are: Merrill Kalkwarf, Randy Braner, Larry Hawley, Bill Heinzig, Richard Lee, Samuel Johnson, Gary Luick, Alvis Smith, Mike Dillon and Jeff McKinney.

Also Randy Brandmeyer, Sammy Davis, Steve Schroeder, Roger Henn, Dallas Hopkey, Mike Luick, George Riekens, Dave McNeal, Allen Koppernagel, Dave Lieberknecht and Jerry Hanson.

The dozen freshmen advancing from the junior high ranks are: Larry Ackerman, Dennis McNulty, Randy Thayer, Bob Flanagan, Doug Stoffer, Ronnie Sheriff, Philip Olson, Jim Ayers, Dudley Bonte, Terry Armour, Tim Courson and Jon Oberhauser.

A SWITCH IN PANTS between these two members of the Belmond High school football squad very clearly wouldn't work. At left, Raymond "Red" Roberts holds up for size the pants issued last Saturday to fellow freshman Roger "Tiger" Henn — and vice versa. "Big Red" measures better than 6-1 in height and tips the beam at a solid 175. "Tiger" is a scant 4-11 in height and weighs about 100 pounds. Coach Rich Koolbeck issued uniforms to 61 candidates and expected several more to be on the roster before actual practice began yesterday.

Coach Koolbeck made it clear to all candidates as he was issuing equipment that he will [illegible] expect conscientious observance of all training rules and that violators will be requested to turn in their uniforms. He regards that A-1 physical condition played [illegible] part in the exceptional success enjoyed by Bronco athletes during the 1959-60 school year.

This season's gridiron slate includes just eight games, four at home and four away. The Broncos will open their card at Clarion on Sept. 9 and their first home game will be the Friday following, when they will play host to the Osage Green Devils.

Northwood's Vikings, who are expected to be much tougher this year than last, will be the Broncs' homecoming opponent on Oct. 14.

Following is the complete schedule:

Sept. 9 — Clarion, there
Sept. 16 — Osage, here
Sept. 23 — Garner, here
Sept. 30 — Buffalo Center, there
Oct. 7 — Britt, here
Oct. 14 — Northwood here (Homecoming)
Oct. 21 — Forest City, here
Oct. 28 — Lake Mills, there

Roger Pals takes new coaching job at Safford, Ariz.

Roger Pals with his wife and two sons visited last weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Pals — their last visit here in some time, as Roger has accepted a coaching position at Safford, Ariz., and will leave for there tomorrow from Des Moines.

An Iowa State Teachers college graduate in 1951, Roger has for the past eight years been on the Manchester High school coaching staff. For three years he has been head basketball coach, as well as being an assistant in football and track.

At Safford, a community of 8,000 population, Roger will be head basketball coach and assistant in football. He says that Safford High was in the state championship basketball tournament last school year.

This summer, Roger has been taking graduate work at Drake university and plans to continue summer study to obtain a Master's degree. His wife went to Safford to obtain a house for them and returned highly enthusiastic over their home-to-be. The Pals' sons are Steve, age 4½, and Eric, two years old.

Rain brings delay in softball meets

Rain last Thursday and Friday made necessary postponement of all but four games in the Wright county 4-H championship softball tournaments that were scheduled at Woolstock.

Play in the girls and the boys junior tourneys reached the final round, but the senior boys will have to start from scratch when action is resumed today (Thursday).

In the junior boys meet, the Pleasant Pioneers downed the Dayton Dynamiters and the Woolstock Junior Stockmen took the measure of the Vernon Victors. The winners are to meet for the title at 1:00 p.m.

At the same hour on a different diamond, the Dayton Dandies — who trimmed the Wall Lake Wee Women — take on the Woolstock Willing Workers, who eliminated the Iowa U-Go-I-Go team in the girls tournament.

Action scheduled for 11:00 o'clock this morning was to find the senior Pleasant Pioneers clashing with the Woolstock Junior Stockmen; and the Liberty Pathfinders crossing bats with the Iowa Hawkeyes. The senior finals are slated for 2:45 p.m.

14 Soil Bank contracts in effect in this county

Jack G. Masters, office manager of the Wright county ASC office, today reminded farmers with land in the soil bank conservation reserve of their continuing responsibility to refrain from using this land for grazing or harvesting any crop from it during the contract period.

"Even though we are not authorized to take new land into the conservation reserve," Mr. Masters said, "there has been no change in the regulations concerning the land retired from production under existing contracts."

"The farmer is being paid an annual rental for compliance with his conservation reserve contract and in many cases has already received his payment for a part of the cost of establishing a conservation practice on the land. In return, he is obligated to exercise his responsibility of withholding the land from production for the life of the contract."

There are 14 conservation reserve contracts in effect in Wright county, involving a total of 1,287 acres of cropland. Of these contracts, 11 are "whole farm" contracts, covering all the cropland on the farm. Some of this land will be held out of production through 1969.

Nationally, there is a total of about 28.6 million acres in the conservation reserve in 48 of the 50 states. This acreage involves part or all of the cropland on about 305,000 farms, which have a total farmland acreage of 96.1 million acres or nearly 10 per cent of the total U. S. acreage in farms. In Iowa alone, ther are 7,701 contracts covering a total of 662,634 acres.

The conservation reserve program provides for limiting the production on the participating farms. In addition, new land may not be brought into production on these farms.

On all participating farms the acreage normally used for the production of crops must be reduced. On farms that have all cropland in the program, all the acreage is withdrawn from crop production.

TB case finding survey launched in Wright county

"Tuberculosis is an infectious disease — no matter what kind of drugs they may find to cure it, or no matter how old or how young you are: TB is passed on to thers, just like a head cold or chicken pox," observes Mrs. A. B. Parsons of Eagle Grove, president of the Wright County Tuberculosis and Health association.

To discover who may have tuberculosis in this community, the association is sponsoring a case-finding program now in progress.

"The case-finding program is called a 'contact program,' because Mrs. Alice Alleman, R. N., of Eagle Grove, public health nurse, is working in Wright county in an effort to find those who have become infected with TB from a patient who has active tuberculosis," says Mrs. Parsons.

Recent statistics show that in Iowa — and in much of the rest of the nation — the greatest number of new cases sof tuberculosis are found among men between the ages of 55 to 59, and among women about 10 years younger. And each new case of tuberculosis originated from someone who had the disease in an active form.

Unlike pneumonia or heart disease, tuberculosis does not suddenly make a person ill. The germs have been breathed in and lodge in the lungs. A person may never know the time he first had the illness in his body, for TB is a silent disease.

A special skin test, called the tuberculin test, will show the TB germs, tubercle bacilli, are in the body. The family physician and the public helath nurse make a team working with the 'contact' program and the tuberculin testing phase of it. The doctor advises the nurse of persons he knows who may have been in contact with an active case of TB. The nurse interviews these persons and members of the family, urging them to have the tuberculin skin test done at the doctor's office.

If there is a positive reaction to the skin test, it does not mean a person has tuberculosis. The family physician recommends persons to have a chest X-ray at the time the mobile X-ray unit comes to the community.

The Practical Value of Buying where You Live

For instance . . . meditate for a minute on what a comfort it is to have people around you. Particularly people like doctors, plumbers, druggists, firemen, preachers, mechanics, taxpayers, and the like.

These all come with towns. Towns come with business. Your business. Every nickel you spend in some other town helps to send some of these handy people away from here.

Maybe it even helps to eliminate YOUR job. Certainly it decreases the profits on whatever business you are in, and reduces the value of any property you may own in this area.

We're social critters, and depend on each other for many things. But when you scratch somebody else's back, be sure he stands where he can scratch yours in turn.

It Pays to Buy where You Live

THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE

GOP Provided Space Leadership

The Republicans launched U S in Space Exploration with 19 satellites

In March, 1960, the U S fired into space a probe that traveled farther from the earth than any other object ever launched by man The probe, Pioneer V, continues to broadcast back information needed to plan for space travel by human beings These broadcasts are the longest transmissions ever achieved

The space program, started under Republicans, has launched more satellites and space probes than Russia. We lead in numbers by 19 successful launchings to six achieved by the USSR. Still in orbit or in space are 10 U. S. vehicles and four Russian.

The Truman-era lag in research on U S rocket engines permitte dthe Russians to launch larger satellites, because the longer Russian development program produced first generation rockets with greater thrust But speeding to completion in the U S are rocket engines which will develop more thrust than any now in use

ISU ag. engineer offers advice on wet corn storage

Some corn in Wright county fields could be late in maturing this fall, according to County Extension Director Aaron R. Bowman. He says that with corn that wasn't at least 75 per cent silked out at the end of the first week in August, there's an even chance — based on past weather experience — that it will be frosted before it matures, with a reduced corn yield as a result.

The average killing frost date for this area is about Oct. 1.

Bowman says that Agricultural Engineer Larry Van Fossen of Iowa State university suggests this indicates some farmers must plan now for drying corn or storing moist corn to avoid serious losses at harvest time.

If you already have plenty of crib space, Van Fossen says, all you need to do is install unheated air drying equipment in your present cribs or bins.

If you will need more storage space, Van Fossen suggests you select it on the basis of what you you are going to do with the corn. If you will feed all your corn, high moisture corn storage will be best, particularly if you feed cattle. Remember, you ordinarily can't sell high-moisture corn.

If you're going to sell some corn, use bin-type storage, shell the corn and dry it. Van Fossen says a silo for high-moisture corn or a bin for storing shelled corn will cost about the same — sometimes as little as 25 to 30 cents per bushel of space. This is about half the cost of the cheapest cribs for ear corn.

As a rule of thumb, if you're to store up to 10,000 to 12,000 bushels of shelled corn in a bin, Van Fossen says, you can probably dry it best with a bin drying system. If you have more than 12,000 bushels, you'd better figure on using a batch drier, he adds.

Once you equip your farm for drying high-moisture corn or storing it as high-moisture corn, Van Fossen points out, you will always have the advantage of being able to harvest corn early. You save field losses and you're able to get livestock in to glean earlier. Then you can still have time for fall plowing before bad weather.

County Extension Director Bowman says that for specific instructions on drying or storing high-moisture corn he can furnish you any or all of the following publications on request, at his office in Clarion: United States Department of Agriculture bulletin 333, "Drying Corn with Heated Air;" USDA bulletin 334, "Drying Corn with Unheated Air;" Iowa State University multiliths, A. E. 913, "In-Storage Drying of Shelled Corn" and A. E. 915, "Batch Drying Shelled Corn."

L. Schipull made member of Wright FHA committee

Appointment of Loren J. Schipull as a member of the Wright county Farmers Home Administration county committee was announced this week by John J. Govern, the agency's county supervisor serving Franklin, Hamilton, Hardin and Wright counties.

Mr. Schipull operates his father's farm located southeast of Renwick and is engaged in an extensive cattle feeding and hog program. He is a member of the Boone Valley School board as well as being active in various form organizations.

Two other members make up the three-member committee which works with the county supervisor to see that the best possible use is made of the agency's farm credit service program consistent with local farmers' needs.

The other two members are Hubert C. Hiemstra of Clarion and Hiram B. Vanderlip of Dows. Each member is appointed for a three-year term. Mr. Schipull succeeds Dean W. Moser of Eagle Grove, whose term expired this year.

The committee determines the eligibility of individual applicants for all types of loans. It also reviews borrowers' progress and aids the county supervisor in adapting the agency's loan policies to conditions faced by farmers in this area. Members are selected and appointed so that, so far as possible, different areas or neighborhoods are represented.

The Farmers Home Administration makes annual or intermediate term loans to farmers who need adequate funds to buy equipment and livestock, and longer term loans to build or repair houses and other essential farm buildings, and to purchase or improve land suitable for family-type farm operations.

DARREL NEESE MANAGER OF ROWAN BRANCH BANK

A newcomer to Wright county's banking fraternity is Darrel J. Neese, formerly of Bode, who has been appointed office manager of the Rowan branch of the Wright County State bank of Clarion.

His appointment was effective as of Monday of last week, the date which marked the resignation of his predecessor, Larry Melhus. The latter has accepted a position as cashier of the Ackley State bank.

For the past several years, Mr. Neese has been assistant cashier of the Bode State bank. A native of Stanhope and graduate of Webster City Junior college, Mr. Neese served a three-year "hitch" in the Marine corps and then was a state income tax auditor for two years before entering banking.

County obtaining food in surplus

According to Margaret Bailey, director of welfare for Wright county, surplus commodities are to be available in this county again for distribution this fall to eligible families and individuals.

Commodities that will be distributed are: dried milk, rice, corn meal, dried eggs, flour, navy beans and lard. Recipes will be distributed suggesting ways of using the dried eggs.

Families and individuals in public assistance groups will automatically receive these commodities. Others wishing to participate may make application to the welfare office, which will determine their eligibility.

GOD'S FLOWER GARDEN

Sometimes we can't quite understand
Our Great Creator's way,
When he takes a life so young
And leaves one withered, old and gray;
Whose life work seems finished,
Perhaps is waiting for the call;
While that life so young and tender
Held so much here for us all.
Then sometimes we get to thinking
Perhaps this world down here below,
Is just a flower garden,
Where God's flowers live and grow.
And perhaps when God is lonely,
Like us, He loves to roam
In His garden, gathering flowers,
Just to beautify His home.
Tho' He takes the full-bloom flowers,
Drooped and withered that need His care;
Still He needs a bud or blossom,
To scatter with them, here and there.
So He takes a few choice blossoms,
Just the rarest He can find,
And because God needs them up in Heaven,
Must comfort loved ones left behind.

Missed so much by his wife and children, parents and brother. 47t1

Constance Hill and Norman Guetzke spoke nuptial vows on August 14th

Miss Constance Aljean Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Henry E. Hill, and Norman David Guetzke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar O. Guetzke of Oregon, Wis., exchanged wedding vows at St. Olaf Lutheran church on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 14, at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Oscar Laaveg performed the double-ring ceremony.

The beauty of the chancel was enhanced by two large floral arrangements of white gladioli and blue Fuji mums.

Guests were shown to their seats by Erwin Hill and Harold Hill, brothers of the bride, Rollo Guetzke of Milwaukee, Wis., brother of the groom, and Don Harmon of Guttenberg, college friend of the groom. Preceding the ceremony the altar candles were lighted by Erwin and Harold Hill.

Sharon Hoople of Minneapolis, Minn., college friend of the bride, played appropriate nuptial music and accompanied Lois Hofstad of Albert Lea, Minn., as she sang "O Perfect Love" and " O Lord at Thine Altar "

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of silk oranza over taffeta. The bodice was styled with a scoop neckline edged with embroidered Alencon lace and featured shirred sleeves and mitts extending over the wrists. The very bouffant skirt, trimmed with lace and featuring a large bow in the back, extended into a chapel train.

The finger-tip veil of silk illusion fell from a cap of seeded pearls and sequins. The bride's only jewelry consisted of pearl earrings, a gift from the groom.

Her bouquet was a white orchid surrounded by blue tulle and white streamers extended over the edge of her white Bible, which was a gift from the groom.

Phyllis Engebretson of Black River Falls, Wis., a teaching companion of the bride, was maid of honor. Carolyn Nagel, of Lime Springs, roommate of the bride, was bridesmaid.

They were attired in dresses of blue silk organza over full, ballerina-length, taffeta skirts. The fitted bodice of organza over lace were styled with scoop necklines and gently folded satin cummerbunds accented the waistline.

They wore blue circular veils attached to headbands of net and taffeta They had white gloves and carried colonial bouquets of blue and white carnations.

Emmett Gaunitz, of Minneapolis, Minn., college roommate of the groom, was best man. David Egeland of Janesville, Wis., friend of the groom, served as groomsman. All the men in the wedding party wore white dinner jackets, black trousers, and carnation boutonnieres, the groom's being a blue carnation.

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother wore a blue nylon acteate dress with white trim. The groom's mother wore a dress of blue silk organza. Both mothers chose blue and white accessories. Their corsages were blue and white feathered carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors. Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake frosted in white and trimmed with blue sugar bells, topped with a white satin bow and two blue wedding bells. A wreath of smilax encircled the cake.

Dining room hostesses were Mrs. Gerhard Thompson and Mrs. Leland Dorr. Punch was served by Arlene Storvik of Cambridge, cousin of the bride. Mrs. Russell Stebbins of Prentice, Wis., sister of the groom, cut and served the wedding cake with a sterling silver knife and cake server, which the bride's college society, Pi Kappa Tau, loans to its members on their wedding day.

Presiding at the coffee service were Mrs. Francis Morris, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Harry Guetzke of Beloit, Wis., aunt of the groom.

Waitresses were Dorothy Benson of Houston, Minn., Jeannine Hardtke of Winona, Minn., Alta Simonson of Preston, Minn., and Janice Mathews of Eau Claire, Wis. The firt two girls taught in Kenyon with the bride and the latter two being college friends.

$10 bill losing its prestige in American pockets

A small item in "Money-Matters, A Bulletin of Economic Interpretation" published monthly by the Institute of Life Insurance, gives some insight into this matter of inflation that may make more of an impression on the average individual than a barrelful of statistics.

It concerns the effect of inflation (and to a lesser degree, greater affluence) in the United States over the past two decades on the composition of currency in circulation.

In 1939, about one-third of $7.6 billions of currency outstanding was in $20 and $100 bills. Today, approximately a half of the currency in circulation in these two denominations — AND the total amount outstanding has more than quadrupled, coming now to a total of $32 billion.

The $20 bill, alone, accounts at present for just under a third of all the currency "at work," and has supplanted the $10 for No. 1 rank in this regard. It doesn't take a mastermind to suspect from this that it takes over $2 today to buy what a dollar did only two decades ago; which is just another way of saying that the cost of living is DOUBLED what it was in '39.

If you're in the current of commerce, with a chance to earn fairly large batches of those half-price $20 bills, you're not hurting too badly. But if you are a retired person, trying to live on what 20 years ago seemed an adequately big pile of $10 bills arduously saved when they were worth twice as much, you're in trouble.

Efforts of the Republican party to hold the federal fiscal line by balancing the budget and avoid harmful deficits have been consistently blocked by the Democratic majority in Congress. Moreover, the Democratic platform of 1960 is promising "more of everything" at the certain price of greater inflation, if that is what the nation votes for this fall.

That's something for the voting public to be mulling over between now and November, if they're tired of seeing a $20 bill struggle futilely to do the job of a self-respecting 10-spot.

Loveless' interest in elderly just a little late

Last Saturday at Hotel Savery a meeting was held that might have been highly noteworthy, had it been held several years ago. It was a gathering of the Governor's Committee on Aging. The idea is commendable; but the timing makes it apparent for what it is — a belated appeal by Gov. Herschel Loveless for the support of Iowa's senior citizens in his contest for the U. S. Senatorship.

A letter-to-the-editor that appeared in last Thursday's Des Moines Register, written by a retired minister from Mount Vernon who is a member of the Governor's Committee on Aging, asked "What couldn't 400,000 older folks do for their own community and state in service?"

The writer also observed, "Gov. Herschel Loveless is much interested in the welfare of the senior citizens of our state."

We would beg the writer's consideration — and that of other Iowa senior citizens — of the fact that the Governor's interest in the elderly seems much more keen when they represent 400,000 votes in this election year than earlier, when their needs were no less real.

That the problem is one that warrants very serious thought was suggested in the resolutions drafted at the Wright county Republican convention in July. One of the resolutions urged broad study of Iowa legislation to benefit the aged, with the purpose of making it better fulfill its purpose.

We cite this as evidence that it is an issue that ALL citizens should be facing. Iowa has a larger ratio of over-65 residents than any other state in the union. They DO represent a largely unused asset that could be of great value to the state.

But it is plain demagoguery on the part of Governor Loveless to "come alive" on this problem less than three months before facing the electorate in his campaign for the Senatorship. It will behoove our senior citizens to keep this in mind when measuring the sincerity of Mr. Loveless' interest in their plight.

Public owed full briefing on conservation plans

Perhaps a word would be in order regarding one cut made in the 1961 Wright county budget estimate (if a bit belatedly) in order that it not be misunderstood. That is the $6,460 reduction in the appropriation allowed the county conservation commission, making the amount $16,000 for 1961 — same as for the current year.

It should be emphasized that the taxpayers who prompted the cut in funds had not the slightest complaint over the general objectives of the commission. Conservation of our dwindling park sites and wildlife preserves is a worthy goal.

However, the commission had given small indication of its precise plans for the funds it sought. It has never, in fact, offered the county a detailed report of its plans or achievements.

Any body spending public funds owes the public the courtesy of keeping it informed as to how that money has been and will be spent. The public has the right to sit in judgment of the wisdom of expenditures proposed.

Insofar as we know, there have been few complaints over the commission's administration of conservation funds. But the "watchdog" taxpayers want to know where and why future expenditures are to be made. It's a reasonable request.

The conservation commission can best fulfill its function — and enjoy the maximum amount of public cooperation and support — by conscientiously keeping the public informed on its activities.

Kennedy out to buy labor's favor

The rump session of congress is developing into a desperate attempt of the democrats to be all things to all people.

Kennedy has not enjoyed the confidence of labor since the racket busting activites in the labor-union investigation. Hence Kennedy is now sponsoring legislation he would have opposed if he was not a candidate for president and needed the support of the labor voting block

His present sponsorship of the $1.25 minimum wage law and his support of legislation permitting secondary boycotts in the building industry are two cases in point.

THE $1.25 WAGE LAW SOUNDS great to labor. What it will do is boost the price of everything anyone buys. It will cause a 25 per cent boost in inflation, which will rob the widows, pensioners, and everyone of the value of their dollar.

It baldly assumes everyone is worth that amount. Actually what happens when the minimum wage law is boosted is that only the fittest survive! Employers can no longer afford to hire the marginal workers. They lose their jobs simply because they can not produce.

That's what happened when the law boosted the wage from 75 cents to $1 not too many years ago. As a result those who were employed for odd jobs and at non-technical jobs had to go because their production didn't meet the expense.

THE YOUNG WORKER AND the older worker are the ones who are hurt; the young man because he hasn't experience — and can't get it without a job — and the older man who is slowing down.

Kennedy, who never had to really get out and work with the four hundred millions behind him, doesn't know the facts of life, and he is so ambitious to become president that he is taking the road of inflation to please a few labor bosses who control labor votes.

It's a sad commentary on the quality of a candidate for the highest office in the United States. It smacks of "buying" the votes of labor at the expense of continued inflation that robs the rest of the country — particularly the widows and pensioners on fixed incomes, not the millionaires! — Algona Advance

Someone's got to do it

We are pleased that we have two Third District party officials here in Iowa Falls.

Mrs. L. L. (Babe) Welden is GOP committee woman for the Third Congressional district. She has held that job previously and has just been re-elected.

Leonard E Hoffman, Ellis township farmer, has just been named committeeman by Democrats in the Third District.

People are sometimes saying, "Oh I wouldn't want to get in active politics . . . . there are all sorts of 'deals' and things like that."

The implication is that really nice people don't get involved in politics. So we are glad to have Leonard and Babe, two thoroughly fine, well-respected persons elected to these important posts in the state party organizations.

Perhaps they will encourage others to do what is clearly the most important thing that can occur in our kind of society — make our representative form of government work more effectively. — Iowa Falls Citizen

● The issue is quite clearly drawn between the two parties. The voters this fall will have a chance to choose between giving the government more control over saving and spending and putting main reliance on private enterprise operating in a favorable political atmosphere for individual saving and investment. — Cedar Rapids Gazette

On buying votes

The President has declared that this frantic spending spree threatens to do away with the entire four billion dollar surplus his January budget message anticipated for fiscal year that started last July 1.

What a shame. What lack of statesmanship.

How unfortunate that there are so many in the House and the Senate who have so little concern for their nation's fiscal position that they will place a personal desire for more votes above what is for the best interest of the country as a whole.

How long would they last if they ran their own personal businesses that way, continuing to spend more than they take in? — Lewis Warren In Oelwein Register

Tight quarters

A recent comment in this column concerning the habit of young ladies crowding their gentlemen friends far to the left in their cars, brought an answer from one young feminine reader.

She says that since reading this comment she now sits over one-half inch.

This flattered us to some extent until we suddenly realized she did not say in WHICH direction this one-half inch movement took place.

IF SHE MEANT EVEN FURTHER to the left, which well she might, all we can say is that her young man will henceforth walk with a decided list to starboard.

Next time we see him we will check his progress with interest.

This is a matter in which we can refer, in more ways than one, to the "power of the press." — Sheldon Mail

● Continuing to demonstrate increased interest in political activities and assuming their share though contributions and giving of time and effort to campaigning, American citizens can climax this interest by voting in such numbers this November that all previous records for ballots cast will fall by the wayside. — Webster City Freeman-Journal

ELIZA'S HAVING TROUBLE

WITH YE ED

WHAT'S RIDICULOUS?—

Last week's "ridiculous front page" proved a striking commentary on the gullibility of the public, incidently. We tried to make the stories so absurd that there would be no chance of their acceptance as fact.

But . . . it was amazing, if not startling, how long some of our readers were in tumbling to the fact they were being "had." Ye Ed suspects it will be some time before some of the "news" in those silly stories ceases to go the rounds as semi-truth.

It goes to show how readily a ridiculous bit of rumor can be accepted as solemn fact.

We hope, when all was said and done, that you enjoyed the nonsense with which Belmond's first Ridiculous Day was accompanied. If you got a few laughs out of it, plus some bargains, it fulfilled its function. If it provided enough enjoyment that you'd like to see it repeated, why not let the Main street storekeepers know. They aim to please.

THAT PARKING RAMP—

Although that "ridiculous" story regarding the construction of a parking ramp on the site of the old Hub garage was stricty "'way out," it prompted a lot of Independent readers to breathe an approving "amen" before they caught up with the truth.

Of course, a "ramp" is for cities with about 100,000 more population than Belmond has at present — but the idea of additional parking space seemed agreeable with everybody.

What prompts us to comment on the matter is the fact that Algona is making movements toward the acquisition of a similar property for establishment of a municipal parking lot. It was, until early this summer, occupied by an ancient hotel that was no beauty spot.

A fire wiped out the hotel, and . . . presto . . . a useful property was created. We're not suggesting anyone touch a match to the former garage structure. But we are prompted to observe that, like death too frequently takes "the wrong people," fires usually afflict the wrong structures.

We know we're joined with a lot of other Belmond citizens who devoutly hope that the day won't be too far distant when the old Hub WILL no longer blight the west approach to our business district.

OLDEST NATIVE-BORN?—

We wonder if Mrs. R. C. Bras isn't the oldest native born resident of the Belmond communty. She was 88 last July. Although she has not lived her entire life here, she was born in the new settlement of Belmond in 1872 and has spent most of her years here. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Luick. If there any older native-born residents, we'd be interested to hear who they are.

A TREE GROWS IN SENECA —

Ye Ed has always been pretty wary about writing editorials intended to educate, elucidate or remonstrate, where teen-agers are concerned. In the first place, we figure if they won't listen to their parents they sure as heck won't listen to us; and secondly, those who DO attend to their parents' advice need none off of us.

About the only time we abandon this policy is to toss out a few platitudes occasionally at graduation time; and neither we nor the kids take this very serious.

We know another editor who, beyond doubt, has adopted this same policy on the heels of a recent experience. . . . It seems that at Seneca, S. C., tradition has it that high school seniors celebrate their graduation by indulging in a bit of more-or-less innocent deviltry.

Thinking to inspire the graduates of 1960 to a new-found seriousness, Editor Paul League of the Seneca Journal urged that they forego painting of water towers and other acts of customary vandalism in favor of some constructive act — such as planting a tree.

The morning after graduation the South Carolina scrivener found the answer to his editorial on his front lawn. Propped up by rocks and bereft of branches or foliage stood a tree.

A follow-up editorial published by our brother scribe humbly observed: "The editor deserved it. Frankly, what has an old water-tower splasher got to be lecturing a crew as smart as the Class of '60, anyhow?"

DUEAS TOP SHOWMEN—

The near monopoly of the Joe Duea family in copping showmanship honors at the North Iowa Fair was continued last week by the second and third of Joe's sprouts, 12-year-old Steven and 16-year-old Carolyn.

Their older brother, Alan, now in the U. S. Air Force, set the example by winning both junior and senior beef showmanship honors while he was a 4-H member. This year, Steven was judged top showman in the junior class and Carolyn among the seniors.

By some odd quirk of fate, the Dueas didn't pick off a grand championship THIS time. Two years ago, Carolyn had the grand champion baby beef and last year Steve did likewise.

We don't know of another clan that has won so MANY top honors showing baby beeves as this former Belmond family, now of Thornton.

Know your businessmen—

Phone count shows Belmond's still growing

• • • • • •

You might label this story of L. A. "Len" Collier's business career, "From Grunt to Group Manager in 33 Years."

In case your mastery of telephone industry lingo isn't complete, a "grunt" is a post hole digger. Not an auger — but a fellow who is adept at digging post holes with one of those long-handled shovels.

Len made his debut in the telephone business in 1927 as a "grunt." He's by no means ashamed of his humble beginning. In fact, he says defensively, "A good grunt can dig a GOOD hole faster than an auger."

Which should take care of that.

The steady rise Len has made in the Central Telephone company ranks was forecast early. He'd been "grunting" only a relatively short time when he was made timekeeper of the same construction crew for which he'd had been a digger. Since then he's climbed steadily up the ladder.

He went to Sac City with a crew that installed the first dial system to be put into use in Iowa; and when that assignment was completed, he became wire chief at Sac City, responsible for maintenance of all the company's lines and central office equipment there.

His first managerial post was at Albert City. Next he was transferred to George, then to West Salem, Wis., before his career in management was interrupted by an assignment to La Crosse, Wis., as wire chief. His duties were changed to those of district plant superintendent when La Crosse was in process of being converted to dial system.

Since La Crosse is a city of 45,000 population, this last order was not a small one; but the job was achieved in just over two years — rather bettter than par for the course.

This brings Mr. Collier up to the year 1952, which in turn brought him to Belmond as manager of the Central Telephone group that includes not only Belmond but Alexander, Coulter, Goodell, Latimer, Meservey, Rowan, Sheffield, Swaledale and Thornton.

During the passing years, Len has received periodical schooling in telephonic engineering in general and rotary dial equipment in particular. This is a "must," for such rapid strides have been made in the telephone industry that there is virtually always something more a manager needs to know in the conduct of his job.

Because of his position, Mr. Collier knew months before the 1960 census was taken here that Belmon's population would be right at the 2,500 mark. He had openly predicited as much, his calculations being based on phone use in this community.

The number of "stations" in a city or town — that is, the number of residential and business phones — is a remarkably accurate barometer of the community's growth. Because the office here has been hard pressed to keep an adequate number of lines available for its customers, Len was keenly aware of how much Belmond had grown since his arrival here eight years ago this month.

At that time, the central office equipment offered 600 lines (many of them, of course, being "party" lines). Today the number has grown to 800 — and the company will soon add 100 more. Len predicts this number will probably suffice to meet the steadily increasing demand for little more than a year.

Rural stations served by the Belmond exchange are regularly decreasing in number, but those in town are much more rapidly increasing. Manager Collier notes that the total number of Belmond stations when he came here in '52 was 1,215. On May 1 of this year, just after the census was completed, the number stood at 1,477; and in the 16 weeks between that date and last Saturday, the figure had jumped to 1,488. This would indicate a population increase of some 25 to 40 persons.

That leaves no doubt in Len's mind that the "unofficial" population count of 2,499 was a decidedly short count within a month after the final census report. In a recent three-week period, alone, 12 new families moved to Belmond!

Mr. Collier has a more than casual interest in Belmond growth and progress for a reason other than those related to his job. He is secretary of the Belmond Chamber of Commerce and in that capacity is keenly concerned with the city's continuing growth and development.

It is understandable that the same pride he used to take in being a GOOD "grunt" is now taken in management duties and in those Len performs civically.

Film Highlights

—from—

COMING ATTRACTIONS

"Authentically, thrillingly filmed in the savage heartland of Africa with the cooperation of the fierce Masai and Kikuyu tribes!" . . . There you have it — the umpteenth in the series of Tarzan spectaculars. This one, "Tarzan the Magnificent," fills the New Belmond screen Thursday through Saturday, with muscular Gordon Scott taking the title role for the fifth time in HIS series of portrayals.

When the wife of mild-manned chemistry professor finds him being kissed by a student, she's 100 per cent convinced it was no experiment. That's what lights the fuse to the antics that make "Who Was That Lady?" one of the year's most entertaining comedies. Tony Curtis, Dean Martin and Janet Leigh share top billing in this fun-fest playing Sunday through Tuesday.

Starting next Wednesday and running through Saturday, a return showing of "The Greatest Show on Earth" will give local movie-goers a chance to see once again — or make up for an earlier neglect to see — one of DeMille's greatest entertainment spectacles. it was the Academy Award "best picture" of the year it was originally released Its cast includes Betty Hutton, Cornel Wilde, Jimmy Stewart, Gloria Grahame, famed clown Emmett Kelly and a host of others, including top talent of Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey Circus.

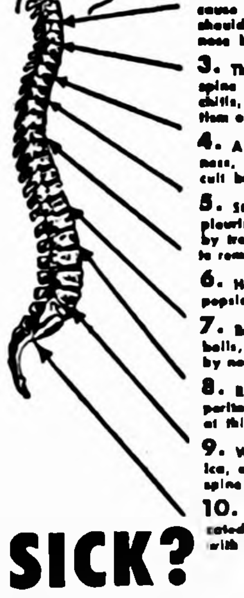
SEE WHY YOUR SPINE PLAYS SUCH AN IMPORTANT PART IN GOOD HEALTH MAINTENANCE

Find Out NOW If Yours Is a Case for Chiropractic!

The Diseases Mentioned Below Are Only a Few Which Are Caused by Vertebrae "Pinching" Nerves. Study this "Health Chart" of Chiropractic, and you will understand why more and more people are turning to Chiropractic care.



1. Slight "pinching" of nerves at this point will cause so-called headaches, eye diseases, deafness, epilepsy, vertigo, insomnia, wry or stiff neck, facial paralysis, dizziness, etc.
2. A slight nerve difficulty in this part of the spine is the cause of so-called throat trouble, neuralgia, pain in the shoulders and arms, goitre, nervous prostration, la grippe, nose bleed, disorder of gums, catarrh, etc.
3. The arrow head marked No. 3 locates the part of the spine wherein "pinched" nerves will cause so-called bronchitis, felons, pain between the shoulder blades, rheumatism of the arms and shoulders, hay fever, etc.
4. A blocked nerve at this point causes so-called nervousness, heart disease, asthma, pneumonia, tuberculosis, difficult breathing, other lung troubles etc.
5. Stomach and liver trouble, enlargement of the spleen, pleurisy and a score of other troubles, so-called are caused by troubles in this part of the spine, sometimes so light as to remain unnoticed by others except the trained Chiropractor.
6. Here we find the cause of so-called gall stones, dyspepsia of upper bowels, fevers, shingles, hiccough, etc.
7. Bright's disease, diabetes, floating kidney, skin disease, boils, eruptions and other diseases, so-called, are caused by nerves being pinched in the spinal openings at this point.
8. Regulations of such troubles as so-called appendicitis, peritonitis, lumbago, etc., follow Chiropractic adjustments at this point.
9. Why have so-called constipation, rectal troubles, sciatica, etc., when Chiropractic adjustments at this part of the spine will remove the cause?
10. A slight slippage of one or both innominate bones, located here, will likewise produce so-called sciatica together with many "diseases" of pelvis and lower extremities.

SICK?

THIS CHART CLEARLY SHOWS WHY YOU MAY BE SUFFERING!

Regardless of what your ailment is called . . . no matter how long you have suffered . . . Chiropractic care may be the exact answer to your specific health problem. Chiropractic succeeds many times after all other methods have failed.

VOL. 41 NO. 48 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER WRIGHT COUNTY, IOWA—THURSDAY, SEPT. 1, 1960 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Not in a critical vein, but simply to point out that in the scheme of things women are not cut out to be "Queen" judges, Ye Ed would like to remonstrate over an assignment lately handed his wife. While she has been under the influence of Ye Ed's aptitude for judging feminine comeliness for a couple of decades, she must still be regarded as an apprentice.

We do not wish to cast aspersions on the qualifications of her sister judges, either. Probably Ethel Brunes and Marion Oberhauser are as fit for such a chore as any women might be. And we doubt not that they judged to the best of their abilities.

So it is in all kindliness that we point out to the committee of Kanawha's Youth Activity Day celebration that they simply went to the wrong well to draw their water. If you want competent judging of youthful beauty, leave the task to men. So that a similar mistake need not be made again, the Mainstreeters offer their services for future occasions. No charge.

Maybe we AREN'T going to get that parking ramp that was so enthusiastically written about on the "Ridiculous Day" front page a couple of weeks ago — but the city fathers HAVE added quite a handful of extra parking spaces on the south side of the city park. With the old tree stumps removed and the area graveled for vertical parking, that block will now accommodate probably eight or 10 more cars than it formerly did. . . . A step in the right direction!

Credit Mount Pleasant with originating something truly "different" in the way of an annual civic celebration. That community's Midwest Old Settelers and Threshers Reunion, which will be held for the 11th year next Wednesday through Saturday, is the sort of event to set other cities and towns to wondering, "why couldn't WE have thought of that?" This year's reunion is expected to draw 135,000 persons during the four days.

Its permanent exhibits include a completely restored country school house and an old railroad depot, complete with companion engine of early vintage. The Reunion's directors have also just bought an 1891 narrow-gauge locomotive and plan to obtain a couple of old-time coaches so they can give visitors an old-fashioned train ride.

Eighty-five steam engines of almost every conceivable variety have been acquired in the past decade. Displays also include ancient autos, old threshing machines and antiques of all sorts. The whole history of threshing is portrayed through demonstrations ranging from the flailing of grain to the very latest methods of harvesting. Of special note is the fact that there are no shows, concessions, midway or commercial displays of any kind!

The early part of last week, Fred Loats hooked a nice 3-lb. northern in the river, put him on a stringer — then lost stringer and all when the fish pulled his tether loose. If it will assuage his grief any over loss of the fish, we can tell Fred how to get his stringer back, at least. On Thursday afternoon, young Gary Moore found the fish (dead) and stringer downstream a ways from where Fred had secured the stringer to the bank.

Proud parents who ordered prints of one or another of the peewee or midget baseball teams may now pick up the pictures at the Independent office. We will be placing one more order of pictures but will hold off until the end of the week to send it in. Any persons who would still like to obtain a team picture are urged to call The Independent office (331) by Saturday and let their wants be known.

It is worth a trip along Luick's Lane, west of Kirkendall Addition, these days to see the beautiful flowers displayed by most of the homes in that block. We've rarely seen such beautifully arrayed window, porch and lawn boxes (is there such a thing as a "lawn box"?). There are a number of other lovely flower gardens, including the gladioli plot of the Luther Proegers, Jr., on Seventh avenue SE. Blossoms are in their glory right now. Take a ride around town and enjoy 'em.

Meeting of NFO tomorrow evening

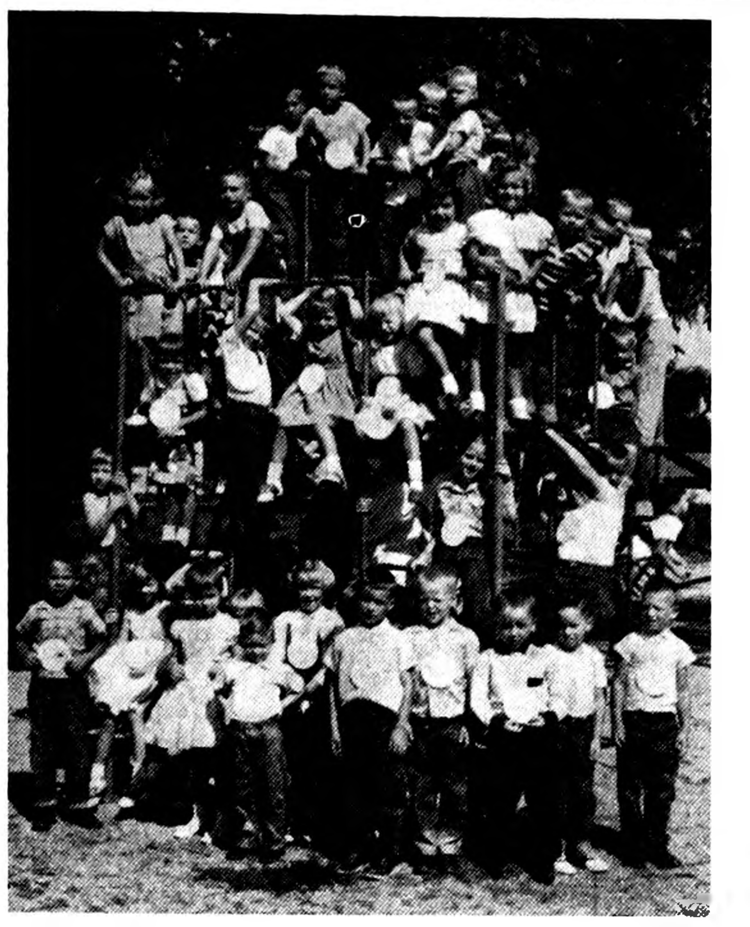
Two headline speakers will share the platform. They are Bob Casper, national vice president of the NFO from Winterset, who will discuss the aims and purposes of the organization.

Second speaker will be Phil Allen, midwest radio and television commentator from Omaha.

Many sought; none found

"Many shall seek, but few shall find," sayeth the Good Book. Quite a few were seeking Tuesday afternoon — but NONE was able to find a number good for a helping of Cash Gift Day currency. So, to the unhappiness of those who were on hand to claim the moola if their particular number was posted, the entire $400 in prize money is still intact for next week. It will be divided, again, into eight $25 bunches at 2:00 p. m. plus four bundles of $50 each at 3:00 o'clock.



THIS JUNGLE GYM-FULL of tots is the morning kindergarten class at Ramsay Elementary school — the largest half-day class the Belmond school system has ever had, but exactly matched by the afternoon kindergarteners in number. Besides the 104 first-year pupils attending class at Ramsay, another eight kindergarteners are enrolled at the Goodell school, making the BHS Class of '74 by all odds the largest in local history.

The teachers whose responsibility it is to see that the 104 Belmond kindergarten children are properly launched on their pursuit for knowledge are Mary Ann Formanek and Melva Brendel. It was Mrs. Formanek's inspiration that the ONE way The Independent's photographer might possibly get all the youngsters in one picture would be to pile 'em on the jungle gym. It worked out fine.

1st-day enrollment 1,135—

Pupil total below that expected

Belmond Community School district's first-day enrollment fell somewhat short of expectations, apparently because departure of a number of families during the summer cancelled new-family gains to a greater degree than had been anticipated.

Supt. Don Faris reports that Monday's enrollment came to 1,135, about 15 less than the school census taken this summer had indicated but 24 more than last year. One class that more than lived up to advance predictions was the kindergarten.

Already forecast as the largest ever to enroll in the Belmond district, the first-year class totalled 112 That was a half dozen more than the pre-opening guess. Both the morning and afternoon classes here consist of 52 boys and girls and another eight are enrolled at Goodell.

At the elementary level, 589 students filed into classrooms in Belmond and 84 enrolled at Goodell for a total of 673. By grades the registration ran: kindergarten — eight at Goodell and 104 at Belmond for a total of 112; 1st — 16 and 83 for 99; 2nd — 15 and 75 for 90; 3rd — 10 and 89 for 99; 4th — 12 and 82 for 94; 5th — 13 and 67 for 80; 6th — 10 and 89 for 99.

A total of 177 are in the junior high grades of 7th and 8th, the classes consisting of 88 and 89 pupils, respectively.

High school classes have a total of 285 students, divided as follows: freshman, 75; sophomore, 73; junior, 75; and senior, 62.

Macolm Shurtleff, extension plant pathologist, and Robert Davidson, extension forester, will discuss shade tree management, varieties to grow, and the various insects and diseases attacking shade trees.

Aaron R. Bowman, county extension director, says that anyone with shade trees infected with insects or diseases is invited to bring a specimen of the infected tree to the clinic for identification.

Dutch elm tree disease, its cause, symptoms, and control will also be discussed.

Guardsman tops class on grades—

Iowa Academy honor to Dan Reed

Harold Daniel "Dan" Reed of Belmond a week ago last Thursday at Camp Ripley in Minnesota was awarded the Gen. Walter L. Anderson Award for High Academic Achievement upon his graduation from the Iowa Military Academy.

This academy is an adjunct of the Iowa National Guard and entails engaging in nine weekend drills, plus attending two separate two-week summer camps. The 1960 class of 38 members was the third to graduate from the academy.

Mr. Reed's award was based on an academic average of 92.3, the highest in his class and the highest recorded by any graduate of the academy since it was set up three years ago.

He received the General Anderson Award from Gen. Ted H. Corry, who is commanding officer of the 34th Division Artillery of the Iowa-Nebraska National Guard.

Graduation from the academy makes a guardsman eligible to go before the commissioning board to be examined for a commission as a Second Lieutenant. Mr. Reed, who held a sergeant's rating in the Guard, appeared before the board on Aug. 19 and was notified on Monday of last week of his commissioning as a Lieutenant.

Also a member of the academy class was Cadet Larry Eugene Beyer, a truck driver and maintenance man employed by Ris-Van, Inc., here at Belmond. He, too, received a Second Lieutenant's commission effective Monday of last week. Mr. Reed is a local employee of the Iowa Electric Light and Power company.

Both men are members of Co. G, 1st Battle Group, 133rd Infantry of the Iowa Army National Guard, which has its headquarters at Hampton.

Next potential advancement for the two men requires attendance for two consecutive months at the Infantry Officers Basic School at Fort Benning, Ga. This step must be taken within the next three years and leads to a First Lieutenancy.

Before coming to Belmond, Lieutenant Reed put in two years of Army service with the 82nd Airborne Div., Fort Bragg, N. C., being separated in January of last year.

TOP GRADES in a class of 38 graduating a week ago last Thursday from the Iowa Military Academy brought to 2nd Lt. Dan Reed the silver saber and stand which he here displays. It is called the Gen. Walter A. Anderson Award for High Academic Achievement.

Sales data for last fiscal year given—

Tax figures reveal fast growth of Ris-Van

Rapid growth by Ris-Van, Inc., was reflected in retail sales tax figures for the fiscal year ending June 30 that were released last week by the state tax commission. The figures indicated a rise in retail trade here at Belmond of $370,800. on an increase from $5,034,500 for the fiscal year that ended June 30, 1959, to $5,405,300 for the latest tax year.

However, $197,126 of this rise is accounted for by increased sales of dealer equipment by Ris-Van. Whereas such sales amounted to only $85,695 in the 1958-59 fiscal year, the period ending last June 30 saw the comparable sales figure at $282,821.

With these amounts deducted to obtain the actual taxable sales for Belmond retail business concerns, the trade total for the 12 months that ended a year ago last June 30 stood at $4,948,805 and for the past fiscal year at $5,122,479. These figures indicate a true trade gain of $173,700.

That still indicated a very appreciable trade rise for Belmond, amounting to 3.4 per cent. Largest gain shown by any community in this area was that of Hampton, 6.1 per cent. Whether Hampton has an element in its economy that distorts its trade picture, as Ris-Van does Belmond's The Independent does not at this point know.

Clarion showed a respectable increase of 5.9 per cent in retail trade, Eagle Grove's business was up 2.7 per cent, rural Wright county gained 1.1 per cent, Garner's gain was a meager one-half per cent Forest City showed a 5.4 per cent loss from the trade total of the preceding fiscal year.

Hampton, which does more business than Clarion and Eagle Grove together, had $12,349,600 in retail sales for the latest tax year compared to $11,636,750 for the previous one, a gain of $712,850.

Clarion's trade totals for the two fiscal years were $6,393,850 up to $6,772,700, a rise of $378,850. Eagle Grove showed an increase of only $174,100 on 12-month totals that changed from $6,315,550 to $6,489,650.

Rural Wright county (all trade outlets but those in the three, major communities) had a slender gain of $46,600 on an increase from $4,128,400 to $4,170,000. Garner picked up only $26,100 more business, its comparable two years' totals being $4,853,600 and $4,879,700.

Forest City saw its taxable retail trade drop by $319,700, from $5,918,400 down to $5,598,700.

Wright county as a whole experienced a trade increase of almost a million dollars, comparing the two fiscal years. The last one produced business amounting to $22,879,150 as to the preceding's $21,895,450 — an increase of $983,700. With Ris-Van's equipment sales omitted, the increase would be reduced to $886,600.

Auto sales in this county didn't reflect the same upsurge in business as the other retail trades. Use tax collections indicated that in the last fiscal year $2,201,600 was paid for 826 vehicles. The year ending June 30, 1959, saw 872 units sold for a total price of $2,440,300, the drop being $238,700.

6th Hospital Appreciation Day—

Auxiliary to provide family fun

Several thousand dollars have been spent to the benefit of Belmond Community hospital through the proceeds of its Auxiliary's Hospital Appreciation Day. This yearly event, conducted the past several years on Labor Day, will be held in the city park next Monday. This will be the 6th annual Appreciation Day.

Although it is the only fund-raising project the Auxiliary holds it enabled the organization to apply over $2,500 on the cost of air-conditioning for the hospital that is to be installed next spring. Numerous lesser amounts have been spent on things needed by the hospital.

What the money raised this year will be spent for, women of the Auxiliary have not yet decided. But Mrs. R. H. Gowdy, Auxiliary president, offers the assurance that the hospital has numerous needs to fill and that it will not be difficult to choose a worthy one to be met.

General Mills personnel will receive tickets, purchased by company funds, to participate in the various entertainments offered as features of Hospital Appreciation Day. In addition, the Auxiliary will serve the employees and their families a plate lunch at the Veterans' Memorial hall at noon. These activities will comprise the annual General Mills family Labor Day outing and help to assure the financial success of Appreciation Day.

Heading the committee assigned to feed the General Mills crowd at noon are Mrs. Sig Helgeland, Mrs. L. M. Helland and Agnes Rikansrud. Some special games will also be set up for the GMI fun-fest and prizes to go to the winners are being collected from Auxiliary members by Mrs. A. C. Lieuwen.

Heading the committee that will conduct the public lunch stand at the park are Mrs. Donald Markham and Mrs. Leland Jenison.

Recreation at the park will take the form of sports car rides, go-kart rides, pony rides, a white elephant fish pond and two cake walks, to be held at 2:30 and 7:00 p. m.

Mrs. Ray Borgstrom is chairman in charge of arrangements for the sports car rides; Mrs. R. B. Thompson, pony rides; Mrs. Pat Gallagher, fish pond; and Mrs. Arlo Pitcher, the cake walks.

All Auxiliary members are expected to contribute toward Appreciation Day in one way or another. Each year, numerous non-members also express the desire to help the Auxiliary on this occasion and graciously provide food for the lunch stand, cakes for the cake walk, white elephants for the fish pond, or make cash donations.

Any persons who don't belong to the organization but would like to assist in this way may phone the appropriate chairman or leave cash donations with Mrs. P. A. Rietz.

Activity at the park will start at 11:00 a. m. and continue until 9:00 p. m.

Mrs. Selma Hanson repeats her offer to have her home serve as a collection point for Goodell members who have any items or cash to contribute to the cause of Hospital Appreciation Day.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Methodist church for Rollin R. S. Mosiman, who died Saturday after a lengthy period of declining health. He would have been 43 years old Friday of next week.

Rev. M. L. Jones officiated over the final rites. Military ceremonies accompanied the burial at Belmond cemetery, Mr. Mosiman having been a veteran of World War II. Fulton Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Serving as pallbearers were Ray Pals, Leroy Green, Curtis Rise, Harley Thayer, Kenneth Jenison and Martial Holtzbauer. The VFW honor guard conducted the military rites.

Mr. Mosiman was wounded in action during World War II and never completely recovered, though he worked as a trucker and laborer in around Belmond as long as his health permitted.

CURTIS G. RIEHM

Riehm in capital; meets with "Ike"

Curtis G. Riehm of Garner, Republican candidate for U. S. Representative in Congress from the Iowa 6th District, flew to Washington, D. C., Tuesday to plead the cause of the Iowa farmer to the administration and to the leaders of Congress.

Mr. Riehm stated, "I am very much concerned for the Iowa farmer and his problems, and I feel that this special session of Congress should do something about it before they adjourn."

The Garner candidate had an appointment with President Eisenhower for Wednesday morning and with Vice President Richard Nixon Wednesday afternoon. The latter appointment presumably had to be cancelled due to Mr. Nixon's hospitalization with a knee infection.

Mr. Riehm also intended to confer with Democratic leaders in Congress in the interest of the passage of legislation for land retirement, which he believes is urgently needed and embodies the common sense approach to the serious problem of farm surpluses.

"The Democrats have a two-thirds majority in Congress," Riehm said, "and they can pass any legislation they wish, and if they are sincere in wanting to help the Midwest farmer, they must pass this farm legislation before they adjourn the present session."

OPEN HOUSE FOR STRAITS

Belmond friends are invited to attend an open house to be held Sunday, Sept. 4, for Mr. and Mrs. Emery H. Strait in observance of their 25th wedding anniversary. It will be held at the Straits' home at 502 S. Cadwell in Eagle Grove and has been planned by their children, Mrs. Arnett Ter Hark, Mrs. Terrell Baker and Charles Strait. The honored couple will greet their friends from 2:00 to 5:00 and 7:00 to 9:00 p.m.

OK tire concern now partnership

Wilbur Lieberknecht of OK Rubber Welders announces that his brother Earl has joined him as a partner, the new arrangement being prompted by the steady growth of the business since its establishment earlier this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lieberknecht and their four children moved to Belmond on Monday of last week and are living on the Francis Kelly acreage 2½ miles east of town. The youngsters are: Rollie, age nine; Penny Gail, six; Scotty, five; and Jerry, four.

The brothers are natives of Greene county and Earl made his home in or near Jefferson all his life, until moving to Casa Grande, Ariz., two years ago. For the past 15 years he has been a tractor parts man, being associated with the Case line for three years and the rest of the time with the Ford line.

Earl, who goes by the nickname "Duke," was in uniform for nearly five years during World War II, advancing to the rate of Master Sergeant in the Field Artillery of the U. S. Army.

4-H'ers to assist sheriff's office—

Rest station planned Labor Day

Sheriff Robert Blecker announces that his office will conduct its 6th Labor Day Rest Station this weekend, aiming at giving holiday travelers a restful and refreshing respite.

Since Wright county introduced this innovation in 1955, the first such rest stop in the nation, it has been conducted every year except 1958. Last year close to 8,200 persons took advantage of the courtesy extended by Sheriff Blecker and his staff.

In addition to the five Labor Day Rest Stations that have operated south of Belmond, the sheriff's staff performed a similar service on one Memorial Day weekend and one 4th of July weekend. It is estimated that well over 50,000 persons have benefited by the proffered "pause to refresh" and gone on their way less susceptible to accidents due to fatigue.

This year's rest stop is being set up at the wayside park south of Belmond where Highways 69 and 3 turn west toward Clarion. Sheriff Blecker and his assistants are being joined this year by 4-H'ers of the county in serving coffee, milk and doughnuts — free — to guests of the rest station.

Cooperating in the venture are the McNeal Grain company of Clarion, Rural Electric Co-op of Clarion, Clarion Dairy, Northwestern Bell Telephone company, Evans-Kay Lumber company of Clarion and the Iowa Highway Commission.

Donating funds to finance the quantities of milk, coffee and doughnuts that will be served are 14 elevators in the county: Farmers Co-op and McNeal Grain of Clarion; North Central Grain and Farmers Grain, Belmond; Cornelia Elevator.

Farmers Co-op, Dows; Nelson's Elevator, Galt; Rowan Lumber and Grain company; Staley's Farm Supply, Rowan; Farmers Co-op, Woolstock; Eagle Grain company and Farmers Co-op, Eagle Grove; Farmers Co-op, Goldfield; Farmers Co-op, Holmes.

This year's holiday rest stop will start dispensing free refreshments at 5:00 p.m. Friday and its facilities will be open to the motoring public day and night from that hour until midnight next Monday.

When Sheriff Blecker introduced the rest stop idea six years ago, it won Wright county national publicity as newspapers throughout the country ran an Associated Press story about the free pause for rest and refreshment.

Sheriff Blecker says, "While it is impossible to assess the exact value of a service like this, we do know it has won a kindly place for Wright county in the hearts of the many travelers who have been our guests; and we like to think that some of them have avoided serious, if not fatal, accidents because they left some of their weariness behind after enjoying our hospitality."

MR. AND MRS. DAVID LONG

Judith Ann Larson and David Long spoke nuptial vows here Saturday

Miss Judith Ann Larson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. M. Larson, and David Lamoine Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Long, were united in marriage Saturday morning at 10:00 o'clock at St. Francis Catholic church. Rev. John Hargrafen performed the double-ring ceremony.

The beauty of the main altar was enhanced with an arrangement of candelabra and was flanked with a bank of emerald leaf and white beauty berries. Large bouquets of emerald leaf and white mums were on the two side altars. The church aisles were decorated with white mums, emerald leaf and white satin bows.

Guests were seated by Larry Larson, brother of the bride, Jerry Chandler, Roger Pyburn of Belle Plaine and Gordon Hankins of Conesville, the latter two fraternity friends of the groom.

Connie Gabrielson presided at the guest book while Donna Barkema and Penny Peterson, the latter of Forest City and a cousin of the bride, were in charge of the gifts.

Mrs. Clifford Johnson, organist, played appropriate nuptial music preceding the ceremony and accompanied Donna Nolan as she sang "O Perfect Love," "Bless Us Dear Lord" and "Ave Maria." A duet, "O Salutaris," was sung by Miss Nolan and Larry Larson.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported alecon lace and pure silk organza, the molded bodice fashioned with short sleeves and mitts, was styled with a lace yoke and deep bateau neckline.

The full circular skirt poised over hoops, featured clusters of appliqued medallions and extended into a chapel train. Her veil of imported silk illusion fell from a coronet of pearls and aurora borealis.

The bride's jewelry consisted of a pearl pendant and earrings, gifts from the groom. Her bouquet was a cascade of leather leaf and white roses with a white orchid and phalaenopsis in the center.

Mrs. Roger Kinseth was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Gloria Rogalla and Sandra Hildman. Junior bridesmaids were Julie and Jane Kinseth, nieces of the bride. All five were attired in dresses of peppermint green silk organza over iridescent taffeta, styled with fitted bodice, boat neckline and bell shaped skirts. They wore matching petal hats with attached veils, and carried crescent bouquets of feathered white carnations, white satin leaves and large white mums outlined in emerald.

The junior bridesmaids carried baskets draped with garlands of plumosa and miniature Fiji poms.

Mike Long attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Roland Jenison and Jim Fetrow. All the men in the wedding party wore white dinner jackets, black trousers and white carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother wore a sheath dress of beige silk organza. The fitted bodice was styled with a deep square neckline outlined in Florentine lace, fashioned with a crushed cummerbund and flowing side panel. Her small leafed hat and accessories were in shades of brown and beige. Her corsage was green cymbidium orchids tied with brown satin ribbon.

The groom's mother wore a sheath dress of sapphire blue pure silk, with matching blue accessories. Her corsage was a phalaenopsis surrounded by white feathered carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Clarmond Country club for 250 guests. Emerald leaf, white gladiolas, large white mums and silver candelabra beautified the buffet table.

The reception table held the five-tiered wedding cake which was wired with rosebud lights and had a real water fountain in mint green, run electrically. The fresh flowers on the top were pink and white carnations.

The cake was cut and served by Audrey Long of Webster City, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Alfred Peterson of Forest City, aunt of the bride. Presiding at the coffee service were Mrs. C. A. Wilmarth and Mrs. R. B. Thompson.

Hosts and hostesses were Dr. and Mrs. Robert Misner, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Henderson and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnson. Punch was served by Linda Bonte and Maren Peterson, the latter of Forest City and a cousin of the bride

For traveling, the bride wore a slate blue wool suit with matching blue accessories and white fur beret. Her corsage was the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Both the bride and groom graduated from Belmond High school and this fall will be attending Iowa State Teachers college, where Mrs. Long will be a sophomore and Mr. Long will complete his senior year.

After a wedding trip to the Black Hills, the couple will be at home at 1312 W. 30th in Cedar Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Long, parents of the groom, were hosts at a bridal dinner Friday evening at the Clarmond Country club.

Members of the Belmond Busy Bees 4-H club won 11 blue ribbons at the Wright County District Junior Fair at Eagle Grove last week in the senior girls' division, three in the intermediate and four in the junior division.

Faye Homervold and Jane Studdebaker accumulated the most blues. With exhibits judged in the senior division, Miss Homervold won five blue ribbons and Miss Studebaker four.

Exhibits on which Faye was awarded blues were: skirt other than cotton, jumper, school dress, dress for better wear and formal or party dress. Jane's blue ribbons were won on: cotton blouse, night gown or pajamas, housecoat and 4-H uniform.

Other senior members from the Busy Bees who were blue ribbon winners were: Marcia Stoltenberg, child's dress; and Theresa Quigley.

Clarion C-of-C "ups" bid—

Champion baby beef brings $564

Getting an advance in price after the bidding has closed doesn't very often happen to anyone selling anything — but that was the experience of Roger Story of Dows, who showed the grand champion baby beef at the Wright County District Junior Fair.

His Shorthorn calf was bought Wednesday afternoon of last week at the fair auction by the Clarion Chamber of Commerce at a price of $40 per hundredweight. Then the reserve champion of Dean Ekstrom, Woolstock, also a Shorthorn, went under the hammer and brought $43 per cwt. from Emerson Veterinary Clinic of Clarion.

This turn-about situation was rectified when the Clarion C-of-C voluntarily raised its price for the champion to $45, which gave the owner of the 1,215-pound animal an additional $60.75, or $564.75 in all. Ekstrom's check came to $464.40.

Buyers for packing plants got relatively few of the 156 calves sold at the auction as business firms and private individuals bid in the most of them. As usual, the packers likely ended up with possession of most of the baby beeves at market price as the original buyers wrote off the difference as advertising.

Belmond business firms, individuals and organizations purchased 15 of the baby beeves. They also bought four of the fat lambs and four of the market hogs — C. C. Christie being purchaser of all of the lambs and hogs.

Prices for hogs and lambs ran somewhat higher than a year ago, but baby beef prices were down a bit. The sale as a whole brought in $57,986.10, which missed the 1959 total by about $2,500.

ADDITIONAL FAIR HONORS WON BY BELMOND STOCK

In addition to the baby beef honors won by Belmond entries at the Wright County District Junior Fair at Eagle Grove last week and which were reported in The Independent, three received blue ribbons on home-grown baby beeves, Steven Hinman, Dwight Hinman and Dennis Pastour.

Best placing earned by an animal shown by a Belmond exhibitor was the second place in the lightweight Shorthorn class awarded to Neil Gabrielson's calf.

In the fat lamb show, Dennis Barkema had two market lambs and Eric Buseman one that received blue ribbons. Dick Kamm had two pens of three lambs that were awarded blue ribbons and Dennis Barkema, one.

● Belmond Locals

Linda and Beverly Pickle and Wanda Mason returned Friday from Kansas City, Mo., where they had spent five days visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pickle.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wenzel, Jr., and family called on Harry Janssen, who is a patient in the Lutheran hospital in Hampton, on Tuesday evening of last week. They also visited in the Harry Janssen home.

Linda Davenport and Leila Anderson, the latter of Mason City, returned Sunday night from a two-week trip to Denver, Colo., where they visited Donna Jean Wolters and Leila's sister, Ila Anderson. Donna Cockram and Jo Fredricks, the latter Leila's roommate at Mason City, accompanied Linda and Leila to Denver but returned a week earlier.

The market pigs averaged $17.87 per cwt., which was better than $1.50 over current market price; and the lambs averaged $23.72, almost $2.00 over the market. Average price for the baby beeves was $25.72 and for commercial beeves, $23.80.

Best price of the day was $105 per cwt. paid by Woodard Feed company of Eagle Grove for the champion market lamb exhibited by Eugene Ryerson of Eagle Grove. That brought Ryerson $120.75.

A price of $70 per cwt. was paid by M&M Livestock Proucts company of Eagle Grove for the grand champion market pig shown by Kent Ekstrom of Woolstock, which brought the young exhibitor $150.50.

Belmond buyers of baby beeves, the hundredweight price they paid and the total price of their purchase follow:

Tomco, Inc., to Arlynn Boelman, $25.25 for $246.18 and to Mark Moore, $27.50 for $310.75; Farmers Elevator, to Gayle Gabrielson, $26.25 for $296.62 and to Richard Suntken, $25.75 for $249.78; P&G Grocery, to Neil Gabrielson, $25.25 for $237.35; Tyrrell Stock Farm, to Jean Hauge, $27.25 for $247.97.

First State Bank, to Steve Hinman, $26.75 for $315.65; Chamber of Commerce, to Dwight Hinman, $26 for 260; Hattel's Super Valu, to Dennis Pastour, $25.50 for $298.63; Belmond Junior Chamber of Commerce (Jaycees), to David Suntken, $26.00 for $253.50.

Meet the newcomers . . .

Pat Martin and his family have lived here only two months, but already their enthusiasm for the community has convinced them that Belmond will be their home from here on.

As district sales manager for the MoorMan Manufacturing company, Pat has had good reason to become "sold" on this territory. He moved to this area from Sutherland, but spent a month at Britt before setting stakes in Belmond.

In the three months he's been in charge of his present territory — the top half of Wright county and three-fourths of Hancock — he's seen all previous MoorMan sales records for the district surpassed six times.

He gives full credit to his salesman (he does no direct selling, himself) for this achievement. Tom Quigley and Gordon Warren, the latter another newcomer, sell for MoorMan in north Wright county; Chet Stille of Garner and Jerry Schimdt of Britt cover two-thirds of the Hancock territory.

Pat has another saleman lined up, whom he expects to have on the job before long.

After a number of years in service station and garage employment (plus nearly 3½ years in the U. S. Navy during World War II), Pat got into direct selling as a trucker-salesman for a wholesale grocery concern.

When the truck driving bemace too much of a chore, he decided about a year ago to take a job with MoorMan. He was with the company only six months before being advanced to management rank.

Mr. Martin and his family have a basement apartment in the Kinseth apartment house on East Main. Both he and his wife are enthusiastic bowlers and Pat is a model airplane (the flying kind) enthusiast. They have three children all boys — Gene, seven; Kelly, five; and Jeff, three.

Pat is an ardent Mason and plans to be active in the lodge here.

Pleasant Pioneers take jr. softball championship

Pleasant Pioneers' junior soft ball team climaxed a highly successful season Thursday of last week by winning the Wright county championship in their division with a thrilling 11-10 decision over the Woolstock Junior Stockmen in the 4-H tournament finals.

Throughout a campaign that started in June, the junior Pioneers lost but one game — that to the Vernon Victors. They gained the tournament finals with a decisive 23-7 win over the Dayton Dynamiters while Woolstock was taking the measure of the Vernon Victors.

Playing on their home diamond the Woolstock held the Pioneers to a 10-all tie in the first six innings of the seven inning finall game. In the top of the final frame, the Pioneers tallied once to chalk up the deciding run.

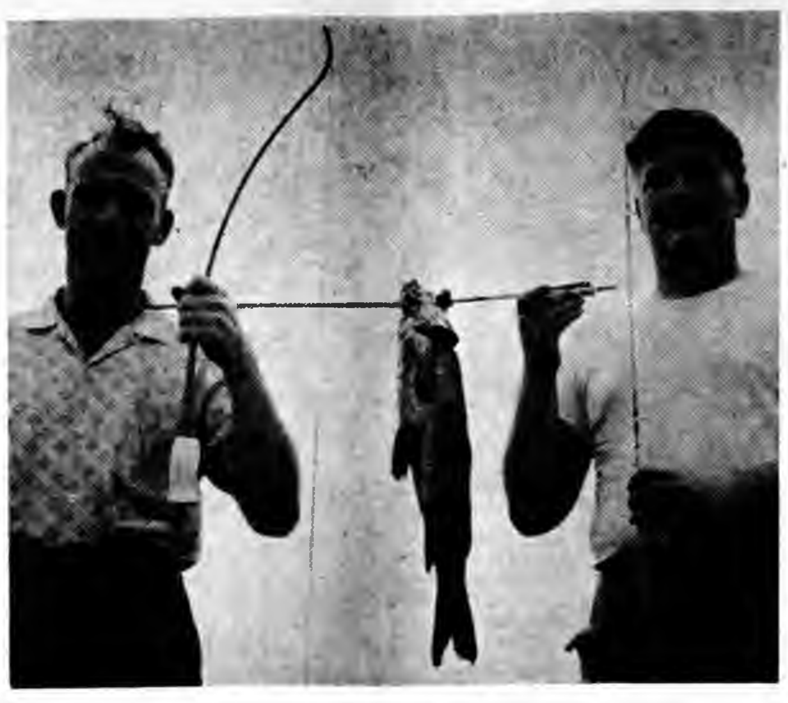
In their half of the inning, the Stockmen got the first two men on base — on an error and a hit — but Pitcher Douglas Pals then retired the next three batters in order. The losers' runners never were able to get beyond second, with the potential tying and winning runs on base.

The Pleasant Pioneers' senior team bowed out of the county play-offs Thursday morning when the senior Woolstock Stockmen blanked them 13-0 on a one-hitter. The Liberty Pathfinders trimmed the Iowa Hawkeyes to join the Stockmen in the finals. The championship game had to be called in the second inning on account of rain, with Woolstock holding a 1-0 lead.

One of the stars of the junior Pleasant team throughout the season was Norlene Pastour, sister of that fine pair of BHS athletes, Vernon and Dennis Pastour. Norlene played the shortstop position and earned the respect of all the Pioneers' opponents with the way she filled that difficult assignment.

Pitcher for the county champs during the entire season was Douglas Pals. Completing the battery was Jim Gabrielson, behind the plate. Regulars at the other positions were: Arlyn Boelman, 1st base; Eric Buseman, 2nd base; Daryl Suntken, 3rd base; Mark Moore, right field; Douglas Mennenga, center field; and Paul Hauge, left field.

Others on the junior Pioneers' roster were: Neil Gabrielson, Gail Gabrielson, Stephen Hinman, Donald Hinman, Dwight Hinman, Larry Zeiger, Sandra Zeiger, Mary Suntken and Jean Hauge.



Fish for carp with bow-and-arrow

Piscatorial archery is the sport Kay Ketchum (left) and Alvin "Bunny" Halfpap, Jr., were indulging in when they brought this five-pound carp out of the Iowa river Thursday noon. Fishing with bow and arrow a short distance to the southeast of the Great Western railroad station, Kay spotted his finny prey by a water swirl and let his arrow fly. The cotter pin that attached the arrow to Kay's rod and spin reel pulled loose so the carp was completely unattached to the fishing gear. However, his course up and down the river was easily followed because the end of the arrow projected above the surface like a submarine periscope. To capture their catch, "Bunny" finally took off his shoes and socks and waded after the fish. When landed, some six or seven minutes after he'd been shot, the carp was still alive although the arrow had penetrated his brain through an eye socket and then ripped through his throat. This was the fifth carp Kay has brought-to-bank in this fashion (though the first that's had to be waded after).

Two experimental farms will hold joint field day

Wright county farmers will see plastic drain tile being laid and hear about its potential for Iowa on Thursday of next week at the joint experimental farm field days near Kanawha.

Aaron R. Bowman, county extension director, says the Clarion-Webster and the Northern Iowa Experimental Farm associations are holding a joint field day this year with a free meal at noon provided by the Northern Iowa Farm association. The program will start at the Northern Iowa farm near Kanawha at 9:30 a.m. Thursday with a plant-pest clinic.

One-dollar bills will be awarded to those who can "stump the experts" with a weed, insect or plant disease specimen to be indentified Malcolm Shurtleff, Harold Gunderson and E. P. Sylwester, extension specialist from Iowa State university, will be the "experts."

The morning program will feature new research ideas with emphasis on soybeans, stalk rot control in corn and weed control in corn and beans. The field day at the North Iowa farm was scheduled later than usual this year to give the farmers an opportunity to see different soybean varieties.

Harvey Thompson, Iowa State university agronomist, will discuss new developments in soybeans and compare the results of the varieties at the farm.

What's new in oats will also be discussed. The high-light of the noon program will be a talk on subsistence farming in Persia by W. E. Loomis, botanist from Iowa State university.

After lunch the group will move south to the Clarion-Webster farm to see the plastic tile laying demonstration. Next will come tours of the experimental plots featuring research on ammonium nitrate as compared with anhydrous ammonia, rock phosphate compared with superphosphate, and soil insecticides to control lodging in corn.

The soil insecticide to control lodging should be of special interset to Wright county farmers since there seems to be more than usual around this year, Mr. Bowman notes.

Rootworm and wireworm controls in corn will be discussed by Don Peters, entomologist from Iowa State university. He will show experiments at the farm where aldrin, heptachlor and toxaphene have been used at rates of one and two pounds per acre. Tests have also been run on the different methods of working the insecticides into the soil.

Frank Schaller, extension agronomist, will discuss continuous corn at the field day program, and John Pesek, also from Iowa State university, will discuss rock phosphate as compared to superphosphate as well as the effects of nitrogen.

The field day is open to any one who wishes to attend.

Rate of payment for wool support set for new year

A shorn wool incentive price of 62 cents per pound and a mohair support price of 73 cents per pound have recently been announced by the department of agriculture for the 1961 marketing year, which begins April 1, 1961.

Jack G. Masters, manager of the Wright county ASC office, points out that the 1961 price for wool is the same as for the first six years of the program, running from 1955 through the 1960 marketing year. The mohair price is up three cents from the 70-cent level during the first six years of the program.

Payments to producers under the 1961 national wool incentive program will follow the same methods as under the current program. Shorn wool payments will be equal to a percentage of each producer's cash returns from wool sales. The percentage will be that required to raise the national average price received by all producers for shorn wool up to the incentive price of 62 cents per pound.

Lamb payments to producers who sell lambs that have never been shorn will be made at a rate per hundredweight of live animals marketed to compensate for the wool on them on a basis comparable to the incentive payment per pound of shorn wool.

The payments for the 1961 marketing year will be made on shorn wool and unshorn lambs marketed during the period of April 1, 1961 through March 31, 1962. Payments will be made in the summer of 1962 following the end of the marketing year.

County ASC offices are now making payments for the 1959 marketing year. Under that program, the payment rate for shorn wool was 43.2 per cent, the percentage required to bring the average price up to the 62-cent incentive level. This results in a payment of $43.20 for every $100 received from the sale of shorn wool. The payment rate on unshorn lambs was 75 cents per hundredweight of live lambs marketed.

Lee of Humboldt wins Boone Valley golf tournament

George Lee of Humboldt was winner of the annual Boone Valley Golf association tournament Sunday at Webster City, which had to be settled on the basis of 18 holes of championship play because of a mid-afternoon cloudburst. Lee followed an opening 34 with a 37 for a one-under-par 71.

Fred Gordon, a former Boone Valley titleist, had a first-round 35 but finished with a 40. Another Clarmond entry, Lyle McConaughey of Clarion, tied for second in the championship flight with a 37 36—73 but John Ostland of Webster City took the runner-up prize on a cut of the cards. Jeff Birdsell of Hampton was fourth with a 74.

Three other golfers shared fifth place with Gordon, Jack Daniels and Rollie Holkan of Webster City and Eric Sime of Humboldt, Daniels winning 5th-place prize on a draw.

Clarmond Country club finished third in the team standings, six strokes over Webster City's 376 total for five men. Humboldt was second with a 377. Making up Clarmond's 382 score were McConaughey's 73, Gordon's 75, a 77 by Pat Gallagher, 78 by Clark Holthaus and 79 by Dick Brady.

Though no Clarmond club-swingers were able to place in the title flight they won their share of prizes in the lower flights.

Clark Holthaus was fourth in the 1st flight with his 78. Frank Middleton won the 2nd flight with an 80 and a fellow Clarionite, Bill Wright, was fourth with an 81.

Jim Havens, Belmond, took third in the 3rd flight with an 85 and Leon Root of Dows had fourth with the same score. Ben Birdsall, Clarion, got the runner-up prize in the 4th flight with an 86.

Two Belmond golfers placed first and second in the 5th flight with 90's — Arlo Stoltenberg and Jim Mariga; and Bill Young of Clarion was fourth with a 91. Paul Dorr, Belmond, took the 6th flight with a 94 and Howard Kudej of Kanawha was runner-up with a 95.

Eagle Grove was awarded the Boone Valley tournament for 1961.

3 Belmond women choose Kanawha celebration queen

Three Belmond women chose the "Queen" who will reign over Kanawha's Youth Activity Celebration, which is to be held on Labor Day. Last Friday night, 15 candidates for the "Queen" title were interviewed and judged by Ethel Brunes, Mrs. L. B. Oberhauser and Mrs. Pat Gallagher.

Identity of their choice will not be revealed until 8:30 o'clock Monday, when Her Royal Highness will be crowned.

The coronation is but one of the highlights of this annual celebration, which serves to raise funds for Kanawha's summer recreation program. Opening event is a parade at 10:00 a. m., which will have as its theme "Television and Radio Programs."

A full-day schedule of events will conclude with a teen-age dance at the Kanawha Odd Fellows hall at 8:30 p.m.

The graduation exercises, marking the end of nine weeks of "boot camp," included a full dress parade and review before military officials and civilian dignitaries.

In nine weeks of instruction, the "raw recruit" is developed into a Navy Bluejacket, ready for duty with the fleet.

In Memoriam

In memory of Annette Swenson who passed away Aug. 29, 1956.

No! not cold beneath the grasses
Not close-walled within the tomb;
Rather in our Father's mansion,
Living in another room.
Shall we doubt our Father's mercy?
Shall we think of death as doom?
When we know Annette is happy
Waiting in another room.

Veterinary Medicine

For the farmer who owns milk cows, one of the most costly of all diseases is mastitis. This infection and inflammation which attacks a cow's udder, is now costing the average dairy farmer several hundred dollars each year thru loss of production, cost of treatments, and ruined cows.

Each dairy farmer should start an intensive program now to control and eradicate this disease from his herd. This can only be accomplished thru strict sanitation measures, eradication of known carriers in the herd, preventative vaccinations and sound professional diagnosis and treatment.

Treatment with highly advertised mastitis "remedies", without skilled diagnosis complete with "sensitivity" tests and cultures, is a waste of money and, in time, will put a dairy man out of business.

Timely Health Hints . . .

Face and heel flies have been very bad this year. The spraying of cattle both in the pasture and feed lot has helped a great deal, especially if it is coupled with the use of one of the econmical chemical back-rubbers.

Hog cholera is now widely spread throughout Iowa, including Wright county. If your pigs are not vaccinated yet, MAKE AN APPOINTMENT IMMEDIATELY. Incidentally, vaccinate those fall pigs too. The old story that hog cholera does not occur in the winter-time is a falsehood

"The Greatest Show on Earth" continues tonight through Saturday, with only one showing each evening — at 8:00 o'clock. An all-star cast in a super-spectacle of circus life featuring Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey's big show A "best picture" Academy Award winner.

During Britain's darkest hours during World War II, it appeared that the German battleship Bismark might hold the key to final, shattering defeat for Winston Churchill's brave nation. The mighty battle-wagon spearheaded a powerful German Navy that was controlling the Atlantic ocean and making the delivery of military supplies from the U. S. desperately difficult.

How Great Britain plotted the destruction of the Bismark and succeeded in that goal is the story told in "Sink the Bismark," playing Sunday through Wednesday.

The famous Lustine Bell of Lloyd's of London, by tradition, is rung only for important announcements to the British people — one for bad news and twice for good. The last time it was rung to declare glad tidings was in 1941 when it pealed twice to proclaim sinking of the iBsmark. . . . "Iowa Football Highlights of 1959" also are included on this four-day screen program.

In "Ulysses," starring Kirk Douglas Thursday through Saturday, shapley Silvana Mangano plays both Penelope, the Greek adventurer's patient wife, and Circe, the enchantress who tries to lure him to his doom. You may think you don't like Greek mythology — but you'll like it served up in this fashion . . . Sharing this double bill is "The Big Night," a story of teen-agers who stumble on a stolen fortune and find themselves between the devil and the deep when the crooks and the cops both close in on them.

Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good. — Eph. 4:29

Conservation reserve requires some "compulsion"

Most farmers intelligently concerned over the problem of over-production seem to be tending toward the belief that the best answer lies in a broadened conservation reserve such as recommended in the Republican party platform. Pointing up this trend in thinking is effort of the Farm Bureau to induce Congress to emphasize this approach in action the farmers hope will be taken before the present Congressional session adjourns.

That voluntary retirement of farm land from production is a questionable answer to the problem of crop surpluses, though, was clearly indicated in a story in last week's Independent. The Wright county ASC office noted that only 14 conservation reserve contracts are in effect in this county, involving just 1,287 acres of cropland. This is but very little over three-tenths of one per cent of the county's farmland.

In Iowa as a whole, there are 7,701 contracts covering 662,634 acres, or an area about 1.8 times that of Wright's total farmland. This would seem a clear indication that it is not good, productive land that is going into the soil bank. Rather, it is marginal land that has been contributing to the ever-growing crop surplus to only a minimum extent.

Typical, we suspect, of the land that has gone and will continue to go into conservation reserve is an acreage recently purchased in this area that has been cleared of timber with the deliberate intention of placing it in the soil bank when "the vault" is once again opened. This land hasn't ever been in production. Clearing of the timber will very possibly, in the years to come, create an erosion problem that didn't even exist before. Yet the owner will be paid for taking "cropland" out of production.

Part of the attraction of conservation reserve over high parity and acreage allotments has been the absence of compulsion to place land in the soil bank. But this seems a reasonable question: can ANY conservation reserve program adequately fulfill its purpose if a fertile county like Wright places no more than one-third of one per cent of its tillable land in the soil bank?

It appears it will be absolutely necessary to link some element of compulsion with any conservation reserve program that gives promise of making appreciable inroads on our over-production. And to be effective, it appears that this compulsion may HAVE to take some form of crop quotas.

If our Farm Bureau friends take an honest look at present soil bank participation in this county, it should be painfully clear that conservation reserve is only one leg on the stool. Before it and controlled surplus will support a farm program that will fill agriculture's need, a third leg is going to have to be added. That third leg must provide means of effecting withdrawal of genuinely productive land or the program will not stand.

Belmond trade has shown great growth in decade

For several years now, the quarterly reports of taxable retail sales have made pleasant reading for persons in Belmond. Our retail sales have climbed steadily, with rarely a break in the regular increases over comparable quarters of the year before.

With a gratifying degree of regularity, Belmond's business gains on an annual basis have exceeded those of trade centers in this area with whom our merchants must compete.

We suspect, though, that our merchants must have wondered from time to time if they really were being as successful in holding trade here, and competing with neighboring towns, as these periodical reports seemed to indicate. Well, we can assure them that they ARE.

Here is how Belmond compares with three near-by communities in trade increase for the past decade, using 1st-quarter tax report periods as the basis.

In the January-March quarter of 1950, Belmond did a $658,600 volume of retail trade. This year, the same quarter produced $1,166,170 in taxable retail business (Ris-Van equipment sales are omitted from the Belmond figures because they are not bona fide retail sales). This is a 77.2 per cent increase in the 10 years' time.

Closest to this percentage gain was Clarion's — and it missed equalling Belmond's by a healthy margin. Trade done by the county seat merchants jumped from $1,059,450 in the first quarter of '50 to $1,500,700 in the equivalent period this year, the gain amounted to 41.6 per cent.

Garner's percentage of gain was less than half Belmond's. Our neighbor's to the north 10 years ago were consistently doing a larger volume of business than our retailers and the first quarter of 1950 found their taxable sales coming to $759,800. This exceeded Belmond's by better than $100,000. But in the first quarter of this year Garner's sales aggregated $147,370 less than ours, at $1,028,800. The Garner business gain over the decade came to 36.2 per cent.

Eagle Grove's retail trade increase over the 10-year span was 33.8 per cent, rising from $1,117,750 for the opening quarter of '50 to $1,495,350 for the first period of this year.

Belmond's population increase accounted for some of the local gain in retail business, but not all. Belmond's merchants can tuck a feather in their caps for a good job of merchandising, which clearly has made Belmond a much better trading center in 1960 than it was 10 years ago.

Clipped Comment

From the Typewriters of Other Editors

Loveless NOT "farmer's friend"

In his first term as governor Loveless vetoed a bill giving a gas tax refund to Iowa farmers. The legislature passed it over his veto and maybe some farmers have forgotten that it was the republican legislature that gave them the relief over strenuous democratic opposition.

The gas tax is for the purpose of building roads. It is also designed to have those who use the roads pay for them by the tax on gasoline used on the highways.

GASOLINE USED IN TRACTORS and other farm implements is not used on the highways, hence the refund is amply justified, just as similar exemptions are granted industry in similar circumstances.

However, Loveless in 1957 vetoed a bill giving this tax relief for farmers — not as a sop to them — but as their right because the gasoline was not used for highway purposes.

LOVELESS HAS CONTINUALLY sided with the city people against the farmer in his four years in office. His attitude on the reapportionment problem is a case in point.

The republicans who passed the tax relief measure over the veto of Loveless should not let it be forgotten — for if Loveless is against giving the farmer his right as far as the Iowa legislature is concerned he will also be against giving the Iowa farmer justice as a United States senator — Algona Advance

Well! . . . Do tell!

H. R. Gross, congressman from the Third Iowa district, won our favor not long ago. He spoke against an appropriation of $50,000 of federal funds for Cornell University of Ithaca, N. Y., to use in "a study of bird sounds."

H. R. suggested than an appropriation for the "study of sounds made by anguished taxpayers" would be more to the point.

NOW COMES ANOTHER PROtest from H. R. He cites a cash grant of $33,101 to the Israel Institute of Applied Social Research. The purpose, and we quote H. R verbatim:

"A test of the husband-wife relationship. The aim is to develop a diagnostic pictorial test of the intrapersonal and interpersonal aspects of the role of relationship of husband and wife.

"THE TEST SHOULD BE SENsitive to the perceptions of the actual behavior and norms and to the consonance perceived between these."

As we stagger thru that one, think we'll send it to Adlai Stevenson, nationally known egghead, for an interpretation! — Storm Lake Pilot-Tribune

Reuther OK'ed this'n

Now that Walter Reuther has placed his stamp of approval on Jack Kennedy for President, we suppose it's all right to mention one plank in the Democratic platform adopted that was, for some reason or other, not read to the American people at the Democratic convention.

It says: "We will repeal the authorization for 'right to work' laws."

Should the Democrats win, and should they succeed in enacting legislation to this effect, their action would have widespread repercussions. For one thing, it would mean the repeal of Right to Work laws in 19 of our 50 states. — Fairmont (Minn.) Sentinel

Pitch in the kitty

Once again we want to urge you to make a contribution to the political party of your choice — whether it be the republican, the democrat, or the prohibition — if there is one this year.

It takes money to put on a political campaign and if that money comes from the rank and file of the voters, we are much more likely to have an administration that is responsive to the wishes of the common people, than will be the case if the parties have to depend on the labor unions or big business to pay for the campaigns.

A contribution of $1, $2, $5, or $10 won't hurt any of us — but these contributions will pay for the campaign if enough cooperate. Do your part — help make our republican form of government operate successfully. — Lyon County Reporter

WITH YE ED

TO DIET, OR NOT TO DIET?—

Ye Ed is regarding that can of Multi-Purpose Food on the kitchen counter with a calculating eye these days. A friend of ours remarked recently, upon getting a profile view of our waistline, "It's beginning to hang over."

Now that's a heck of a thing to say to a buddy, and if a quick downward glance hadn't confirmed the observation we'd have gone into a self-righteous snit.

We view the prospect of taking a tuck in our eating with no relish whatsoever. One of the major delights of our life is tying into a good meal with no holds barred.

The other day in one of our exchange papers we ran across the following which seems to have painful application at this point:

Hey diddle diddle, I'm watching my middle;
I'm hoping to whittle
it soon.
But eating's such fun,
I may not get it done
Till my dish runs away with my spoon.

We've listened with envy to the heroic self-denial some of the General Mills boys have engaged in to "whittle the middle" with spartan diets of MPF and orange juice.

Take Keith Wiggins, now. The early part of this year weighing a well-padded 199, Keith engaged in a battle of the bulge with MPF as his ammunition and "waisted away" to a sylph-like 183.

We called Keith up to see what has since transpired in the belt vicinity. What does he weigh today, we asked. With a minimum of hemming and hawing he confessed that he's back to a robust 199 once again.

"Three helping at meal time and bowlsful of popcorn before bedtime are not conducive to maintaining the status quo waist-wise," Keith explained. He added that it's been great fun getting back his pre-MPF "figger." So much fun, indeed, that he's seriously considering the undertaking of another diet just to have the pleasure of once more letting nature take its course without his conscience gnawing him so unmercifully.

Maybe that's the answer. We'd like to continue to count our toes without sitting down. On the other hand, an indefinite future of calory-counting has very slight appeal.

So we've just about decided to go on Keith's two-week regimen of MPF, black coffee and orange juice to fit ourselves for a leisurely return to our present pleasant plumpness.

We think we may just start out on that li'l old diet the day after tomorrow. Or barring that, the day following . . . A decision like that has gotta be thought over first.

A LOTTA MANURE!—

An item in the latest issue of "Kernels," the monthly magazine for Tomco employees (which it is Belmond Publishing company's pleasure to print) caught our eye the other day.

It told of an Illinois gentleman farmer planting Tomco off-size corn broadcast over a field at the rate of 300,000 kernels per acre to produce a green manure crop. By July 1, it was ready to be disked and plowed down. It figured out at 49½ tons per acre!

Thereupon a second crop was planted on the 4th of July to prepare for another, comparable plowdown before cold weather descends. A bit of pencil and paper work informs us that 49½ tons of green corn adds up to 99,000 pounds — so the expectation is that the field in question will be absorbing close to 200,000 pounds of chopped up stalks per acre which strikes us as a LOT of manure!

We asked Don Bunnell, the "Kernels" editor, if the soil was pure sand, pure clay — or what was the matter with it that it needed such a gigantic dose of green manure. He said it was NOT poor soil, but a good, loamy type similar to Clarion soil.

All we've got to say is, they'd better use a fast tractor to plant that field next spring. Otherwise, it's apt to founder in the burgeoning crop and they'll have to hack it free with bowie knives.

ECHO-WATCHING—

We still pop outside of an evening now and then to take a peek at Echo I, the man-made star hurtling around our earth every couple of hours since its launching last month. Interest in it seems to have dulled rapidly, where most of the population in concerned; but we're simple-minded enough to still get a kick out of watching the satellite in its seemingly erratic course.

It's pretty tough to spot the glistening sphere, once it gets well up in the heavens. Best time to get it located is just as it emerges above the horizon. For a minute or so, at that times, it seems to hurtle skyward — its progress appearing much more rapid than when it reaches a loftier position.

Each time we watch Echo, it's a new thrill to us. And it lends us a little encouragement that, in this spite-filled world, a man-made star shines down on us. That man has proved he can make a star suggests to us that some of his other problems must not be so insoluble as they appear.

Know your businessmen—

Joneses have run station-cafe for 13 years

On the 20th of September, Ralph and Treva Jones, proprietors of Joneses Cafe and Service Station, will have been in business at their present stand for 13 years. Four days later, they will be celebrating their 35th wedding anniversary. Both events will be milestones in a highly satisfactory partnership, Mr. and Mrs. Jones agree.

They draw similar satisfaction from the long association each has had with Belmond. Ralph has made his home here — barring a couple of short periods when his work took him temporarily elsewhere — for all but four of his 56 years. Treva's lived here since she was 16.

Treva, the oldest of nine children born to Mrs. Julius Wagoner and her late husband, claims North Carolina as her birthplace; but most of her first 16 years were spent at Liscomb in Marshall county. There she played for three years on a high school girls' basketball team that three times went to the state finals and twice won the Iowa championship.

Ralph is the son of a veteran railroader, John H. Jones, and for 26 years and four months followed that occupation himself. In fact, he is still building up retirement time with the M&St. L. by tending engines that must be left here overnight in the winter when the regular tender isn't on hand. In cold weather, the deisels have to be kept going the night through.

While he was a full-time M & St. L. employee, Ralph for a number of years operated a weed-cutter along the right-of-way (they burn 'em now); and later he worked as a section hand. It was when exposure to the elements during the cold of winter became too much of an ordeal that Ralph looked for another means of earning his livelihood.

During this period, Treva was dietician and cook over at the old Steele Memorial hospital, which subsequently served as fine training for operating the cafe.

Both the Joneses thoroughly enjoy conducting the cafe and service station business. They bought the business from Mrs. Jones' father. About eight years ago they built on the "Pine Room," to enable them to handle dinner parties and meetings of organizations. The "Pine Room" was the site of Lions club luncheon meetings for five years and for the same length of time was the Chamber of Commerce meeting place.

Practically throughout the existence of the Toastmasters club, its meetings have been held at the "Pine Room." Once a month the Wright County Realtors association meets there and the Wright County Medical society holds an annual meeting there.

For 11 years, the cafe and service station were open seven days a week; but a couple of years ago Ralph and Treva starting closing on Sundays because it was too difficult getting satisfactory help to relieve them.

Ralph services vehicles only with gasoline and oil, the station not being equipped for more elaborate servicing. He says two things have contributed to creating an unusually good transient trade for the station.

The S&H Green Stamps that he started giving on purchases about eight years ago are very widely collected and draw a considerable number of customers. Secondly the wide use of Standard Oil credit cards has, he is sure, brought him much business. Transient trade, he says, accounts for a good half of his volume.

TREVA, RALPH HAVE TWO ANNIVERSARIES COMING UP

Ralph and Treva agree that the service station-cafe combination is a good one. They like to deal with the public and they have ample opportunity to do so.

Because hunters who visit this area each pheasant season have learned that Ralph has five shotguns and is generous about loaning them, the weapons have come to be in great demand. He says he's never had any trouble getting them back— and the borrowers keep the Joneses will supplied with pheasants, so Ralph finds it unnecessary to shoot any himself any more.

Treva recalls with an embarrassed grin the most widely known customer who's ever stopped at the station. Dr. Milton Eisenhower, famed educator and brother of the U. S. President, and his family were overnight guests of Hill Motel and the neighborhood was buzzing over his visit.

When a party from the motel stopped to "gas up" the next morning before resuming their travels, Treva made a remark to them about the distinguished visitor with whom they shared motel facilities the night before. The man turned full face toward Mrs. Jones and with a broad smile replied, "Yes, I know."

The family resemblance was unmistakeable. It was Dr. Eisenhower, himself, she was talking to!

Belmond Independent

VOL. 41 NO. 49 . OFFICIAL CITY PAPER WRIGHT COUNTY, IOWA—THURSDAY, SEPT. 8, 1960 9/5/85 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Vern Schluter, who has bought the former Sol Krass home at Goodell, brought in to us a copy of the June 24, 1909, issue of The Iowa Valley Press, one of the Independent's direct forebearers. It was extracted from beneath some linoleum laid on the floor of an upstairs room and was in good condition. The name of Oscar Wesenberg was written at the top (he apparently owned the house at the time the linoleum went down).

A number of copies of the long-deceased Goodell Globe were also discovered in the same hiding place. We'd like to see one of them as we've read about the Globe but never seen a sample of it.

In a front page editorial column the Press featured (in Main Street's present location), it was noted: "According to the Monitor, some of Clarion's citizens are sore because the Belmond ball team played here Woodman Day. If Belmond could do anything that wouldn't make Clarion sore, will the Monitor please advise." . . . Guess that relations between Belmond and the county seat have improved somewhat in the past half century, huh?

The Independent would like to run in a single story the names of the many Belmond students who will be attending college this fall. There must be a record crop seeking higher learning this year, and we hope to avoid omissions in our round-up. If you have a boy or girl who'll be attending a college or university, or will be taking specialized training of some sort (nursing, or whatever) please phone our correspondent, Doris Bonte — 385 — and make sure your youngster's name is in our report, along with school and class.

When Sheriff Bob Blecker was asked by Ye Ed what guests at the rest station had "pitched in the kitty" to help meet its cost of operation, Bob said, "Our biggest 'pay-check' had nothing to do with such contributions." When asked what he meant, Bob replied, "From the time the rest station went into operation until it was shut down Tuesday morning, Wright county didn't have ONE reportable traffic mishap! That's a record mighty few counties — anywhere — can match."

For a holiday weekend when traffic appeared to be even heavier than normal for such a period this was indeed a remarkable achievement. Bob admitted that he didn't mean to imply that a cup of coffee and a doughnut could prevent an accident from happening; but he said it almost gave him the feeling that the Powers-That-Be must have looked kindly [illegible] the purpose of the rest stop.

While this unique Wright county project no longer receives the national publicity that it did when it was first introduced, it certainly wins a soft spot in the hearts of a multitude of wayfarers toward this county and its people. And the story of Wright county hospitality is borne from border to border and coast to coast by these appreciative travelers. Surely the sheriff's staff, those 4-H'ers and all other participants in the project deserve a hearty pat on the back.

Eight of those peewee and midget baseball team pictures ordered by readers of The Independent are still here at the office waiting to be picked up. . . . Come and get 'em!

We have a terrible time convincing some of the 4-H club reporters that their club notes are NEWS only if they are fresh. We're apt as not to get 'em anywhere from two to four weeks after the meeting reported was held. That . . . just . . . isn't . . . N-E-W-S! We're mentioning the matter here at this time in hope some of the laggards will mend their ways — and to say "thanks" to Jo Ann Svendsen of the Belmond Busy Bees for notes on a meeting last Saturday gotten to us in time for appearance in this issue. Do like Jo Ann, gals!

School election results given—

Boys "out-politick" girls of BHS

All of the class presidencies went to boys. Kenny Johnson will head the senior class for the 1960-61 school year. The juniors elected Merrill Kalkwarf as their president; sophomores, Raymond Roberts; and freshmen, Jim Pasquariello.

Other senior officers are: Howard Pals, vice president; Barbara Musselman, secretary; and Mike Hunst, treasurer; juniors: Bill Heinzig, vice president; Randi Dahlgran, secretary; and Nancy Halfwassen, treasurer

REPUBLICAN WOMEN WILL HOLD MEETING TOMORROW

Belmond Republican women are urged to attend a coffee to be held Friday at 9:30 a. m. at the home of Mrs. Hale Mason. Mrs. Alice Hedges, president of the local Republican Women's club, says party matters of key importance will be considered at the meeting.

Not only members of the GOP organization, but any women with Republican leanings who are interested in the up-coming election are most cordially invited to attend.

Just too hot for anything

That Tuesday afternoon was just "too hot for anything" was indicated by the small crowd downtown looking for lucky Cash Gift Day numbers. There weren't even enough number-holders on hand to turn up a winner. Consequently, the $400 "kitty" is being carried over intact to next Tuesday, when the amount will be divided into the customary eight $25 prizes at 2:00 p. m. and four $50's at 3:00 o'clock. If there's a change in the weather, the CGD committee anticipates that increased numbers of cash-seekers will succeed in producing some winners next week.

Cub Scouts meet on Monday night

Initial Cub Scout meeting of the new season will be held Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the school hot lunch room, according to Cubmaster Carl Trager. All Cubs, prospective or active, and their parents are urged to be present Mr. Trager says that dens had to be appreciably larger in size last year than is desireable, due to an insufficient number of Den Mothers.

Between 60 and 70 boys were in the Cub ranks a year ago. There were only six Dens, and they ranged in size from 10 to 13 boys.

It is recommended by the Scout organization that Dens range from no more than six to eight boys in membership.

Mr. Trager predicts that even more boys will be signing up for Cub Scouting this fall than last, making it keenly essential that a larger number of Den Mothers volunteer or the Cub program will be seriously hampered.

Objective of next Monday evening's meeting will be to get the Cub program organized as well as possible, in order that the young Scouts' activity year can be gotten off to a good start.

Throng enjoys "Wright hospitality"—

10,000 make stop at rest station

Wright county's 6th annual Labor Day weekend safety rest station, conducted at the roadside park seven miles south of Belmond by the sheriff's office, drew record patronage of more than 10,000 visitors during its operation from 5:00 p. m. last Friday until nearly 3:00 a. m. on Tuesday.

Sheriff Bob Blecker says that promises given by his guests indicated that similar holiday rest stations may be making an appearance in widespread parts of the nation in the next year or so if the enthusiasm of those guests can be imparted to law enforcement officials in their own states.

"What a wonderful idea!" was a comment repeatedly heard, he says, as refreshed wayfarers resumed their journeys after enjoying Wright county hospitality. And scores mentioned the resolve to see if they couldn't induce their counties to combat accidents due to holiday travel fatigue by establishment of a similar safety rest stop "at home."

Sheriff Blecker gave generous credit to the county's 4-H boys and girls, to the elevator firms of Wright county and to the other business concerns who contributed to the success of the undertaking

Approximately 105 4-H'ers worked in five-hour shifts; eight club leaders pitched in, too. The club girls served coffee, milk and doughnuts to the rest station's guests. The boys washed an estimated 2,500 or more windshields and sets of headlights. They represented all of Wright county's 31 4-H clubs.

The grain elevators contributed $320 toward the cost of refreshments served during the nearly 82 hours that the rest station was "doing business." Appreciative travelers contributed close to $450 for food and drink consumed.

Sheriff Blecker estimated overall cost of the rest station's operation at close to $800. A small balance was left over from last year, so the sheriff's office can look forward to next year with the project in a solvent condition.

Businesses other than the grain elevators provided needed equipment, utilities and supplies that helped make the rest stop the success that it was.

Peak of the rest station's activity was reached Sunday and Monday nights, when at times the park grounds were practically jammed with cars. Sheriff Blecker says, "The windshield washers really got a work out; and those girls did a simply wonderful job behind the refreshment counter."

A check of the guest register Tuesday by Bob Blecker, assisted by his wife, revealed that guests at the rest station included citizens from no less than seven foreign countries: South Africa, Greenland, Belgium, Switzerland, France, England and Canada.

The Belgian visitors were a newlywed couple honeymooning in the U. S. Sheriff Blecker says, "They could speak hardly any English — but enough to get the idea, and to be very grateful for the hospitality shown them."

All but 14 states in the union were represented on the guest register. The geographic range shown by the registrations extended from Maine to California, and from Alaska and Washington to Florida. Besides the 36 states, Washington, D. C., had representation, also.

Radio broadcasts during the weekend that told of the rest station had many travelers on the lookout for it. A couple from South Carolina on their way to Minneapolis said they deliberately changed their route in order to avail themselves of the much-publicized rest stop.

Travelers in several cars that had been headed north or south on Highway 65 said they swung clear over to No. 69 for the sole purpose of visiting the rest station.

A good many visitors confessed they stopped due to curiosity and to test the statement on the signs either side of the rest station that refreshments were actually being served "free."

Those refreshments, according to Sheriff Blecker, included 790 dozen (almost 9,500) doughnuts, 210 gallons of milk, 340 gallons of coffee and 28 pints of cream.

It was a widely expressed consensus of the throng that paused to refresh themselves at the rest station that holiday accident tolls would be much smaller if numerous localities the country over copied a page from Wright county's book and invited travelers to enjoy a restful stop in order to send them on their way refreshed.

Marjorie Johnson elected president of nursing class

Marjorie Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Galen Johnson, has been elected president of the senior class of the Methodist-Kahler School of Nursing at Rochester, Minn. The Class of '61 will graduate in August of next year.

More than usual distinction attaches to election as a class officer at Methodist-Kahler because candidates must hold a grade average of B or higher to be eligible for office. Election to a class office also makes the holder automatically a member of the nursing school's student council.

Miss Johnson has been active at the Rochester nursing school in both athletics and in the choir. The singing group makes an annual spring tour and appears periodically in joint concerts with the widely known Rochester Community Male Glee club.

At present, the Methodist-Kahler choir is practicing in preparation for an appearance on UN Day, in October, in a program with the Rochester symphony orchestra and other singing groups.

Rest station guests "take 5" to cool off

THESE THREE FAMILIES hailing from Minnesota and Illinois, found a spot of shade to stand in while enjoying a brief respite from their travels and a bit of refreshment — courtesy of the Wright county sheriff's office, and friends — Monday afternoon. They were among more than 10,000 persons who took advantage of the hospitality extended by Wright county's 6th Labor Day rest station during the nearly 82 hours that it operated from Friday evening until early Tuesday morning.

Wright 4-H team won third place

Wright county's 4-H livestock judging team placed third in the contest held at the recent North Iowa Fair. Seventh high individual in the contest was David Reichter, a member of the Liberty Pathfinders 4-H club, who received 380 points out of a possible 450.

Other members of the team judging at Mason City were Paul Waters and Gary Patterson of the Blaine Liveswires and David Suntken of the Pleasant Pioneers.

Alternate on the team, who also judged in the individual contest, was Raymond Houck of the Blaine Livewires 4-H club.

The Wright county 4-H livestock judging team also participated in the Iowa State Fair contest at Des

Riehm declares Democrats sought no farm "solution"

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Curtis G. Riehm, the Republican candidate for U. S. Representative in Congress from the 6th District of Iowa, stated, after the Democrat-controlled Congress had adjourned, that:

"The action of the Democrat-controlled Congress proves conclusively that the Democrats want a farm problem and not a farm solution in this election year. Farm legislation was a 'must' in 1960. The Democrats, who control Congress by a two-thirds majority, could have enacted into law any farm program they desired. They should stand indicted for their lack of action. Iowans expected, and rightfully so, that Iowa Congressmen would provide the leadership to secure needed farm legislation.

"To explain their failure to act for the Iowa farmer, the Democrats will blame Benson and will say that the President would have vetoed any farm legislation enacted by a Democrat-controlled Congress; but this created no problem to the Democratic Congress when they passed over the President's veto of the pay raise for all federal employees. The people of Iowa now readily see the fallacy of this argument.

"The people of Iowa are waking up to the fact that only by electing Republican Congressmen, dedicated to the task of solving the farm problem, will the problems of the Midwest and the Iowa farmer be solved.

"I predict that the people of Iowa will return an overwhelming majority for the Republican Congressmen on Nov. 8, who are dedicated to finding a solution to the farm problem."

Riehm stated, "People in the 6th District and all over the State of Iowa, and this includes Democrats and Republicans, are disturbed and discouraged by the voting record of Merwin Coad, the Democrat Congressman from the 6th District. After four years in Congress, Iowans have a right to expect some effective help from Coad.

"But his record as a legislator for the past four years has been a bitter disappointment. In spite of the fact that Coad's Democrat Party has been in control of Congress, and of every committee of Congress. Coad's influence in Washington was so slight that not a single one of the 61 public bills he introduced was enacted into law during the period of his service in Congress from 1957 through 1960."

Adams will speak Wednesday night at PTA meeting

Fights mar Labor Day program—

Raceway melee brings arrest of 3

Three drivers who have been members of the racing field at Wright County Raceway this season paid $355 in fines and costs in the court of Mayor E. F. Bisbey at Clarion Tuesday afternoon as an outgrowth of a melee Monday night at the race track

Charged with inciting a riot and also with assault and battery, Robert C. Flaws, 28, and Cecil L. Gramblin, 27, were fined $90 and $50 respectively on the two counts after pleading guilty before the Clarion mayor.

Both are from Webster City, as is Dean W. Flaws, 26, who pleaded guilty to assault and battery and was fined $50 plus costs.

Sheriff Bob Blecker had accompanied a Raceway employee to Clarion to deposit the night's gate receipts and was returning to the track when the free-for-all got underway. On a hunch, he had stopped at the sheriff office's rest station a short way south of the race track on his return trip and picked up Deputy Dale Walrod. When they arrived at the track they were greeted by a call for help over the public address system.

Stanley Riedel of Rowan, promoter of the races, informed The Independent that the ruckus started after Alden Flaws, father of the two drivers of the same name, started an argument over the disqualification of a Flaws car from a race program held about eight weeks ago.

On the "tear-down," the car had not met specifications and the entry money paid on it had been sacrificed The elder Flaws remonstrated heatedly over retention of the entry fee — and when Riedel refused to return it, the Webster Citian started swinging, the race promoter says.

When Blecker and Walrod arrived on the scene, the sheriff caught an unexpected punch on the nose and in a tussle moments later his gun was sent flying from its holster. Riedel and two track employees, whose names he did not provide, were beaten by the Flaws and their companion in the course of the fist-swinging.

Sheriff Blecker reported to The Independent that he and Deputy Walrod had a hand in stopping four different fights before matters quieted down, and he heard that at least a couple of others ran their course before the law could enter into the proceedings.

He says that a warrant has been issued for the arrest of a fourth man, whom he did not identify, and that the latter's appearance in court on charges of assault and battery and inciting a riot is pending.

Riedel says the fighting broke out about 9:45 p. m. The better part of an hour elapsed before matters were brought fully under control.

Gramblin and the two Flaws were hailed before Mayor Bisbey early Tuesday morning, but they pleaded not guilty and were locked up in the Wright county jail at Clarion when none were able to post $500 appearance bond.

After spending the balance of the night, Tuesday morning and part of the afternoon in the hoosegow, the threesome asked for another appearance in mayor's court in order that they could change their pleas. They were released after paying the $355 in fines and costs assessed against them.

Meservey native advanced to high position in USDA

Dr. Clarence H. Pals, a native of Meservey, was named this week as director of the meat inspection division of the agriculture research service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. He has been an employee of the agriculture department for 28 years.

The advancement came to Dr. Pals upon the retirement of Dr. Albert R. Miller after holding the position for 35 years. Dr. Pals has been living in Washington, D. C., where he will continue to make his home.

A son of the late H. K. Pals, Meservey hardwareman of some years ago, Dr. Pals has only one relative still living in Meservey — a cousin, Mrs. Clarence Ruigh. Dr. Pals visited Mrs. Ruigh and friends in Meservey only last month and at that time related that he was hoping for the promotion that has just been announced.

Dr. Pals attended Iowa State Teachers college, taught rural school in Iowa for two years, and earned a doctor's degree in veterinary midicine from Iowa State university in 1932, the same year he joined the USDA.

When he first joined the department he was assigned to the Chicago office as a veterinary meat inspector. Subsequent field assignment took him to Fort Dodge, Estherville and Sioux City. In 1941, he went to New York and was assigned to Washington in 1944.

EG 4-H'er shows reserve champion pig at state fair

Wright county had six 4-H exhibitors at the Iowa State Fair that was concluded last Saturday. The others besides Moser also earned respectable placings, as follows:

John Rodecap, Lake Leaders — Brown Swiss heifer calves, 2nd and 7th place.

Gary Watts, Dayton Dynamiters — Milking Shorthorn heifer calves, 2nd and 4th place.

Terry Hilyard, Troy Toppers — Chester White market pigs, 3rd place individual and 3rd place pen of three.

Marily Conover, Blaine Livewires — Angus steer, 8th place.

Raymond Houck, Blain Livewires — Angus steer, 8th place; Hereford steer, 19th place.

CINDY BACK TO SCHOOL

Pool drew big crowd Labor Day

AS THAT FAMOUS advertising slogan says, swimming at Luick Memorial Pool up to its official close on the evening of Labor Day was "good to the last drop;" and that was "good, too." As the above picture suggests, the pool was put to very extensive use Monday afternoon as a horde of young people, plus a fair scattering of adults, sought relief from the unseasonable heat with a cooling dip. The comment of more than one grateful parent during the hot spell that closed out the local swimming season was, "Bless Chester Luick and his love of our children!" There was some talk of the pool being re-opened temporarily for the coming weekend — if the temperature didn't dip. But Pool Manager Gerald Kintzi said THAT was up to the weatherman.

John Jones rites held on Tuesday

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist church for John H. Jones, who died last Saturday after having suffered a stroke Monday of last week. Rev. M. L. Jones officiated and Fulton Funeral Home was in charge. Burial was in the Belmond cemetery.

Pallbearers were Lester, Lewis and Jim Manifold, all of Hampton; Robert Ziert, Cedar Falls; Harold Gillett, Marshalltown; and Ed Kopache, Geneva. All were nephews of Mr. Jones except the last named who was a nephew by marriage.

Mr. Jones, though blind during his later years, had enjoyed good health for his age until he was stricken last week while visiting in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Gerald Berns. He passed away at Belmond Community hospital.

John Hammond Jones was born May 26, 1876, at Four Mile Grove in Franklin county, son of T. F. and Elizabeth Jones. He was married to Maude Bowers on Oct. 23, 1901 at Hampton.

During the earlier years of his adulthood, Mr. Jones farmed. After giving up that occupation he was employed for a number of years by the M. & St. L. railroad, until his enforced retirement 29 years ago last March due to failing eyesight.

He was preceded in death by his wife in 1941 and by a son, Eldon, in 1926.

Survivors, in addition to Mrs. (Marie) Berns are a son, Ralph of Belmond; and two other daughters, Mrs. Ed (Verna) Riggs of Caldwell, Ark., and Mrs. Virgil (Esther) Stiegelmeyer of Sioux City. Mr. Jones also leaves nine grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

John Brown fills prominent role at feed parley

John Brown, proprietor of the Meservey Home Elevator, returned home Thursday of last week after appearing as a head-liner on a three-day convention of Professional Feed dealers held at Kansas City, Mo.

Some 400 dealers from Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska and Arkansas were present for the meeting and heard Mr. Brown tell of the building of his feed mill about a year ago and the promotion program that has led to its phenominal growth.

Feedmen attending the convention were informed that in the past year the volume of feed sold by Meservey Home Elevator has increased 1,300 per cent.

Mr. Brown appeared on four different panels in the course of the convention and served as a consultant to answer questions on feed mill operation and promotion throughout the three-day period.

The Meservey feed mill was cited as a model operation, illustrating what an elevator proprietor can find possible by conversion to feed manufacture and expert promotion of his product.

HOBNOBBING with the "high brass" is regarded a distinct asset to office seekers in an election year. Above is shown Congressman Merwin Coad of the Iowa 6th District in a confab with Jack Kennedy, Democratic presidential candidate, at the time of Kennedy's recent farm policy parley at Des Moines. Coad's Republican rival, Attorney Curtis Riehm of Garner, was scheduled for a conference Wednesday of this week with Kennedy's opposite number, Vice President Richard Nixon. However, an announcement early this week that Mr. Nixon had entered Walter Reed Army hospital for treatment of a leg infection cast doubt on the likelihood of a Nixon-Riehm conference at this time. Riehm was also booked for a meeting with President Eisenhower while in the U. S. capital, though. If the GOP is on its toes, a picture of THAT should be forthcoming.

Thompson enlists; sent to Lackland

Ronald Thompson, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Thompson, recently at Des Moines took his oath of enlistment in the U. S. Aerospace Force and afterward left by commercial airline for Lackland AFB near San Antonio, Tex.

At Lackland he will undergo five weeks of initial basic training, after which he will be transferred to some technical installation for specialized training in one of the 43 career fields in the USAF.

Recruit Thompson in preliminary tests showed special aptitude in the area of mechanics.

Ronald graduated this spring from Belmond High school. He has a brother who is also in military service in Texas, being stationed at Camp Hood with the U. S. Army.

Selective Service to place fewer in 4-F classification

New procedures to identify men presently classified IV-F who will be qualified for military service in an emergency, but who are not accepted under current Armed Forces standards, will be put into effect by Iowa Selective Service local boards, Colonel Glenn R. Bowles, state director of Selective Service for Iowa, announces. The new procedures have been adopted on a national basis.

"These men will no longer be placed in Class IV-F (physically or mentally unfit or morally unacceptable). Selective Service Regulations will be amended to provide a new Selective Service classification for men not accepted under current standards, but who would be available and qualified for military or civilian service in an emergency," the State Director stated.

"Until the changes in the regulations are adopted, those men the local boards find who would be qualified for some service in an emergency will keep their current classification. Local boards will continue to place in Class IV-F those men the Armed Forces are unlikely to need even in an emergency."

"Armed Forces Examining Stations will adapt their procedures to report to local boards after examination whether (1) a man is currently qualified, (2) may be qualified in an emergency, or (3) is unlikely to be needed for military service in an emergency" Colonel Bowles added.

The State Director pointed out that current standards of acceptability have resulted in high rejection rates. Many men not accepted today who are presently classified IV-F would have to serve in an emergency under amended standards. Identification in advance of men qualified to serve in an emergency will permit the local boards to save time in meeting mobilization requirements and to advise these men and their employers of their availability in an emergency.

"The new procedures will provide a more realistic picture of the manpower resources for an emergency," Colonel Bowles stated. "It will also emphasize that rejection is temporary and that a IV-F classification does not mean a man is unable to contribute to the military service or to pursue vital civilian activities as circumstances may require."

Approximately 40,000 men are classified IV-F in Iowa as of June 30, 1960, out of 356,195 men classified by local boards since 1948. Fewer men will be put into Class IV-F in the future under the new procedures.

Farmers may yet earn ACP funds Soil bank drafts

Funds are available for approval of additional requests by Wright county farmers for government cost-sharing on needed soil and water conservation practices which can be completed this fall or by the end of 1960, it is reported this week by Jack G. Masters, the Wright county ASC office manager.

He urged all farm operators having conservation problems to visit the county ASC office in Clarion at their earliest convenience to get complete information on the cost-sharing Agricultural Conservation Program, known as ACP.

He said that a number of the offered practices — such as spreading of limestone, construction of terraces, erosion control dams and livestock water dams, tiling and earthwork on sod waterways — can be carried out successfully in the fall and early winter if weather conditions are favorable.

Mr. Masters emphasized that one of the requirements for qualifying for conservation cost-sharing is that an application covering the desired practice must be filed in the county ASC office before work is started on the practice.

Since soil tests are required for some practices in the 1960 program and will also be required for similar practices in 1961, Mr. Masters declared that this is an excellent time to have the tests made. Complete information on getting soil tested and taking of soil samples may be obtained at the county ASC office.

So far this year, a total of 167 applications for cost-sharing conservation work on Wright county farms has been approved by the county ASC committee.

ALEXANDER NEWS

MRS. H. B. JANSSEN

Rev. J. Hoekstra attended an all day session of the Church Extension committee of Classis Pleasant Prairie of the Reformed church at Waterloo last Friday in preparation for the regular fall session of the Classis to be held at Belmond on Tuesday, Sept. 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Erickson and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Erickson, Tim, Letha and Mark of Huxley were dinner guests Sunday in the Tom Erickson home.

Mrs. Emil Hagen and Frieda of Forest City and Mrs. Robert Hughes of Clear Lake were supper guests Wednesday evening of last week at the Don Hagen home.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Gunderson of Belmond and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Eckhoff were sponsors Sunday morning at the baptism of Dennis Dean Gunderson in the Lutheran church at Belmond and later were dinner guests in the Dean Gunderson home. Julia and Jimmy Eckhoff were also present.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Larsen and Lynette of Minneapolis, Minn., and Theo Larsen of Mason City were weekend guests in the Chris Larsen home and with other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Larsen and family of Mason City were Sunday afternoon callers in the Fred Greenfield home.

2,750-mile journey by motorcycle enjoyed by four Alexander youths

Four Alexander youths recently returned from a 2,750-mile motorcycle trip that cost them just $12 for gasoline plus a bare minimum of additional cash and left all agreed that it had been a wonderful experience.

Wayne Vestweber, Galen Hackbarth, Kent Myers and Leonard Bobst, all 17, planned the journey before school let out last spring and departed on their jaunt Aug. 10. Each rode a single-cylinder Harley Davidson to which was attached his sleeping bag and extra clothing.

Their first stop was at the Wisconsin Dells, where their camp was so close to a railroad track that they went virtually without sleep the first night out. They refreshed themselves by renting a cabin at Duluth, the next evening, and resting over the weekend.

Relatives at Aiken and Morris, Minn., were visited the next day and an aunt of Galen's stoked them up with home-cooked food for a resumption of their travels.

Heading west, the group experienced its first trouble when Kent had a tire go bad but succeeded in wheedling a $19 tire off a cycle shop proprietor for $4.40 and his old tire at Watertown, S. D.

At Wall, S. D., home of the world-famed drug store, rain presented a housing problem. They explained to a cop that they didn't have money for a cabin and he obligingly let them move tables out of a park shelter house and use its accommodations for the night.

After exploring the Black Hills, Mount Rushmore and Crystal Cave, the boys changed their plans to go on to Yellowstone Park when they heard that a nine-inch snow had fallen there.

They swung south to Lusk, Wyo., where they found a fair and rodeo in progress and at a street dance made the acquaintance of some genuine western girls, whom they give their stamp of approval. In fact, they're laying plans to revisit Lusk.

Going on to Hengingsford, Neb., they found another fair — which was featuring motorcycle races, to their delight. They arrived back home 11 days after their departure, all ready to settle down for their senior year in high school — except for Wayne, who graduated last spring.

MRS. RUSSELL REASONER, PAMELA AND "BUCK"

Meet the newcomers—

Russell "Buck" Reasoner, in a few short weeks as station agent here for the Rock Island, has found that Belmond is one "small town" where railroading is not a dying mode of transportation.

Thanks particularly to General Mills, the Rock Island depot does a decidedly large volume of business. Consequently, "Buck" has considerably more to keep him busy here than he had at Crystal Lake, where he'd been agent for 18 years before coming here.

The move to Belmond brings both Mr. Reasoner and his wife closer to "home," for both are natives of Rowan. Mrs. Reasoner is the former Margaret Emerson and her mother, Mrs. Mabel Emerson, still lives at Rowan.

"Buck" is a bred-in-the-bone railroader. His father, James Reasoner, was a section foreman at Rowan. "Buck" learned telegraphy and accounting from the Rowan station agent of 20 years ago, Dale "Curly" Farran.

It had been Mr. Reasoner's plan to become a Great Western employee along with his home-town buddy, Kay Ketchum, who took his telegrapher's examination at the same time. But when the CGW couldn't find a spot for him right away, "Buck" took a job with the Rock Island and for two years was on the extra board, filling in at numerous stations in Iowa and Minnesota.

While he liked Crystal Lake very well as a place to live, "Buck" says that he likes the Belmond job better because it keeps him busier. He and his wife and daughter Pamela, who is a BHS freshman, already feel much at home in Belmond and are sure they will like the community very well.

"Buck" is both a golf and bowling enthusiast. He's affiliated with a league bowling team for the season just started. The Reasoners have belonged to the Forest City Country club, and are looking forward to membership at Clarmond Country club next year.

NEW BELMOND

Film Highlights

—from—

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Bigger than big is the spectacular "Ulysses," which stars Kirk Douglas, Silvana Mangano and Anthony Quinn in half of the double-feature being presented by the New Belmond tonight through Saturday. Completing the bill is a teen-age dramatic thriller, "The Big Night," with Randy Sparks and Venetia Stevenson in the lead roles.

Jack Oakie, who was a top star at Paramount Studio 23 years ago, returned to that lot for the filming of "The Rat Race," showing Sunday through Wednesday. He'd interrupted his retirement only for for an appearance in "Around the World in 80 Days."

Jack was coaxed before the camera again with this co-starring role of a philosophical bartender. Debbie Reynolds and Tony Curtis share top-billing with the old-timer.

They play a jazz musician and a dime-a-dance girl who are trying to crack the big-time on Broadway. The story is built around their efforts to buck the big city "rat race" and carve careers for themselves despite discouragements.

Soil bank drafts on wright farms come next month

Issuance of drafts for the 1960 annual payments on soil bank conservation reserve contracts in Wright county will begin on Oct. 3 or soon thereafter, it was announced this week by Jack G. Masters, Wright county ASC office manager.

October has been fixed as the earliest time for making the annual payments because the growing season is then well advanced and the county ASC office can make the necessary check to determine that all provisions of the contracts for taking cropland out of production have been complied with. Conservation reserve land may not be harvested or grazed, and noxious weeds on the land must be controlled.

Forms CSS-280 will be mailed to contract holders to be signed and returned to the county office so that checks can be issued.

There are 14 conservation reserve contracts on farms in Wright county. These contracts cover 1,278 acres of cropland. According to the latest statewide summary, there are 7,726 contracts in Iowa, covering 663,087 acres.

Mr. and Mrs. Avron Kreitlow and family attended the Sanvik-Sanders wedding in the Lutheran church at Albert Lea, Minn., Saturday evening Aug. 27.

JERRY ALDRICH AND FRIEND ON FIELD TRIP

Concludes 9-week science course

AMES (Special) — Jerry Aldrich (left) of Belmond has returned to teach at Alden Community school after spending nine weeks as a student at Iowa State university. At right is Everett Ludley of Webster City. The two men were among 16 persons who participated in a nine-week Institute of Earth Science at Iowa State.

The course was conducted for outstanding high school science teachers by the Iowa State geology department in conjunction with the National Science Foundation and the College of Science at Iowa State.

Six weeks of lecture and laboratory work was conducted on the Iowa State campus, followed by a three-week field trip.

Traveling by bus, the group spent one week studying the geologic features of the Bad Lands (where the above picture was taken), Black Hills, and the eastern slopes of the Big Horn Mountains. One week they camped at the Iowa State University Geology Camp on the western slope of the Big Horn Mountains, near Shell, Wyo.

The final week was spent in Yellowstone and Teton National Parks and other areas of geologic interest in western Wyoming.

THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE
GOP
has brought civil rights gains
In the Republican years—since 1953 — the cause of equal rights for all Americans, regardless of race, creed or color, has made more progress than in all the preceding decades back to the Emancipation Proclamation.
In 1957, the first civil rights law in 80 years was pushed through Congress by Republicans, over Democratic opposition. Senate Democrats, including most of the self-styled "liberals," voted to consign the bill to death in Senator Eastland's Judiciary Committee.
In 1960, the President asked the balking Democratic Congress to enact a new civil rights law guaranteeing voting rights to all Americans, barring interference with the Supreme Court decision on school desegregation, banning "hate" bombings, and establishing a permanent commission on equal job opportunities on Federal jobs.
Republicans have appointed more than 625 Negroes to positions paying more than $6,000 annually.

Broncos open card against Clarion

SPORTS

Neither team will have an appreciable edge in experience when Belmond and Clarion open their football cards tomorrow at 7:45 p. m. with a clash on the Cowboy gridiron. Belmond's North Iowa conference co-champs have seven lettermen from last year still available, plus another player who lettered as a sophomore but didn't repeat in '59. Clarion has six veterans back.

The Cowboys have a big edge in wins over the long rivalry with Belmond but had to settle for a 6-6 tie last fall. In fact, the Cowpokes had to rally to save a defeat.

Coach Rich Koolbeck will have four letter-winners in his starting backfield — Jerry Jenison at quarterback, Mike Armour at fullback, Vernon Pastour at left half and Dennis Anderson at right half. Bob Finn will be used at end, so long as this quartet stays healthy — but will very possibly see backfield service.

Another letterman from a year ago is Bob Lee, who is competing with Dennis Fuller, a sophomore, for the first-string center assignment. Bob Whipple, a B-winner as a sophomore, is slated for a starting position at tackle.

Bob Stadtlander, the other regular from last year's title-winning crew, will be placed at guard. Coach Koolbeck will use Merrill Kalkwarf at guard on the other side of the line.

Sharing tackle duties with Whipple will be either Larry Hawley or Bill Heinzig. The Bronco system of line play permits interchange of the guards and tackles, so the five slated for these positions may be moved around some.

Robbie Courson will likely be the second starting end. Koolbeck says Miran Kling and Jay Mennenga are also being used at the wings and will undoubtedly see action.

Dennis Hauge and Sam Johnson are developing as reserve quarterbacks, Koolbeck reports. The former suffered a leg injury last week and was on crutches for a while but may be ready for limited duty tomorrow night. Ray Roberts, like Hauge just a sophomore, is second man at the fullback spot. Kirk Cunningham and Marlo Luick, another sophomore, are next in line for halfback duty.

Coach Wayne Bergstrom has a squad of 53 reporting at Clarion, but only six are letter veterans and only four were starters a year ago. Speedy John Pletcher and Jim Barker, both seniors, will be at the two halves. Dick Basham is the likely starter at quarterback and Wayne Titus at fullback; neither lettered last season.

The line veterans are Ron Mosher at end, Roger Sebert at guard, Charles LaRue at the other guard and Bill Schumacher, center. Most disturbing problem to Coach Bergstrom is filling the tackle positions. He has only one man, Senior Bob Rink, who got in any game time at tackle last year.

A fairly good number of seniors and juniors are on hand to challenge for all the varsity posts. Only one or two sophomores are making serious bids for first string berths.

Coach Koolbeck reports that eight more candidates have joined the Bronco squad since the roster was published a couple of weeks ago. The newcomers, bringing the squad total up to 69, are: Danny Nelson, Denny Steenblock and Dave Ammerman, juniors; Kenton Stille, a sophomore; Jim Miller, Jon Oberhauser, Ron Middleton and Terry Armour, freshmen.

Stockmen, Pioneers take 4-H softball finals; 6-3, 11-10

Final standings in the Wright county 4-H softball leagues were released this week by Gerald K. Anderson, extension associate.

The top four teams in each league competed in the county tournament. This was concluded by a 6 to 3 win by the Woolstock Junior Stockmen over the Liberty Pathfinders for the senior championship in a game played at Clarion on Wednesday of last week.

Earlier, the Pleasant Pioneers had taken the junior title by trimming the Dayton Dynamiters 22-6 and then edging the Woolstock juniors in the finals 11-10.

The Pioneers' win prevented Woolstock from a clean sweep for the girls' club, the Willing Workers, downed the Dayton Dandies 26-10 for the girls' championship.

Pin season gets off with "bang"

Don Nielsen helped get the 1960-61 bowling season off to a sensational start last Thursday night by coming within two balls of a perfect, 300 game at Bowl-Mor Lanes.

Rolling his first game since last spring, Don uncorked a string of 10 consecutive strikes before his 11th ball missed the head pin on the left and allowed three pins to remain standing.

He picked up the spare on his remaining ball to finish with a remarkable 287 score, the highest of his career.

Bowling in the men's leagues started out in mid-season fashion, as reflected in the "Top Tens" column on this page, which Tomco, Inc., is sponsoring again this year.

With a 219 required to make the top 10 for single games and 565 for series, Proprietors Gene and Dorothy Pearson were convinced that local league bowlers are going to find the new Bowl-Mor alleys and AMF pin-spotters very much to their liking.

Dear Driver:

A few weeks ago, I saw a little girl struck by a car as she tried to cross the street. I saw a father race toward her and hold her to him as she struggled in the agony of death. I saw all the plans that had been made for her dashed and saw the look of despair that came over his face. I could only offer a prayer that such a thing might never happen again.

A few days ago my daughter, who is 9 years old, started off to school. She told me about a girl who sits in front of her, a girl with yellow curls, and about a boy across the aisle who makes faces; about the teacher who has eyes in the back of her head; about the trees in the school yard and the big girl who does not believe in Santa Claus.

We talked about a lot of things — tremendously vital and unimportant things.

Now, as this is written, she is sound asleep wih her doll "Larry" in her arms.

When her doll gets broken or her finger gets cut or her head gets bumped, I can fix them. But when she starts across the street — then Mr. Driver, she is in your hands.

Much as I wish I could, it's not possible for me to be with her all the time. I have to work to pay for her home, her clothes, her education.

So, Mr. Driver, please help me to look out for her. Please drive carefully. And please remember that sometimes children run from behind parked cars.

Please don't run over my little girl.

With deepest thanks for whatever you can do for her, I am

Very Sincerely yours,
C. L. Carstens

County consolidation far-off prospect, only

What possibly lies ahead in the way of changes in county government to bring about greater efficiency is discussed by Prof. Donald E. Boles, associate professor of government at Iowa State university, Ames, in the August issue of the Iowa Business Digest. In these days of ever-rising property taxes, this is a problem that is bound to receive more and more serious attention.

However, Professor Boles is not too optimistic over the prospect of radical changes that would give promise of appreciable economies in administration. He sees as the biggest obstacle to county consolidation, which represents the likeliest means of major reduction in expense, the fact that the county is regarded as the nucleus of party organization.

"Patronage and favors dispensed at this level are felt to solidify the dominant party's position and insure it future success at the polls," says the educator.

This makes the prospect of outright consolidation of counties very dim for some time to come. There remains, though, another means of increasing administrative efficiency to a major degree. This is the creation of an executive officer to assume the responsibilities now loosely held by the board of supervisors.

Some states — and New York is given as an example — have remedied this situation by having an elected county executive. A more common plan, and one which has some advantages over the elective procedure, is the county manager system. Where county managers have been appointed, notable savings have accrued to the taxpayers, says Professor Boles.

While supervisor cost, itself, is a minor part of the county budget, comparison of such county expenses raises the question of whether the average outlay for this purpose is justified. So-called "committee work" monopolizes much of the supervisor's time — but the number of days varies widely.

For example, in Worth county the supervisors in 1952-53 averaged 300 days annually on committee work — and in Cherokee county, only 40 days. In Wright county the average is about 225 days. Here another 33 days, on the average, are devoted to board sessions; the supervisors average 310 days a year "on the job," or five days every week.

There is also a curious discrepancy in the amount of driving required of various supervisors. In Pottawattamie, one of Iowa's largest counties, the board members averaged in 1952-53 about 7,700 miles of driving to perform their duties. In Emmett county, half as large, mileage averaged 10,094 miles for its five-member board.

In Wright county last year, mileage reported ranged from a low of 5,814 (Everett Nelson, District 2) to 10,409 (Harland Hill, District 5).

Much of the committee work and mileage in a county like Wright arises from the district system of administration. Facts are easily marshalled to prove that a three-man board, elected at-large, provides a county with much more efficient administration that a five-man board whose allegiance is first to their small geographical area and second to the county taxpayers as a group.

Reorganization of county government in Iowa is unquestionably a long way in the future. Even feasible consolidation of county offices is not apt to come about quickly.

Wright county's best chance of achieving more economical and more efficient government lies in a shift to a three-man board of supervisors chosen at-large. With less concern over doing favors for district constituents, such a board — with a broader view of their responsibilities — could effect much greater savings than would be involved simply in reduced mileage and per diem claims.

Stay-at-homes can help decide elections, too

A question of intriguing interest in the minds of many American citizens these days is: who will the voters elect in November?

If facts are faced, though, a better phrasing of the question would be: who are the STAY-AT-HOME voters going to elect in November?

While there probably has been some desertion to the Democratic ranks of independent voters in the 6th Iowa Congressional District in the past 10 years, a large and crucial over-dose of indifference on the part of Republican voters has been decisively responsible for putting a Democratic candidate in Congress — and keeping him there.

Take a look at these figures. In 1952, Rep. James I. Dolliver was elected to Congress from the 6th by a margin of 47,597 votes. In 1954, his winning margin was nearly 30,000 less — 18,320. However, this diminished margin was not so much the result of lessened popularity of Mr. Dolliver as due to the fact that 39,863 less Republican voters went to the polls than in '52, whereas the drop-off of Democratic voters came to only 14,483.

Coad whipped Bob Wagoner, his 1958 opponent, by 16,287 votes. In that "off" year, 33,352 Republicans who voted in '56 didn't show up at the polls; but the number of Democrats who voted in 1956 but not in '58 came to only 8,979.

There you have — about as crystal clear as you can make it — the explanation of why the 6th District in 1958 took on the unfamiliar aspect of a Democratically inclined district.

Republicans who are not happy with the way Coad has been representing them in Congress can elect Curtis Riehm of Garner as the Boone pastor's successor ONLY by VOTING in November. They had almost as well go to the polls and vote for the incumbent Democratic Congressman as stay home and neglect their voting privilege.

Here in Wright county in 1958, only 6,999 out of 12,350 eligible voters cast ballots. Coad carried the county by 508 votes. A large majority of the 5,351 absent voters were men and women who normally would have voted Republican.

With the Democrats feeling their oats and turning out in record numbers, a Republican voter this fall can take his choice of two means of enhancing the Democrats' chances of victory. Go to the polls and vote the opposition ticket, or — the easy way — just stay home.

Iowa Falls adopts flouridation

The City Council of Iowa Falls has wisely — and finally — settled the flouridation issue in Iowa Falls.

Backed by the vigorous recommendations of the city's dentists and doctors and more than 700 citizens, who, in two days' time, signed favorable petitions, the council has said — once again — that flouridation will go forward in Iowa Falls.

EVERY FAMILY WITH CHILDREN in this town should thank the council for ignoring the "scare" tactics and the anonymous propaganda sheets which flooded the city for a few days.

We salute John Price and Clayton Peterson for doing what they said they would do — favoring the matter of there was substantial evidence that the people wanted it.

WE SALUTE, TOO, HANS LOVIG and Dr Robert Peglow for never wavering in their determination and particularly the leadership Mayor Cecil Jennings gave this matter.

Jennings was not only for flouridation; he worked for it. Iowa Falls has had many mayors but it has been a long, long time since the city has had a chief executive who worked — really worked — and gave direction and guidance to an effort like Jennings gave to this important matter.

AND FRANKLY, WE COMMEND the way that Councilman Herbert Robb played his role. He was against flouridation. He made no bones about it.

He never switched or rode the fence or said he would "go along" with anyone on the matter. And although we think he is just as wrong as wrong can be we at least admire him for standing firm at all times. — Hardin County Times

Hence, the glumps

Undoubtedly, people are starved for inspiration these days. I can remember when even popular songs were inspirational messages urging us to walk on the sunny side of the street, look for the silver lining, follow the rainbow and see nothing but blue skies. Everybody was so busy sorting out meteorological conditions he had no time to be miserable.

Compare these with the tons of today's popular songs: 'You ain't nothin' but a houn' dog.' 'I'm cryin' over you' and 'Them mean woman blues.' There is a strong trend toward revelling in the glumps. I don't want to be sitting here singing the virtues of smilin' through when the customer has his heart all set on blubbering.

THE SAME GOES FOR THE pictures on the wall. Thirty or 40 years ago every home had at least one of those rural-lane scenes around which was woven a text that always started with something like: "As you wander down life's road . . ."

Today—gone. In its place is an abstract modern painting that looks like what happens to you as you wander down life's road and get hit by a bus.

Maybe the pendulum is due to swing back towards the inspirational style. — Lake Mills Graphic

This is an expert?

Announcement was made in Des Moines Sunday of the formation of a nationwide Farmers for Kennedy-Johnson Committee, to advise the Democratic candidates and to carry their party message from farm to farm.

Senator Kennedy made this statement: "We have been extremely fortunate in bringing into the Kennedy-Johnson organization the most outstanding group of farm authorities ever assembled for a national campaign."

THE "OUTSTANDING FARM authority" from Iowa — the only member of the committee from this great agricultural state—is none other than Governor Herschel Loveless!

It's a little hard to figure out how this lifetime city resident, with no agricultural training or experience, could become one of the chief advisers to anyone on the farm problem.

THIS IS THE MAN WHO HAS denounced farm control of the Iowa legislature, in speaking on the state issue of reapportionment. As governor he has many times taken the side of the city people against the farmer.

Right here in Pocahontas county we have a number of Democrats who are far better qualified than Loveless to speak for the farmer. If the Iowa member is an example, it would seem that the Farmers for Kennedy-Johnson Committee was picked on the basis of party loyalty rather than agricultural know-how. — Neil Maurer in Laurens Sun

IN HOMETOWN AMERICA

SCANNING THE HORIZON

WITH YE ED

DISGRUNTLED DEMOCRAT—

If Duane Anderson ever becomes senior partner of the Belmond Publishing company by surviving the other two members of the present triumverate, The Independent may become for the first time in its career a Democratic paper.

Ye Ed and Brother Gowdy, good Republicans and true, realize this and are trying to take the best care of themselves to avoid this catastrophe. But since "Andy" has quite a considerable age advantage on us, such a tragic state of affairs COULD develop.

We're at the moment particularly impressed with the divergence of political opinion among The Independent's publishers due to a complaint registered by Anderson last week.

In our mail was a picture of Congressman Merwin Coad and Democratic Presidential Candidate Jack Kennedy discussing farm matters at the recent Demo Farm Work Conference at Des Moines.

Ye Ed didn't wish to be accused of dropping it in the round file just to avoid giving Pastor Coad a bit of publicity — so we had it all ready for insertion in the paper, if there should be room. We did, however, write our own "cut lines" to go under it. — and there lay the rub.

Remarked "Andy" bitterly to your scribe, "Only YOU could write cut lines for a picture like than and manage to mention Kennedy only once, Coad twice—while using the name of Riehm (Coad's opponent) and Vice President Nixon THREE TIMES EACH!"

We could only assure him that, the way we'd gone about it, it'd been easy.

POOR POLITICKERS?—

What gives with the gals at BHS? All four of the class presidents this year are boys. Last year, three out of the four were boys. If we were to answer our own question, it would be with the suggestion that chivalry is in something less than full flower in the local halls of learning.

It seems fairly apparent that the girls are voting the candidate and not the gender.

On the other hand, the boys (with strength of numbers, 152 to 134) appear set on demonstrating their masculine superiority. The junior girls hold a 40-36 edge, but the boys predominate otherwise as follows: 9th grade, 40-35; 10th grade 42-31, and 12th grade 34-28.

Actually, it doesn't disturb us in particular; but we wonder if those young ladies who so blithely permit the males to dominate BHS politics know how hard-fought the battle was to "win the vote" for their grandmas 40 years ago.

IT WAS A HARD FIGHT—

Those grandmas who were "of age" 40 years ago will clearly recall that it was in the national election of 1920 that they first had the right to cast ballots. This was the climax of an arduous campaign that had been launched 'way back in 1848 at Seneca Falls, N. Y., where the first woman suffrage convention in the U. S. was held.

Two years later, reformers — both male and female — from the nation over assembled at Worcester, Mass., as the Woman's Rights Convention. This launched the crusade that came to climax with drafting of the 19th Amendment during World War I.

There was talk at the time that such fantastic schemes as woman suffrage and prohibition would never have gained headway had not the flower of American manhood been overseas fighting for world democracy.

Be that as it may, a woman suffrage amendment was first submitted to the U. S. House of Representatives in 1917. A year later the pressure was stepped up and President Woodrow Wilson went before a joint session of Congress to urge the amendment's passage.

Sixty years after the movement was launched, the vote by states to approve the woman suffrage amendment was initiated. And 40 years ago last month, the necessary three-fourths of the states had put their OK on it — just in time for the women voters to show their appreciation to Democratic President Wilson by giving the 1920 Republican presidential candidate, Warren G. Harding, a landslide victory over James M. Cox, Wilson's would-be Democratic successor!

FAMILY MONOPOLY —

No lack of political acumen can be charged against the Soma clan (we're returning to those high school elections, for the moment). Twigs on the family tree of Mrs. E. J. (Anna) Soma completely monopolized the freshman class offices.

Three of her great grandchildren, Jim Pasquariello, Jerry Soma and Doug Pals, were elected as president, vice president and secretary, respectively; and the freshman treasurer is Kathy Soma, a granddaughter!

Jim Trees soon 35 years with Skelly Oil Co.

Jim Trees' period of service with the Skelly Oil company comes within five or six years of being long enough to cover that concern's whole history. On the 20th of October, Jim will have been a Skelly employee for 35 years.

A treasured possession of Jim's is a gold wristwatch that Skelly gave him five years ago in recognition of his 30th anniversary with the firm.

When Mr. Trees first went on the Skelly payroll it was as manager of the Community Service Station, a Skelly outlet standing right where Joe McLaughlin's Skelly Service stands today.

Before long, incidentally, the third completely new station to handle Skelly products at that site will be going up. The contract for its construction was to be let the early part of this week. In betwixt and between, Jim adds, have been several remodeling jobs on the preceding stations to keep them up to date.

When he had the Skelly station, it sold only gasoline and motor oil and was equipped for no servicing, except for a drain pit that permitted changing of oil.

It was the limited income possible with this scope of business that induced Jim to take over the tank wagon service three years and six days after he'd joined the Skelly organization.

With his truck, he dispensed gasoline and kerosene, only, at the outset. The big product was kerosene, for that's what the tractors of the day were operated on — except for having an auxiliary tank of gasoline that served to start the engine.

Now Jim handles, in addition to these two products, lubricating oils, fuel oil, diesel oil and greases.

During the nearly 32 years he's been delivering Skelly products about the countryside, Jim has owned five trucks — plus one second-hander that he disposed of within a couple of weeks after he'd bought it. For about eight or 10 years — when he had as many as five Skelly service stations to which he was hauling gas — he operated two trucks, the second being driven by Adolph Wenzel.

Now he supplies gas only to Joe's Skelly Service, the rest of his trade consisting of rural customers. Jim takes a lot of satisfaction in the fact that he has a good-sized handful of customers who have been loyal to him ever since he went into the tank wagon business.

He also takes pride in having among his customers several third generations in a single family, and a considerable number of two-generation families.

"Driving" has been Jim's occupation almost throughout his adult lifetime. Except for a brief time that he worked for the Tyrrell's, he's been in transportation of one sort or another. He worked for a number of years for a local dray line, before his entry into the business of petroleum products.

Deliveries today, metered right from the truck into the farmer's tank, are a good deal easier and simpler than in the earlier days when he had to haul gasoline and kerosene from his truck to the customer's tank in five-gallon pails, Jim says. He had about 11 years of hand hauling before acquiring his first truck equipped for metered deliveries.

SKELLY-MAN JIM TREES; HE'S ON HIS 5TH TRUCK

Jim doesn't smoke, so he hasn't been exposed to danger of explosions through carelessness on his own part. He's always alert to the danger involved in handling highly combustible products though; and perhaps that cautiousness explains why he has never had any narrow escapes.

Jim says that in all his years of farm deliveries, he's been bitten only once by a dog. He gets along well with dogs, doesn't fear them, and as a consequence they seem to give him little trouble.

He recalls with a grin that for 13 years he had as a companion on his rural deliveries a tiny toy terrier — a spayed female. He'd let his pet out of the truck whenever he made a farm stop, and the family dog would become so interested in her that he (Jim) could go about his business without attracting any attention whatsoever.

With retirement in prospect only a few years away, Jim says, "The tank wagon business has been good to me. While it hasn't made me rich, it's provided my family with a good, comfortable living."

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

If any Independent readers were left curious last week by a classified in The Independent that had to do with the finding of a straw hat in the Fred McBride store at Saratoga, the following explanation will provide the answer.

It was inserted by Mr. McBride, who for many years was baker here. He had as visitors early this month four former Belmond cronies, who had stopped to see him en route home after a fishing jaunt to the Mississippi river.

Leo Gilligan, Hal Nourse, Clyde Jennings and Pete Swenson, after a talk about times, departed — one of them leaving behind his straw hat. Fred says the owner of the chapeau my redeem same by identifying and paying for the ad.

A relic of times gone by was extracted from a piece of lumber in the Jacobson store building as razing of the aged frame structure was started last week. It was a 30-30 deer gun bullet which was embedded in a section of the store's east wall — just a few inches from where Oscar Jacobson's head was resting when the accidental shot fired as he sat on a high stool in front of the safe and behind the counter where the till was kept.

The bullet was presented to A. W. "Doc" Johnson, who'd told the men tearing down the building to be on the lookout for it. Oscar had told "Doc" some years ago about the accidental firing of the rifle that scared the daylights out of the store proprietor. Oscar was accustomed to sitting in the particular spot described and resting his head against the wall as he sat on the tipped-back stool and conversed with a customer at the counter to pay for some purchases made.

Oscar's next-door neighbor to the east was a man named Cane, who was a buyer and seller of various and sundry types of items. As he was handling the rifle it went off, and the bullet whammed through the east wall and then partly penetrated a jog in the wall that provided space to enclose the safe. Had it travled another six or eight inches, the bullet would have found the head of the nerve-shattered storekeeper!

We'd intended to acknowledge the disappearance of Oscar Jacobson's store from the Main street scene with a story this week — but lack of space, plus lack of time to run down the facts, necessitate postponement until next issue.

A word of advice to hunters is offered by the state conservation commission, with the squirrel and rabbit seasons due to open this coming Saturday. First of all, make sure your rifle is in A-1 condition — and keep in mind the safety rules designed to limit the hunting harvest to GAME.

"Do NOT be a litterbug," the advice continues. Empty cigaret packs, candy bar wrappers, hay fever hankies and lunch or snack wrappings can soon have a field or woods resembling a dump.

There's a second practical reason for not strewing debris around hunting grounds. A blowing piece of paper will "spook" a game animal almost as much as the sign of a human being and make the squirrels and cottontails harder to spot. So you nimrods mind what the commission fellers say!

If the worst befalls and those H-bombs start gumming up the world, the personnel of three far-sighted Federal Reserve banks will be able to crawl into their vaults and subsist on General Mills MPF while radioactive fall-out is dissipating. So reports Bob Kellermann.

The Federal Reserve banks at Cincinnati, Cleveland and Pittsburgh each have cached in their vaults these days 200 cases of MPF apiece!

By Bob's calculation, at 36 meals per can (in equivalent to balanced diet rations) those bank people have 43,200 MPF meals apiece to fall back on. Now — if GMI could only sell the citizenry at-large to do likewise, how the production of Multi-Purpose Food would boom!

L. Smith attends union convention

LuVerne Smith was at Denver, Colo., Wednesday through Friday of last week attending the 7th annual Constitutional Convention of the American Federation of Grain Millers. He was the official delegate of Local No. 25, the General Mills union here.

Elden Boyd, named by the local union as alternate delegate, and his wife were also in Denver for the convention. On vacation and traveling by car, they spent most of the week in the convention city. Mr. Smith went by train on Tuesday and returned home the next day.

This was the fifth time that Mr. Smith has been Local No. 25's delegate to a national convention.

No numbers . . . almost!

Red faces instead of numbers awaited representatives of the firms participating in Cash Gift Day when they called at the Independent office Tuesday right after lunch to pick up envelopes containing the day's digit combinations. Nancy Gallagher, who ordinarily numbered the slips of paper, was off to college—and the weekly chore had been overlooked. Columns of penciled numbers were hastily produced; but a bum set, they were. Not a single one of the numbers produced a winner. Anyway, it was a nice day to be downtown — and the CGD committee hopes that with a bit more concentration some winners will be in next week's batch.

Here's the score; but not the story

Above is the score; for details of the thrilling football game last Friday night that saw Belmond High defeat Clarion, see the sports page. Members of the victorious Bronco team lost no time in up-dating the "scoreboard" at Solberg underpass, which has told the world the outcomes of a number of Belmond-Clarion athletic contests in recent years. There was a time Friday night (in fact, for a greater part of the game) that it appeared last year's 6-6 tie result could very well have been left in place. But then, with seconds left . . . well, as noted above, see the sports page for the dramatic ending that produced the final, 13-6 result.

Newest cemetary addition designated Memorial Park

An ordinance passed by the Belmond city council at its meeting Monday night creates of the fourth addition to the municipal cemetery a Memorial Park that is to be developed in the motif of a park to avoid the more somber appearance of the conventional cemetery.

No monuments or gravestones will be permitted in the Memorial Park, grave locations being indicated instead by flat markers bearing bonze tablets.

Purchase price of full lots, half-lots, quarter lots and single gravesite lots will be higher than lots of similar size in the older parts of the cemetery by $25, $20, $15 and $10, respectively.

That will make the respective prices $250, $160, $100 and $60. There are 182 blocks, or full lots, in the fourth addition. All of Block No 95 is being set aside as a "Baby Land," in which only the bodies of infants under one year of age may be interred. Price of these lots will be $25.

It is the tentative plan of the council that a portion of the price of each lot be set aside toward the purchase of an appropriate piece of statuary to beautify the Memorial Park.

The prices quoted above include perpetual care fees amounting to $100 for full lots, $60 for half-lots, $35 for quarter lots, $15 for single gravesite lots and $10 for Baby Land lots.

In next week's Independent, the complete ordinance will be published as required by law. Set forth in it are standard specifications that must be met by the grave markers.

It also indicates the restrictions that will be placed on plantings and on such items as benches, chairs, settees, urns and vases.

Firm acquires Jefferson concern—

Ris-van to set up seventh production plant

Another step in the steady expansion Ris-Van, Inc., has witnessed the past several years was announced this week by Kenneth Van Duzer, president of the liquid fertilizer manufacturing firm.

Ris-Van has acquired ownership from Jim Andrew of the Andrew Farm store at Jefferson, a large producer and merchandiser of dry-blend fertilizer Ris-Van will add its own line of complete analysis fertilizers and nitrogen to the products that Mr. Andrew had been handling.

Joe Triplett, who has been assistant to Dr. John Strauss and also in charge of local retail sales for Ris-Van, has been promoted in the Ris-Van organization and will move to Jefferson to coordinate the new facility's operations and serve in a similar sales capacity there. He has already taken up his new duties and will be joined by his family as soon as he can obtain housing accommodations.

Gene Black, Ris-Van plant manager at Belmond, will take over Mr. Triplett's sales activities here while continuing to supervise production.

Mr. Van Duzer notes that the Jefferson liquid fertilizer plant will be the sixth the company has added since launching the manufacture of complete analysis fertilizers here five years ago. Sites of the other plants are Blue Earth and Willmar in Minnesota, West Union, Sanborn and Vinton in Iowa.

Greene county, of which Jefferson is the county seat, was about as far to the southwest as the Ris Van market area extended in Iowa before acquisition of the fertilizer business at Jefferson. It is now planned that the Ris-Van marketing area be extended to include all of southwestern Iowa. This will mean that Ris-Van fertilizers will be easily available to farmers in the entire state.

The Ris-Van dealership organization also encompasses most of Minnesota and extends into Illinois, Wisconsin, South Dakota and Nebraska. The Jefferson transaction will more firmly entrench Ris-Van in its position as the nation's largest producer of liquid fertilizers.

When the new plant is completed at Jefferson — tentatively set for some time next spring — the seven Ris-Van production units will have an aggregate manufacturing capacity of more than 5,000 tons of liquid fertilizer daily.

The Jefferson plant will service dealers within a radius of 75 to 100 miles and will enable Ris-Van to add numerous dealerships in the southwest quarter of Iowa.

Mr. Triplett, prior to his departure to Jefferson early this week, told The Independent, "Ris-Van customers in this area have treated me wonderfully. I would be remiss if I did not acknowledge the courtesy I have received from all of the farmers I've called on in this area and express the gratitude I so sincerely feel for their kindness and consideration."

Minnesota firm will raze tower

Larson Tank company of Hopkins, Minn., at Monday night's meeting of the city council was awarded the contract to tear down the city's discarded water tower.

Three other firms entered bids. One was simply on an hourly rate. The other two were for $2,435 and $3,000, respectively, for the complete job.

As another matter of business Monday evening, the council appointed Robert Kellermann to the zoning and planning board of adjustment. He fills a vacancy on the board left by the resignation of Clarence Hildebrand some time ago.

On Tuesday of last week in district court at Clarion, Judge Harvey Uhlenhopp handed down a clarifying decree in response to a friendly suit that had been brought by the Fred and Alice Luick Memorial Building trustees against directors of Belmond Community School district and other interested parties.

It was spelled out by Judge Uhlenhopp that:

(2) Upon completion and equipping of the building, it shall become the property of Belmond Community School district;

C-of-C to conduct sidewalk auction next Wednesday

Attention is invited to the Chamber of Commerce advertisement in this issue telling of the community auction sale that is to be held on the sidewalks of downtown Main street on Wednesday of next week starting at 1:00 o'clock.

This is something new for Belmond, and C-of-C President Phyllis Pals believes it should provide a lot of fun — and some profit, too — for Belmond shoppers.

Anyone can put up any item they wish (excepting livestock or machinery) for sale. Articles for sale may be taken to any Main street merchant and he will tag them and see that the seller gets proceeds from the sale.

There will be no charge for auctioneering or clerking services. "Coonie" Smith and Andy Miller will cry the sale and the First State bank will provide the clerk.

In addition to items offered for sale by shoppers, themselves, various Belmond stores will also have merchandise — new as well as used — among the offerings. All articles to be auctioned are to be tagged and in place by 12:00 noon on Wednesday. And if any items remain unsold, they must be picked up by their owners when the sale is over.

Mrs. Pals says, "This should be a good chance to get rid of white elephants around the house that you not longer need, but would have usefulness for others. Bring 'em in — and get your money out of them!"

BAKE SALE AFTER MASS

Rosary society of St. Mary's church, Goodell, plans to conduct a bake sale in the church basement Sunday following 9:00 a. m. Mass. Coffee, doughnuts and rolls will be served, also.

3 plaintiffs get relief in court against Draper

John O. Chapman, Jr., was ordered last Friday by Judge Harvey Uhlenhopp to receive from funds held by the district court in the name of Gerald Draper the sum of $517.66 plus interest in settlement of a debt owed Chapman by the Belmond trucker.

The amount was to be taken from the sums of $309.18 and $309.05, respectively, that had been placed in the court's custody last June as belonging to the estates of his deceased children, Nancy Ann and Timothy Ray Draper. Both youngsters were fatally injured in an auto accident near Belmond several years ago.

It was also ordered by Judge Uhlenhopp that the balance of $61.20 be retained by the court.

On Monday of this week, two other suits were filed by parties petitioning as creditors of Draper. Powers Truck Port of Cedar Rapids asked judgment of $166.17 plus interest and court costs; Dean Powers company, Inc., also of Cedar Rapids, asked judgment of $105.76 plus interest and court costs.

Judge Uhlenhopp granted the judgment sought in each case.

GMI will install machinery here for new product

An appropriation has been made by General Mills, Inc., for the installation of additional equipment in the former drum warehouse at the Belmond soybean processing plant for the manufacture of a new product.

Walt Hotvet, plant manager, says the equipment will allow the production of a line of industrial proteins useful in the manufacture of plywood and in other industrial applications.

It is the hope of the Oilseeds Division that the new equipment will be installed and ready for use the early part of next year. This diversification project is another step in the direction of producing specialized items at the local plant that will upgrade its products and expand the market for soybean derivatives.

Mr. Hotvet says that introduction of the new product will not entail the hiring of additional plant personnel under present plans.

He added, "The protein glues that the new equipment will produce introduce a potential for increasing the local plant's bulk production, but only the future will determine accurately what the actual breadth of that potential may be."

Basic ingredient that will go into the adhesives will be the same unground soybean flakes that are presently toasted for use in animal feed. For use in the new plant section, the flakes will not be toasted, but will be ground and mixed with additional ingredients to produce the industrial proteins.

102 Cast ballots in school voting

Monday's school election brought 102 voters in Belmond Community School district to the polls and returned both incumbents — Carl Green of Goodell, director; and C. C. Benson, treasurer — to the positions they have been filling.

Voters cast 82 ballots at the Belmond city hall and 20 at the Goodell community building.

Mr. Green received 75 Belmond votes and 19 at Goodell for a total of 94. Mr. Benson received 92 votes, altogether, for a full-term as treasurer. Seventy-three bothered to write in his name for a short, fill-in term.

Scattered votes for one or another of the treasurer's terms were cast (one apiece) for Kenneth Boller, L. B. Cox and Gene Griffin; and Mr. Benson got one vote for director.

Although the vote totals would seem to indicate otherwise, only three ballots were spoiled at Belmond and none at Goodell.

New dentist, Dr. E. Stephen Rallis, will soon open practice in Belmond

Dr. E. Stephen Rallis, lately of San Diego, Calif., has rented the quarters lately occupied by Earl Sheller's barbershop and will open a dental practice there the latter part of this month or early in October.

He is a 1958 graduate of Creighton university, Omaha, Neb., and has just completed two years in uniform as an officer in the U. S. Navy dental corps. He had the good fortune to be stationed in his home city during his period of active duty.

On July 14 he went on Reserve status and will become a member of a Naval Reserve unit in this area, if one is sufficiently close by.

Dr. Rallis is married to an Iowa girl, the former Jacquie Burton of Shenandoah. They have an eight-month-old son, Vincent Kent. The family will move into the Chapman residence at 611 E. Main street that the Joe Triplet family will be vacating.

Dr. Rallis says he travelled some 5,000 miles looking for a location to start his practice, and though he inspected a number of communities be found none offering a combination of attractions to match Belmond's.

The new dentist is a member of Xi Psi Phi, national dental fraternity. The Rallises are members of the Catholic church.

Bowling ace in two exhibitions—

"New" Bowl-Mor's grand opening this Sunday

Gene and Dorothy Pearson will hold the grand opening of their enlarged and completely modernized Bowl-Mor Lanes this coming Sunday, with festivities starting at 1:30 p.m. when Mayor L. T. Trafford snips the traditional ribbon opening the alleys to play.

Actually, the eight new lanes have been in use since the latter part of August and have already won the enthusiastic approval of a record number of bowlers who are engaging this season in league competition at the Bowl-Mor.

After Mayor Trafford has performed his official ritual, the Pearsons will present Leo Mann of St. Paul in a pair of bowling exhibitions against local talent. He has been drafted by the Los Angeles professional team in the newly-formed national "pro" league on the strength of his reputation as one of the country's fine pinmen.

Mr. Mann has won the Minnesota match game championship and has to his credit a 784 series in a television match. He has carried a 217 average in the St. Paul Classic league and last season boasted a 209 composite average as a competitor in three Twin City leagues.

Local keglers are being given an opportunity this week to choose by ballot the Belmond Bowling association representative who will appear with the guest star in his singles exhibition.

At 3:30 p.m., the visiting ace will roll a three-game doubles match with three local bowlers. His partner and two opponents will, as in the case of the singles exhibition, be chosen by local league members.

At 7:00 o'clock in the evening, a "King of the Hill" contest will be conducted. Anyone interested in participating in this contest is to enter his name in advance with the Pearsons, and the initial "King of the Hill" will be chosen by draw.

This individual will endeavor to out-strike all challengers, he and each contender being allowed seven throws apiece. If a challenger succeeds in gathering more strikes in the allowed number of attempts, he then becomes "King" and will meet all comers until beaten. Cash prizes will be paid to the successful keglers in this contest.

As added incentive to bowling fans to be present for the Bowl-Mor opening, the Pearsons will give away on the basis of registration a bowling ball, bowling ball bag and a pair of bowling shoes. No open bowling will be conducted while the exhibitions and "King of the Hill" contest are in progress.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearson went to heavy expense over the summer to enlarge the Bowl-Mor to an eight-alley establishment and to install American Machine Foundry automatic pin-spotters and brand new alleys throughout. They believe they now have a bowling emporium unsurpassed, for its size, by any in the state.

They have issued an invitation to all bowling fans of the area to watch the AMF pin-spotters in action at any time they wish. These intricate machines are electronically controlled and seem near-human in their ability to perfor the various duties of pin-boy.

Gene and Dorothy emphasize that their invitation to the Bowl-Mor's grand opening is extended not only to local keglers but to all in the wide area from which the Bowl-Mor is drawing league participants. Bowlers are enrolled for league play this year from Alexander, Corwith, Goodell, Kanawha, Klemme and Meservey, as well as Belmond.

Probably if the issue ever comes up of shortening high school athletic contest by one minute, Clarion sports fans will vote a vociferous "aye." Friday night it happened to the Cowboys again. Just as the Broncos had snatched victory from defeat against Clarion in the district basketball tournament last winter, the BHS gridders posted a 13-6 win over the Cowpokes last Friday night at the county seat on the final play of the game.

If the Clarion athletes and their followers consider Belmond rather running the last-second heroics into the ground, they would be perfectly justified. On the other hand, the statistics above accurately indicate sufficient superiority on the part of the Broncos that they deserved to win. It was their nerve-wracking manner of getting the job done that might understandably be getting under the Cowpokes' skin.

Half ended with 6-6 score

This is how the stage was set for the game's concluding excitement. Both teams had scored in the first half to produce a 6-6 tie and also before the intermission Belmond had carried the ball over the goal line another time — only to fumble it and give Clarion a harmless touchback when a Cowboy recovered.

Then with a little over three minutes of playing time remaining, Bob Finn had let a pass slip through his fingers in the end zone to nullify another certain tally. With 2:30 to go and the Broncos possessed of a 1st-and-10 on Clarion's five-yard line, Dennis Anderson had muffed a pass-off and the host team recovered on the three.

Things took a serious turn from the Belmond standpoint when Clarion thereupon reeled off 41 yards in three plays — including their only pass completion of the night for 29 yards — for a first down on the Bronco 44 with a minute to play.

Finn sets up scoring chance

At that point Finn apparently decided to reject the "goat" role that had settled on his shoulders and hauled down a Clarion pass on the 35, returning it to the 40. Sixty yards lay between the Broncos and victory with 45 seconds remaining.

Quarterback Jerry Jenison, who did a fine job in his first-string signal caller assignment, faded back and spiraled a pass to Vernon Pastour that the speedy junior turned into a 42-yard gain. Time was left for just one more play when Jenison again drifted back for a pass, found Finn in the near corner of the end zone and drilled the ball accurately to its mark. This one, Bobby clung to tightly— and the gun sounded to indicate the game was over.

It was anti-climax when Dennis Anderson booted the conversion kick through the uprights to make the final count 13-6.

Broncos score quickly

Clarion had taken the opening kickoff and gained 28 yards on a pair of 1st-and-10s before Belmond held for downs and took possession on the Bronco 37. The Blue-and-White crew needed just 11 plays to cover the 63 yards that gave them the game's initial TD. Jenison covered the final nine yards, after the running of Anderson, Pastour and Mike Armour advanced the ball to that point.

The score remained 6-0 when Anderson's kick for extra point was blocked. Belmond fans had hardly had time to savor this pleasant development when the Cowpokes retaliated with a 68-yard march after the ensuing kickoff to chalk up a marker of their own. It was scored from a foot out by John Pletcher on the first play of the second quarter.

Belmond misses opportunities

After the Clarion kickoff, Belmond advanced to Clarion's 26 before giving up the ball on downs — then promptly regained it at that point when Bob Lee captured a Cowboy fumble on the next play. Eight plays, which included a five-yard penalty and a recovered Bronco fumble, made it 1st-and-10 on the one-yard line.

Again an illegal procedure penalty cost Belmond five yards — but three downs put the goal only six inches away. Then Armour let the ball squirt out of his arms as he crossed the double-stripe and Clarion recovered to take over the pigskin on the 20 as a touchback was declared.

Clarion threat squelched

Clarion made its second and final scoring threat in the latter stages of the third quarter after Pletcher had returned a fine punt by Anderson all the way from the Cowpokes' five-yard line to the Broncs' 48. Three plays took the ball to Belmond's 12 — but here the Belmond defense stiffened and Armour throttled the Cowboys' hopes by snagging a fourth-down pass on the three and running it out to the 12. An exchange of punts produced the setting described earlier, from which Belmond drove 62 yards only to fumble the ball away three yards from the end zone.

It was a typically ragged, first of the season game; but the Broncos' performance left Coach Rich Koolbeck good reason for hope that they may develop into a pretty rugged outfit before the campaign's over.

Stadtlander outstanding

Veteran Bob Stadtlander shone both defensively and in opening holes on offense. Armour and Pastour both did commendably as secondary defenders as well as ball-carriers; and Anderson also did some fine running.

Koolbeck had special words of praise for the defensive play of End Bill Heinzig in his varsity debut; for Merrill Kalkwarf, another junior without previous varsity experience; and Dennis Fuller, a sophomore, who performed very cabably at center. The coach also was happy with Jenison's field generalship.

All in all, the coaching staff found the first game's outcome decidedly to their liking and their players' performances in general satisfactory for a starter.

Broncs play host to Osage Friday

Belmond High's 1960 North Iowa conference gridiron season should open with an unusual flourish here tomorrow night, if the Bronco players' memories are good enough to harken back 10½ months.

Their foe will be the Osage Green Devils. It was the Imps who, with 2:50 remaining and a 7-6 Belmond victory apparently locked away, blasted Belmond's hopes for its first undefeated football season with a 4th-down pass play that netted a 12-7 Osage conquest last fall.

That pulled both Osage and Britt up into a 1st-place tie with Belmond for the NIC championship and dimmed the Broncos' satisfaction in one of the best football seasons in BHS history.

One of the six lettermen Coach Bud Bonwell has back this season is John Van Voorhis, who took a lateral from Gene Parr and scampered the last 50 yards of the Imps' 80-yard, victory-making touchdown run.

From this co-championship crew, Bonwell also has Mike Bailey and Chuck Bowman as additional backfield starters this fall, End Dale Hemmingson, Center Jim Skuster and Guard Dave Low. He is drawing heavily on juniors and sophomores to fill the vacancies and provide reserve strength.

Whether either the Green Devils or Broncos will be serious threats as title contenders again this season will be quite clearly spelled out by this first NIC clash, both coaches agree. Game time Friday will be 8:00 p. m.

Eagles boast 13 letter-winners—

Britt favored to take NIC football crown

Ordinarily there is considerable reluctance on the part of a coach to accept the favorite's role for his team at the outset of a championship race; but this year is an exception in the North Iowa conference as the chase for the 1960 football title gets underway.

Coach Steve Everett of the Britt Eagles, defending co-champions, candidly admits that he thinks he has the "horses" to recapture the laurels his team shared last fall with Belmond and Osage.

With 13 lettermen back as the foundation on which to build his grid machine for this season and some capable underclassmen with varsity experience to plug the gaps left by departed veterans, the Britt outlook is a bright one. Everett will get little argument from rival mentors that the Eagles should be regarded as having the inside track to the championship.

Only cloud on the Britt horizon is created by the fact that All-Conference Bob Nielsen broke an ankle during the summer and still has to favor his right leg a bit. He's reportedly maneuvering well, though, and barring further injury should be ready to give the Eagles stalwart leadership in their title challenge.

Britt figures to be a little lighter in the line, but Everett regards that greater speed will make his forward wall as hard to contain as last year's beefier brigade.

Largest crop of lettermen is boasted by Garner, where Duane Garman will be launching his first season as varsity football coach. The Cardinals are past due to regain some of the prestige they've enjoyed in times past on the gridiron, and with 14 letterwinners to build around, Garman could very well guide his proteges to their best season in a number of years.

Garner short veteran center

Only at center does Garman need to unearth a starter. He has six backfield veterans, plus a pair of experienced prospects for each of the other line positions. His fellow coaches regard that Garman's biggest problem will lie in curing the defeatist attitude that has hampered recent Cardinal teams on the gridiron.

Coach Wall Stittsworth at Forest City can match Britt's total of 13 returned lettermen, but only four of this number regularly drew starting assignments a year ago. With three-fourths of his first-string backfield back in Quarterback George Hanson and Halves Ron Hanna and John Otis, the Indians give promise of presenting a strong running game if a line can be fielded that can make the necessary holes.

Belmond, Osage no "patsies"

Also available are a pair of reserve backs from last season. Only one of Stittsworth's eight line lettermen is a senior. Two earned varsity monograms last year as sophomores and four as freshmen. This suggests that the Indians have a potent line in the making, but probably a year away from reaching its peak.

Coaches Rich Koolbeck and Bud Bonwell, who guided Belmond and Osage to shares in the 1959 gridiron championship, willingly yield the "favorite" label to the Britt Eagles. Both the Broncos and Green Devils were hard hit by graduation. On the other hand, neither Belmond nor Osage figures to be very obliging doormats for loop opponents.

Koolbeck has seven letterwinners back from his 1959 outfit and figures he can put a respectable team on the field if injuries don't make inroads on his relatively short supply of first-string talent. He has a light but speedy quartet of backfield veterans, even with transfer of a fifth ball carrier to one of the end positions.

Osage fears injuries

Belmond will have good weight in the middle of the line and good speed at the ends. But unless some of Koolbeck's reserve line candidates start showing more progress than they have to date, lack of depth could hurt the Broncos' chances for a winning season.

Bonwell chimes in with Koolbeck's complaint that an injury or two could drastically darken the Green Devils' prospects. Osage has only six gridders back from its co-champion aggregation. Some promising newcomers are vying for the starting assignments left vacant by graduation; but Bonwell says all will have to live up to their promise fully if the Imps are to be in title contention again.

Good speed will be an Osage asset. A question-mark line and the rapidity with which top prospects from the underclass ranks come along are the factors which will hold the key to the Imps' success — or relative lack of it — in the campaign starting Friday.

Bison to miss Costigan

Buffalo Center will be operating without Mickey Costigan's leadership this fall, but should demand the respect of all its NIC rivals if a take-charge guy can be found to succeed the Bison sparkplug. Coach Chuck Shuman has nine veterans to build around. The prospect of having a decidedly strong backfield of experienced men was jolted when one letterman from last season did not return to school.

Schuman will have monogram winners enough to fill all line positions except ends. Development of a pair of wingmen represents the major "must" for the Bison mentor in order to put together a well balanced starting eleven.

Coach Clarence Mounts, in his first year at Northwood, looks forward to a "building" year. His 40-man squad includes only seven seniors and a half dozen freshmen. Five of the seven letter veterans are seniors.

Bulldogs lack experience

A Morningside alumnus who was freshman line coach for his alma mater last season, Mounts will have to depend heavily on untried juniors and sophomores. He will have an adequately heavy outfit but regards that he may have a problem in convincing his Vikings they're ready to rebound after last fall's losing season.

Lake Mills lost most of the key men who enabled the Bulldogs to earn a 3-4 mark in their league games a year ago. Coach Mike Engstrom has only four lettermen as a nucleus for his rebuilt aggregation and three of them are backs. With a veteran at only one line slot, his most optimistic hope is to bring the Bulldogs along fast enough to give their foes trouble in the later stages of the season.

Here's how the conference teams wound up the 1959 season:

Belmond	6	1	0
Britt	6	1	0
Osage	6	1	0

GOP
Set Up First Space Agency

Republicans established America's first space agency, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and NASA has been provided all the money it needs for its many projects . . . less $40 million denied in 1959 by the Democrat Congress.

On February 2, 1960, Dr. Werner von Braun, our top space scientist, approved the new budget's provisions for his programs, saying, "putting more money in at this time would mean operating beyond the point of diminishing return."

American satellites have contributed more to scientific progress than those of the Soviet Union. We are well ahead in penetrating the mysteries of outer space and in making use of space for the benefit of mankind.

The U. S. was the first nation to launch an intermediate communications satellite.

The difficult problem of intact recovery of bodies sent into outer space was first solved by the U. S.
